COAL ULTIMATUM GIVEN TO GERMANS BY ALLIES AT SPA

Must Agree by 3 o'Clock Today to Deliver 2,000,000 Tons Monthly.

ALTERNATIVE IS COERCION

ANOTHER REPARATIONS PLAN

Germans Said to Have in Reserve a More Important One Than Scheme Submitted.

SPA, July 12 (Associated Press).—The Allies served an ultimatum upon the German delegation to the conference here late this afternoon that the Germans must agree by 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to deliver to the Allies 2,000,000 tons of coal monthly. Otherwise, the Germans were informed, the Allies will take measures to enforce the terms of the Versailles Treaty.

Thus, the negotiations with the Germans have reached another tense point. The spirit of conciliation adopted by both sides has prevented a break so far, but the Allies found it was necessary to issue this ultimatum for carrying out the treaty, which would entitle them to a greater amount of coal than now is demanded.

Germans Offer Half Allied Total.

The Allies began by insisting upon a monthly delivery of 2,200,000 tons. The Germans offered 1,100,000 tons and the Allies reduced their demand to 2,000,000.

Dr. Simons represented that, coal being the very foundation of the industrial life of Germany, every ton that Germany sent to the Allies meant that much less production. He said:

"My contention is in European interests as much as in the interest of Germany, because our payments to you are conditioned upon our industrial production. You want your money. We want you to have it, but how can we pay large sums if you take away large quantities of coal?"

The German Foreign Minister offered then to increase the deliveries of coal from 1,100,000 tons to 1,400,000 within six months and to 1,700,000 tons within a year. This could only be done, he said, if the Allies made better food conditions possible for the miners and contributed raw materials to build houses for more miners.

The Premiers, after prolonged discussion with the Germans in a calm, businesslike manner, informed Chancellor Fehrenbach and Dr. Simons that the Allies must have their final answer tomorrow.

If the German reply was rejection, the Allies, it was declared, would take measures to enforce their demands, either by occupation of mining territories or by sending their own coal commission into Germany to examine the situation in the mining regions.

The ultimatum was delivered in the quietest tone by the Belgian Premier, M. Delacroix. As the meeting dissolved, the British Prime Minister said to Dr. Simons: "Think this over and come to our terms."

Special Trains Canceled.

Following this morning's meeting held by the Premiers without the presence of the German delegates, the former countermanded the special trains they had ordered for this evening and tomorrow.

"I am not returning to Paris for the National Fête of July 14," said Premier Millerand after the meeting. "I am going to stay and fight this thing out."

The allied Ministers, it appears, are not very favorably impressed by the German reparations plan. The prevailing view, the correspondent was informed, was that the plan was somewhat indefinite on the essential financial points.

It is understood that the German delegates have in reserve another plan, or amendment, of much greater importance than the plan submitted yesterday. The plan now before the conference is considered a substitute for this original plan, which the Germans are withholding, being unwilling to disclose the orginal proposition because satisfaction on the coal question was not accorded them.

The feeling in French circles is said to be that from the standpoint of France the conference up to the present time has been without fruitful result.

The official communique on today's proceedings says:

"The heads of the allied delegations met Chancellor Fehrenbach and Dr. Simons this afternoon, and conferred for an hour on the coal and reparations questions. It was decided that the members of the Reparations Commission should meet delegates appointed by the allied Governments, together with the German delegation and experts, with a

France Demands Enforcement Of Treaty to the Last Article

RHEIMS, France, July 12.—France will demand enforcement of the Treaty of Versailles to the last article, Léon Bourgeois, President of the French Senate, declared today in a speech before more than 100 French and foreign newspaper correspondents at a luncheon in the ruins of the Hotel de Ville.

The correspondents visited Rheims as the guests of the Mayor.

"Our Government now at Spa is defending French interests to the utmost," said M. Bourgeois. "Support them in everything they are doing, gentlemen. There is a Treaty of Versailles and we will demand its enforcement to the last article."

SOVIET TO REJECT OFFER OF TRUCE

PRESSING THEIR OFFENSIVE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, July 13.—The Daily Chronicle's political correspondent writes that news has been received in London to the effect that the Bolsheviki do not intend to stop their campaign against Poland.

LONDON, July 12 (Associated Press).—Further official confirmation was given today that the Allies had made proposals to the Russian Soviet Government for an immediate armistice on equitable terms between Poland and Russia. Their confirmation was given in the House of Commons by Andrew Bonar Law, the Government spokesman.

Mr. Bonar Law also declared that the Soviet Government had accepted Great Britain's terms for a resumption of trade between Great Britain and Russia.

When asked to state the terms of the trade agreement, Mr. Bonar Law declined to say more than that the message to Moscow dealing with the Polish armistice dealt also with the question of trade negotiations.

The question was raised whether the Allies had threatened if the Soviet Government declined an armistice that the Allies would defend Poland. Mr. Bonar Law would not give the details regarding this contingency, but he did say that the British negotiations did not involve recognition of the Soviet Government.

SPA, July 12.—The Polish delegation at the conference here is understood to be very much dissatisfied with the terms of the allied note to the Russian Soviet Government proposing an armistice between the Bolshevist and Polish armies. They feel, however, that they will be obliged to accept it.

WARSAW, July 10 (Associated Press).—Asked today regarding rumors concerning a possible Polish peace offer, M. Joffe, Soviet representative in the peace negotiations with Lithuania, replied that present indications were that a satisfactory peace could be signed only in Warsaw.

"While Socialists desire peace," he continued, "it is hardly possible their terms at the present stage of the war would be acceptable. Polish Socialists have always stood for the historical boundaries of that country based on the status of 1772, while the National Democrats have favored a less imperialistic policy.

"Russia does not desire annexation of Polish territory, but at the same time admits of no historical or strategic pretensions in negotiations with neighboring States. An essential condition to any peace must be the territorial integrity of White Russia, which occupies the same position as the Ukraine and will be accorded the right of autonomy if it is demanded by a majority of the population. Identical conditions apply to the Ruthenians."

CHAUFFEUR TRIES SUICIDE

HUSBAND LEAVES FOR SCENE

Chauffeur Had Been Five Years in Cordova Family's Service and Has a Wife Here.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 12.—Mrs. Arthur de Cordova of 251 West Eighty-ninth Street, New York, wife of a Wall Street broker, was shot and almost instantly killed by her chauffeur, Bernard Geissler, of New York, on a lonely road near Stonington, Conn., early this evening.

Geissler, after shooting Mrs. de Cordova, turned the revolver upon himself and is now at the Lawrence Memorial Associated Hospital in New London and is not expected to live.

Mrs. de Cordova, who is the mother of two children, left the Hotel Griswold at Eastern Point, Conn., where she has been stopping with her family for the past two weeks, about 2:30 o'clock to go for a ride. Her son is 20 years old and her daughter 17.

Shortly before the shooting the automobile was seen by residents of the Wolfe Neck section, who reported that there was apparently nothing wrong.

The circumstances surrounding the crime are somewhat mysterious, according to the police, as Mrs. de Cordova's jewels and money were untouched, eliminating the possibility of robbery as a motive.

The automobile was found standing beside the road and was out of gasoline. According to the police, a box of cartridges and a partially empty bottle of whisky were found beside it.

James F. Brown of Stonington heard several revolver shots fired in rapid succession and upon investigating found Mrs. de Cordova lying in the road about thirty feet from the car, while Geissler was leaning over a fence some six feet further on.

Physicians who were summoned found that Mrs. de Cordova had been shot three times, once through the heart and twice through the right breast. She died almost instantly.

Geissler had a wound through his head from temple to temple.

Mr. de Cordova was notified at once and left New York immediately for New London.

Mrs. Arthur de Cordova, shot and killed by her chauffeur while driving along a secluded road near New London, Conn., was the wife of Arthur de Cordova, a member of the firm of Cyril de Cordova & Brother, 25 Broad Street, a brokerage firm. Their home is in the Admaston Apartments, 251 West Eighty-ninth Street, where they have lived for the last nine years.

Inquiry there this morning disclosed that Mr. and Mrs. de Cordova left their home on the morning of July 1 for the Griswold, Eastern Point, New London, Conn. Bernard Geissler, the chauffeur who did the shooting, was driving the machine. It was the intention of Mr. de Cordova to leave his wife at the Griswold, where she planned to spend the Summer months, in pursuance of this plan, the broker returned home yesterday. According to those at his home he learned of the tragedy late last night and immediately left for New London.

Geissler, five years in the employ of the de Cordovas, was described as a man who never had exhibited any symptoms of insanity, and the statement that he had killed the wife of his employer and

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The Shipping Board has found no buyers for twenty-one wooden ships, bids on which recently were invited. The tenders were to have been opened today, but none was received.

'TEX' RICKARD GETS MADISON SQ. GARDEN

TO BE ATHLETIC CENTRE

Will Continue to House the Horse Show, Circus and Other Famous Attractions.

Madison Square Garden, with its traditions and international reputation, is to be continued at least for the next ten years. G. L. (Tex) Rickard, Western sport promoter, yesterday closed negotiations with the New York Life Insurance Company, owners of the property, for a ten-year lease. The terms of the lease were not divulged by Mr. Rickard.

The transaction dissipates reports that the famous old building was to be demolished to make room for a skyscraper office building. Mr. Rickard, who has promoted some of the greatest boxing matches in the history of pugilism, has tentative plans which will keep the Garden occupied for the greater part of each year with attractions for enthusiasts in sport activities.

Mr. Rickard is acting for himself alone in leasing the Garden. He will take possession "at noon on the first day of August, 1920."

Boxing bouts under the new Walker law, permitting fifteen rounds to a decision, will be one of the principal attractions at the Garden. Other enterprises, long associated with Madison Square Garden, also will be conducted as heretofore, and under improved conditions and surroundings. The six-day bicycle race, the horse show, dog show, poultry show, motor boat show, automobile show, sportsman's show, and circus, to mention some of the many fixtures in the annual life of the building, will still be housed in the Garden.

To Be Open All Year.

And to these will be added enterprises with which Mr. Rickard plans to keep Madison Square Garden open throughout the year. This is reflected in Mr. Rickard's signed statement, which says:

"I have leased Madison Square Garden for a period of ten years and will assume complete and personal control of the entire structure on Aug. 1. This action sets at rest all reports and rumors to the effect that the Garden will be torn down, remodelled for business purposes, or otherwise changed in such manner as to lose its world-wide fame as the greatest amusement, carnival and exhibition centre in existence.

"During the next decade every tradition and sentiment which has been associated with Madison Square Garden will be preserved. It will continue to be the Madison Square Garden with which New Yorkers and visitors from all parts of the world are familiar.

"I hope and expect either as promoter or lessee to entertain all those exhibitions which in past years have lent prestige to the Garden, including the horse show, the circus, six-day bicycle race and other attractions. In addition I have plans and arrangements in process of development which will add greatly to the reputation and attractiveness of Madison Square Garden as the sport and exhibition centre of America."

Mr. Rickard plans to incorporate the Garden under a club name. He is considering as a name, the Madison Square Garden Sportsmen's Club, and the New York Sportsmen's Club. He intends to make the Garden a training ground for athletes and has under advisement a proposition to install a complete gymnasium apparatus. Track and field athletics, amateur boxing tournaments of importance and other important attractions comprise part of the extensive scheme now being worked out by the new lessee.

The boxing bouts will be promoted at popular prices, and under a scale to be dictated solely by the expense of conducting the bouts. Mr. Rickard plans to inaugurate his boxing scheme with a titular contest, in which either Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, or Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, will defend his title.

Will Remodel Interior.

An extensive plan of remodeling the interior of the Garden will be undertaken soon. Mr. Rickard intends to open offices in the building next week, and for a time will devote his entire attention to the work of reconstruction. His plans include an increase in the seating capacity, by lowering the balconies and adding to the floor space, to accommodate 13,000 persons. It is planned to eliminate the concert hall, and in its place install a gymnasium.

The roof will be utilized for motion picture displays and other attractions. With respect to the theatre on the northwest corner of the site, Mr. Rickard is handicapped since he will not obtain control until next July, when the present lease expires. He said yesterday he probably would retain the theatre and produce plays. The flooring of the Gar-

CROKER COMPETENT TO MANAGE AFFAIRS, COURT'S DECISION

NO FRAUD BY HIS WIFE

HIS GIFTS TO HER UPHELD

Special to The New York Times.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., July 12.—In a decision handed down today in the litigation between Richard Croker, Sr., and his children, Howard, Richard, Jr., and Ethel, Judge E. B. Donnell of the Circuit Court for Palm Beach County found for the aged defendant and his wife. The Court held the former Tammany Hall chieftain fully competent to manage his own affairs, dissolved the order issued on March 30 last restraining Mrs. Croker, Sr., from disposing of any property and the banks of this country from honoring her checks and dismissed the original complaint, made by Howard Croker and supported by Richard, Jr., and Ethel, charging that their father was incompetent to manage his affairs and that his wife, because of his condition and through fraudulent practices, had obtained control of all his property.

The decision follows a series of long drawn out court proceedings in which accusations and counter accusations were made with great bitterness by the father and his second wife on the one hand and his children by his first wife on the other. The complaint and injunction proceedings were brought by Howard Croker, as his father's next friend, supported by the other two children, on March 30, just as Richard Croker, Sr., and his wife were about to sail for Ireland after spending the Winter at Palm Beach. Political and social friends of both father and children endeavored to bring about a reconciliation and effect a settlement of the differences outside the court room, but their efforts failed and in May the family quarrel, which began soon after Richard Croker's marriage to the bride who was known as "The Indian Princess," in 1914, was told in all its details in a series of hearings in which was argued a motion by the defendant to set aside the restraining order and dismiss the complaint. The arguments were completed early in June.

The decision of Judge Donnell, who also granted the restraining order, follows:

OPINION AND ORDER.

This case is before the court upon a motion to dismiss the bill and a motion to dissolve the temporary restraining order heretofore entered in the case.

A vast amount of testimony has been heard and very able arguments presented by counsel upon these motions. A comprehensive and masterly brief upon the issues involved has been prepared in printed form and presented to the court by Mr. E. J. Lengle of counsel for Richard Croker, Sr., and wife, and it has been very helpful.

The temporary restraining order was granted in this case upon the following allegations of the bill of complaint—not meaning to quote the exact words, but to give the substance:

1. Richard Croker, Sr., has accumulated a large fortune, consisting of real and personal property:

2. That his (Richard Croker, Sr.'s) mind has become enfeebled by advanced age and his memory so impaired that he is no longer capable of handling his affairs.

3. That the defendant, Bula E. Croker, by her cunning deceit and misrepresentations, exercised and practised upon the enfeebled mind of the said Richard Croker, Sr., has fraudulently and by undue influence succeeded in obtaining control and management of all the property, real and personal, of Richard Croker, Sr.

4. That the defendant, Bula E. Croker, has in her possession large amounts of cash and securities belonging to Richard Croker, Sr., which she unjustly retains and which she from time to time has secreted and transferred out of the jurisdiction of this court, in order to prevent lawful process to reach the same.

5. That defendant will shortly leave the jurisdiction of this court and go to Ireland with her husband to their permanent home, and take with her all the aforementioned assets and property capable of being removed from this jurisdiction.

6. That the defendant continues to dominate the enfeebled mind of her husband in all financial matters.

7. That Richard Croker, Sr., is wholly incompetent to retain charge of and control or manage his own business affairs, and the defendant is

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 12.—"Perfectly ridiculous" is the way George F. Burba, former editor of Governor Cox's Dayton News, characterized the effort of The Sun and New York Herald to make it appear that the Governor was pro-German before this country got into the war.

"I was editor of The News in those days," Mr. Burba said, "and wrote all the editorials. Governor Cox was not in the city much of the time and paid no attention to the editorials, having confidence in my sanity, I suppose, and in my Americanism. I was always opposed to war and to violence. I hate it. I would be willing to kill any man who wants to fight. I tried to be neutral until we got into the struggle; I tried to edit The News as an American newspaper ought to be edited. But it seems that during the two or three years before we got into the war I wrote a few sentences which The Sun now quotes as tending to show that Governor Cox was pro-German.

"I wish The Sun could see all the threatening letters I received from Germans during that period; I also wish the editor of The Sun would go over the election returns from this State, showing how the Germans voted against Governor Cox at the following election because they thought he was anti-German.

"Governor Cox did not dictate to me anything I should write. I wrote as I felt, and now I find that a few sentences that appeared during a period of three years are construed as being pro-German, and Governor Cox is reviled because thereof.

"Of all the absurd things I have ever been accused of, the worst is this being pro-German. When war threatened us my boy, a lad of 19, all I have in the world in the way of offspring, came to me and wanted to know what it meant. I told him. He asked me if he could go to war. I told him I had rather he would be anywhere else on earth than in the army fighting, except here in the United States when the country needed soldiers. He volunteered in the ranks as an artilleryman the very day war was declared, and was two years in the army and across the seas. And now one of the best friends I ever had, Governor Cox, is being denounced because The Sun has garbled some of my editorials and says they show that the Governor was pro-German. Can you blame me for being a bit wrathy?

"While the war was in progress I was offered a place on The Columbus Dispatch, a larger field in the newspaper world than I occupied at Dayton. I accepted it and have been here ever since. What I wrote while editor of The Dayton News had nothing to do with it one way or the other. Governor Cox and I have been the best of friends all along. I did not leave him because of anything I had said about the Germans or because of anything I didn't say. One side now pretends that the Governor fired me because I was pro-German, and the other side says that he didn't, and that because the Governor didn't fire me it shows he must have been pro-German.

"But let me tell you this: Whether Jimmie Cox is elected or not, I shall go to my grave knowing that I had for a friend a man who was American all the way through and who trusted my Americanism and my common sense to steer his paper over the reefs of bitter factional and partisan and racial feeling during the dark days that preceded our getting into the war. That is some compensation."

COMMITTEE OF 48 MENACED BY LABOR

Must Show Compromise Spirit or Laborites Will Go Ahead Alone.

MAY DROP EASTERN LEADERS

Radical Forty-eighters Threaten to Take Control and Compel Union.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—After a day of apparent large progress toward the amalgamation of the Committee of Forty-eight Convention and the Labor Party Convention and the drawing of all the allied and associated groups into a third party, the whole movement was threatened late tonight with partial wreckage, if not an actual split.

If the combination is finally effected by the Committee of Forty-eight and the Laborites, it may only come to pass by the radicals, mostly Western men, taking entire control of the Committee of Forty-eight Convention in defiance of the more conservative Eastern leaders and forcing the union.

In the Labor Party Convention late tonight an ultimatum was adopted giving the Forty-eighters until 10 A. M. tomorrow to show a disposition to compromise.

This action was taken after Toscan Bennett of Connecticut had reported the failure of the two conference committees to "get together" and had asserted that the Forty-eight men were evading the issue "after two days of sweating blood."

An hour's warm debate followed, with delegates all over the hall showing a determination to adhere to their own program.

Some strong terms were used to characterize the course of the Forty-eighters. They were styled by one man "plutocratic philanthropists trying to use the Labor Party."

Abraham Lefkowitz of New York City expressed fear that the "slick lawyers" of the Forty-eighters would overmatch the labor conferees.

Dudley Field Malone, who is a member of the Committee of Forty-eight and also the Labor Party, sought to reassure the labor men, but the convention voted to go ahead and adopt a platform and name candidates tomorrow if the amalgamation plan failed. If a compromise is reached it is proposed to hold a joint convention tomorrow night.

Word of this ultimatum was carried to the Forty-eighters by the labor mens' sub-committee. It soon spread to the delegates and made the left wing of the

VERMONT GOVERNOR FAILS SUFFRAGISTS

SEES FREEDOM IMPERILLED

Assails the Present Method of Amending Constitution — Action Disappoints Republicans.

RUTLAND, Vt., July 12.—Governor Percival W. Clement today issued a proclamation announcing his refusal to call the Legislature in special session to make possible ratification of the Federal amendment for woman suffrage.

In this document he made the assertion that the Federal Constitution in its present form threatened the foundation of free popular Government. The Sixteenth amendment, providing for a Federal income tax, he said, was lobbied through Congress and State Legislatures by Federal agents, and the Eighteenth amendment, for Federal prohibition, was forced through by paid agents of irresponsible organizations with unlimited funds. To what he called the proposal to "force through the Nineteenth amendment for woman suffrage in the same manner," Governor Clement announced that he would not be a party. "I will never be a party to any proceeding which proposes to change the organic law of the State without the consent of the people," he said.

The Governor said that the Constitution threatened free popular Government alike as it stood and as it was interpreted by the Supreme Court, and he cited a recent decision of that court which held that States could not apply to the ratification or rejection of amendments to the Federal Constitution referendum provisions of their own Constitutions and statutes. He then added:

"This decision leaves the people at the mercy of any group of men who may lobby a proposal for a change in the Federal Constitution through Congress and then through the Legislatures of the States."

After reciting his views of the issues involved, the Governor said:

"I have been asked to overlook these considerations as a matter of party expediency, but this is a matter of principle, not expediency, and the party that invades a well-established principle of popular Government will suffer in the end."

NOMINEES CONFER ON FIGHT

WILL CAMPAIGN IN WEST

GOV. COX PREDICTS VICTORY

Declares in Speech That He Will Keep Faith with Nation as with Ohio.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 12.—An aggressive campaign, covering every State in the Union, will be waged by Governor James M. Cox and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, his running mate on the Democratic national ticket. They will divide the country between them, Mr. Roosevelt spending most of his time in the West.

The speaking campaign of the two candidates will begin as soon as their respective notification ceremonies are out of the way and will be carried on without let up until the polls open for the supreme test.

This announcement was made here today, after a conference between Governor Cox and Mr. Roosevelt at the Governor's mansion. Mr. Roosevelt arrived in Columbus this afternoon on his return from the San Francisco convention. He remained as the guest of Governor Cox until late this evening, when he left for the East Governor Cox had preceded him at the State capital by only a few hours. This was the Governor's first appearance here since his nomination. He received a rousing welcome from local Democrats and others who called at the Executive Chamber to offer their felicitations. At noon he made a speech from the State House steps, in which he said that he entertained what "was more than a strong belief and amounted to a deep conviction" that victory would perch on the Democratic banners in November.

Encouraged by Views in West.

Mr. Roosevelt brought good tidings from his journey through the West on his way to Columbus. In the course of his travels, he said, he had discussed the situation with delegates from more than half the States, and had found among them a firm determination to get out and hustle for the ticket. Such States as Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Kansas and Missouri, which he had traversed, Mr. Roosevelt said, would be in the Democratic column this year, if the talks he had with voters from those commonwealths afforded anything approximating a reliable indication.

Governor Cox and Mr. Roosevelt went to the State House after they had been in conference for some time and had taken luncheon at the Governor's mansion. The Governor, with many other duties requiring his attention, left it to his running mate to do the talking.

"One thing is certain," said Mr. Roosevelt, "when we begin this fight we will not look upon a single State in the union as too hopelessly Republican to justify the most energetic effort that can be made to win it for our cause. We will regard them all as promising Democratic battle grounds and this year as a Democratic year.

Will "Keep on the Warpath."

"We expect to start the campaign as soon after Aug. 1 as possible and keep on the warpath from that time until the election. We shall pay as close attention to the West as to the East. Some of the Western States have comparatively small electoral votes, but in the aggregate the votes figure up pretty big."

"Do you expect to spend a great deal of your time in the West?" Mr. Roosevelt was asked.

"I should call that a pretty good guess," was his reply.

Speaking of the prospects for Democratic victories in Western States, Mr. Roosevelt said that as he viewed the situation they were exceptionally fine.

"Coming through the West I had an opportunity to talk to a great many people," he said. "I am frankly pleased, not to say delighted, with what they told me regarding the outlook. Nevada, Utah, Colorado and Kansas we shall carry. The same is true with regard to Missouri."

Mr. Roosevelt said that on his way East he had traveled on two different trails and had come in contact with delegates from about twenty-five States who were returning from the Democratic convention.

"What they told me," Mr. Roosevelt said, "was that not merely a great majority of the delegates, but all except two or three came away from the convention with a very good taste in their mouths and prepared to take off their coats and work for the ticket. There was not a single kicker among those I met."

Crowd on Train Sees Third Rail Kill Boy of 4; Shout of Horror Saves Three Lads Beside Him

Ending their holiday by the sea, nearly 1,000 persons crowding a Brighton Beach train of the B. R. T. last night saw a four-year-old boy trip over the third rail and die instantly.

Scarcely had the hundreds seen the purple flash that followed the falling of the small form than three playmates of the dead boy stepped to the rail to lift him. They were saved from his fate, however, for, as they stooped to lift their chum, a chorus of screams and shouts came from the watching passengers. The boys stopped.

Intermittent rain had cut into the day's play schedule of Malcolm McCormack of 1,979 Homecrest Avenue, Sheepshead Bay, and when a period of clearness came along about 6 o'clock in the evening he and his brother, Robert McCormack, 5 years old, rounded up a couple of the "gang" and started out to make up for lost time. The four boys, playing tag, finally got down to a point near the Avenue U station of the B. R. T. A fence runs along the tracks at the station to prevent pedestrians from wandering out where they might be hit by passing trains.

The boys, intent on their game, respected the fence for a time, but discovering a door in it began to sally out on the green embankment between fence and tracks. They were having a "great" time when the warning blasts of the train from Coney Island were heard.

The lads paused, watching the crowded train come grinding to slower speed. Then they resumed their game. According to the stories told the police by passengers, Malcolm suddenly darted down the embankment, and before a warning could be given he fell across the highly-charged third rail. He died instantly.

Motorman Herman Meyers had witnessed the tragedy. He had joined in the warning shouts that prevented the other boys from touching the body of their playmate, and he and Emanuel Shrank, guard, were the first to reach the figure on the third rail. Despite Meyers's warnings the guard tried to pull the form from its position. As he touched the figure, however, he was thrown back and toppled over senseless. He was completely restored by the time the motorman, with rubber gloves, had pulled Malcolm's body from the rail.

The dead boy's father, Owen McCormack, automobile salesman, is a choir singer in St. Brendan's Roman Catholic Church, Brooklyn.

two or three referred to by Mr. Roosevelt.

"Well, Mr. Bryan sent me a very fine letter congratulating me upon my nomination," he replied.

Mr. Roosevelt said in reply to questions that he did not know what the attitude of Mr. Bryan would be in the campaign. During the pre-convention campaign, the Nebraskan spoke harshly of Governor Cox, whose candidacy he condemned on the ground that he was too "wet" to suit the rank and file of the party in the West.

There is a feeling among friends of the nominees tonight, however, that Mr. Bryan will be out in open support of the ticket before the campaign has gone far. It could not be learned positively, but it is believed that this feeling was based on some assurance, aside from the congratulatory message to Mr. Roosevelt.

At Glenwood Springs, Col., where Mr. Roosevelt broke his journey East and remained for a day, there was held what he characterized as the first political meeting in the Presidential campaign.

"It was not meant to be a political meeting," he said. "It was turned into one by the Mayor of Glenwood Springs, who, after everybody else had spoken, got up and said that though a lifelong Republican he would vote the Democratic ticket this year, because he was a strong believer in the League of Nations as a preventive of war, and felt that if the Republicans won there could be no real League, while if the Democrats won the League project would be realized with America entering wholeheartedly into the scheme."

"Do you regard the League of Nations as the dominant issue of the campaign?" was asked.

"Yes," Mr. Roosevelt said, with quiet emphasis.

"And you will treat it as such in your campaign speeches?"

"Undoubtedly," he replied.

"Do you believe that the Democratic Party's stand on that issue will take more strongly in the West than in the East?"

"I am not in a position to speak of the relative popularity of our attitude in the West and in the East," he replied. "I know that it will make a big hit in the West."

Hopes to See President Wilson.

"Do you expect to see President Wilson when you return to Washington and report developments at the convention to him?" was asked.

"I hope to see the President in Washington shortly," he replied.

Mr. Roosevelt told the correspondents that he expected to return to Ohio for the meeting of the Democratic National Committee to discuss campaign plans, which will be held in Dayton, a week from today. This prompted the question whether he would be likely to see the President before coming here and possibly bring some message from the White House to the party conclave. He said that he could not answer the question.

He will be due in Washington on Friday and, if he comes here, as he expects to do, unless the work of the Navy Department now devolving upon him, because Secretary Daniels is away on a cruise in Alaskan waters, should prevent him from doing so, he would have to leave Washington on Saturday.

"What do you know about the situation in New York?" Mr. Roosevelt was asked.

"I know very little, except that we expect to win," was his reply. "I understand that Al Smith is to be a candidate again, and this means that every New York Democrat will take off his coat and hustle for 'Al,' and for the ticket."

Mr. Roosevelt announced that he would retire from his position, as chief aide to Secretary Daniels, soon after the latter returns from Alaskan waters, which will be about August 1.

After being relieved from his departmental duties he expects to spend a few days with his family at Eastport, Maine, where he hopes to be in a position to prepare his speech of acceptance. The date for his notification has not been even tentatively fixed. Mr. Roosevelt said he hoped that the ceremony would be held at his home in Hyde Park, Dutchess County, N. Y.

Big Welcome at Home Today.

While here, Mr. Roosevelt received a telegram informing him that the express train on which he was to travel East would be stopped at Hyde Park, and that the home folk were preparing to welcome him with a neighborhood demonstration tomorrow afternoon. At night there will be a bigger welcome demonstration in Eastman Park, Poughkeepsie, under the auspices of the Dutchess County Democratic Committee. The telegram was signed jointly by T. J. Herrick, Chairman of the Democratic County Committee and Postmaster John E. Thompson of Hyde Park.

Mr. Roosevelt left for the East at 9:30 P. M. He said that after the ceremonies tomorrow he would return to his Hyde Park home and remain there with his mother over Wednesday. He will attend the Americus Cup races on Thursday in pursuance of plans made long ago before he expected to be the Democratic nominee for Vice President. Mr. Roosevelt will go down the bay on a destroyer and will take with him a party of wounded sailors and soldiers from the City Island Hospital, who will be under the care of Mrs. Lathrop Brown, wife of Congressman Brown, of the First New York district, during the day.

Except for an hour or so when they were at the State House, the two candidates spent the afternoon and early evening in seclusion, discussing details of their campaign at the Governor's mansion. Mrs. Cox had motored in from Trail's End to receive the visitors and do the honors.

Accommodating to Movie Men.

When the Governor and Mr. Roosevelt, accompanied by ex-Congressman Timothy T. Ansberry, Mr. Roosevelt's sponsor before the convention, arrived at the State House there was a small army of newspaper correspondents and motion picture and "still" photographers awaiting them in the parked grounds that surround the venerable, weather-beaten and impressive structure which for nearly three-quarters of a century has served as the seat of government for the Buckeye State.

It was not easy for the arriving notables to please the exacting cameramen. They asked the two candidates to go through every pace and assume every pose that suited their fancy, shouting instructions to the Chief Executive of Ohio and the Acting Secretary of the Navy as to how they should walk into the eye of the camera. The movie men wanted distant and "close up" views and admonished the two candidates to "act natural," just as if there were no audience and no photographers present.

Governor Cox and Mr. Roosevelt went through it all smilingly and were the scene of good nature. At one stage of the performance a photographer hurled this question at the Governor:—

"Heavens (or some word not exactly to that effect), can't you speak; you seemed to do well enough at noon? Talk or it will make a bum picture."

The Governor seemed at a loss momentarily for something to say. Then he half-turned to the crowd and, pointing to Mr. Roosevelt, who is regarded as handsome, exclaimed:

"He'll make a good looking Vice President, won't he?"

The crowd yelled its assent and applauded. One man shouted:

"Ohio is satisfied with him, that's enough!"

After some more instructions had been issued by the camera horde and the two candidates had complied with good nature one man who stood near the Governor said:

"Next thing they will ask you to do a shimmy."

Quick as a flash the Governor turned and said:

"We may do that, but there will be no hesitation in this campaign."

The pat utterance drew a big laugh from the crowd as with his running mate the Governor ascended the State House steps.

Trainmen Hail Governor.

Governor Cox arose at 5 o'clock this morning at his suburban home in Dayton in order to take the 6:30 train to Columbus. It was an ordinary accommodation train which carried no Pullmans and the Governor made the journey in the smoking car. He was accompanied by Judge Ansberry and a small party of newspaper men.

On the way scores of fellow travelers came up and offered felicitations. The Governor shook hands with all of them, and spent some time in conversation with "Bill" Gray, whom he presented to the newspaper men as the oldest Democratic wheel horse in Butler County, where the Governor was born.

"The county is normally 4,000 Democratic, but this year we will give you a majority of 10,000," Gray told the Governor.

At the railroad station here, a committee was on hand to welcome the Governor. On his way through the station he was stopped again and again by men and women who wanted to offer their congratulations and good wishes. The engineer, the conductor and the trainman all received handshakes from the Governor at the journey's end, and many other railroad men came up and congratulated him on his nomination. He was driven at once to the State House, where there was a crowd on hand to cheer and welcome him.

At noon the Governor addressed a meeting of the Franklin County Democratic Committee, making his first political speech since the nomination. He spoke from the State House steps.

The audience numbered about a thousand, and it was very responsive. There was no mistaking the spontaneity of the applause that from time to time compelled Governor Cox to pause in the course of his impromptu address. He was presented to the crowd by Former Assistant United States District Attorney Forest F. Smith, who is the Democratic County Chairman.

Governor Cox said in part:

"When I first met you here many years ago, you gave me the greeting of confidence as we faced the responsibility of bringing into the life of Ohio the new day that had been made possible by the adoption of a new Constitution. Now you assemble here in response to a thought or suggestion that I leave the State and go to reside in Washington. I think you will agree with me that there appears to be some conflict in that.

"Yet, I believe that I can sense what is in your minds. You have come here to put the stamp of your approval upon what the Democracy of the nation did at San Francisco. Boys, the fight out there is just the kind of a fight that the Democracy likes, and we in Ohio are used to, and I wish to give you the assurance that we will give our opponents the same kind of a fight this Fall.

"We have the cause with which we can win. Thank God, it needs no defense anywhere."

"And we have the men with whom to win!" cried a man in the audience. The crowd applauded.

"Every sentiment making up the declaration of our party is in itself sufficient to construct a winning shibboleth for this campaign," the Governor said.

Attention had been called by County Chairman Smith to the fact that those who had assembled at the foot of the State House steps were for the most part party precinct workers.

"I wonder," said the Governor, referring to this, "whether the lay mind has adequate realization of the responsibility of the men who in such a contest have to bear the brunt of the fighting in the front line trenches. I recognize that it is not the State Chairman, nor the County Chairman, nor the Ward Chairman who lives with the people. It is the precinct worker who faces for days and months the voter to whom he gave his assurance when the contest began.

Declares He Has Kept Pledges.

"I am proud," the Governor went on, raising his voice as he warmed to his subject, "to look you workers in the face and remind you and myself as well that I have never broken pledge or covenant with the people of this commonwealth."

At this there was cheering and applause. The Governor went on:

"Need I remind you that in January, 1913, I said in this very place that every mandate of the people must be carried into effect by the General Assembly, and they were. I also said that our platform was a promissory note and must be paid, every cent of it, and every cent was paid.

"Do I need to remind you boys in the trenches of the doubts and misgivings that were expressed at that time by those who predicted that if I carried my program into effect it would mean that we would lose the State by 100,000 in the next election? You remember my response, 'but we shall not lose our self-respect nor the confidence of those who placed the responsibility of a trying hour on our shoulders.'

"We were not beaten by 100,000, but by 20,000. Yet, that seeming defeat was the very foundation upon which this happy ceremony today is builded.

"The Almighty does not at any time take us into His confidence. He has given us instead a conscience and we have attempted to be guided by that conscience of His bestowal.

"We have been rewarded with victory in Ohio because we have stood for and done the things in which we believed and we will do precisely the same thing in the affairs of the nation.

Has Faith in Victory.

"It is you who have made it all possible. I trust you will not mistake the spirit that is within me, when I say that I have something more than a strong belief, something that amounts to deepest conviction, that the new order, the new day with its guarantee of continued progressive government, will be adopted by the people and that the election of Mr. Roosevelt and myself will be but an expression of the people's belief that their well being lies in the golden dawn of a tomorrow, not in the twilight of yesterday.

"I say to you that I shall continue to face the sunrise, never the sunset. That shall be my continued purpose. Then when I hand back the standard which you shall have consigned to my keeping I give you my word that it will be as clean as I will give back the standard of this commonwealth in January, 1921.

"I have made mistakes because I have not been willing to wait for the lights of tomorrow to direct me, when I was imperatively obliged to act in some great emergency. A hundred million times more would I keep moving and make human mistakes in an emergency than be guilty of inaction as the result of timidity or cowardice.

"I stand here in humble realization of the meaning and importance of what is before me, but with your confidence and God's help we will do the best we can."

Babies Brought to Him at Reception.

After the speech Governor Cox descended the Capitol steps and held a reception. Men and women were lined up and kept moving past him for an hour as he shook them by the hand and conversed with some. It was noticed that he addressed most of them familiarly by their first names as persons whom he had known for years. It was "Tom" and "Jim" and "Larry" and "Bill" and so on.

Some women brought up babies for the Governor to kiss, as is the custom with candidates, but he did not kiss them. The Governor seemed to listen with as much interest to the half inarticulate gurgles that came from baby lips as to the words that fell from the lips of their elders. He chucked them fondly under the chin and said "Goo goo" to some, thinking perhaps of the little baby girl in its tiny crib at Trail's End, but not one did he kiss.

A 10-year-old boy, who was presented to him by a fond mother as a youngster who already was showing an interest in politics, arrested the Governor's interest. He patted his head and urged him to keep on being interested.

"You're ten," he said. "In 1880, when I was your age they held the first Presidential convention I can recall. I can remember they had a parade and they were hauling a gun behind the line of march, and I fell in behind the gun because some one who thought it was a good joke instructed me to watch that gun and see that the other gang did not spike it. Keep up your interest in politics and in that spirit, and when you grow up and run for President I will vote for you."

Receives "Prophetic" Egg.

Governor Cox today received as a present an egg that was laid by a hen in Portsmouth, Ohio, which the folk in that vicinity now believe must have been endowed with prophecy or second sight. The egg near its apex bears a raised letter "C," which R. R. Crawford, who took it into the Governor's office, says was on it when it was laid. It was produced on the Saturday before Governor Cox was nominated in San Francisco.

To the Governor's collection of autographs was added the original of an editorial written by Henry Watterson for The Louisville Courier-Journal soon after the nomination of Cox under the caption, "The Unbeatable Cox." The autographed original was sent to the Governor by Wallace T. Hughes, Vice President of The Louisville Courier Company, with the explanation that it had been sent in by Colonel Watterson, who had written very little of late, from his home at Jeffersontown, Jefferson County, Ky.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman of New York stopped off at Columbus on her way East from San Francisco and called on Governor Cox in the afternoon. They had a long talk. The Governor tonight pronounced the visit only a courtesy call, but expressed the opinion that Mrs. Harriman, who was active in the 1912 and 1916 campaigns and has quite a following among women voters in New York, would support the Democratic candidates actively in the present campaign.

Gov. Cox's Manager Ill.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 12 (Associated Press).—Governor Cox this afternoon received a telegram from San Francisco from Wilbur M. Marsh, Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, stating that E. H. Moore of Youngstown, Ohio, the Governor's pre-convention manager, was seriously ill in a hospital there from a nervous reaction. The message stated that he was under a nurse's care and that no one was permitted to see him. It added, however, that there was no occasion for alarm. The Governor immediately sent a message of sympathy expressing the hope that his manager would be able to be out soon.

Running through a stack of telegrams and letters on his desk, the Governor announced the receipt of a four-leaf clover sent by James H. Cox, of New Lebanon, N. Y., who said it was picked from the lawn of Samuel J. Tilden, at New Lebanon, Tilden's birthplace. He also received a letter of congratulations and best wishes from Sam Small, the Southern Evangelist.

The Governor announced he would hold conferences twice daily with newspaper men at 10:30 and 3:30.

HARDING TO BE GUEST HERE.

New York Women to Entertain Senator and Wife.

The Republican and Democratic platforms were discussed yesterday by the Republican Women's State Executive Committee at the Hotel Vanderbilt. About 100 members and guests were present. Mrs. Rosalie Loew Whitney and A. Parker Nevin explained the platforms.

It was stated that plans for the reception of Senator and Mrs. Warren G. Harding, as guests of the Republican women, would be announced as soon as definite word is received from the nominee as to when he expected to be here. The Senator has accepted the women's invitation, according to Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore, Chairman of the Executive Committee.

Mr. Nevin dwelt on the industrial relations planks in the platforms and pointed out what he considered the superior features of the Republican offering. The plank in the Democratic platform he characterized as "a Democratic vote-getting proposal," drafted "to capture the unthinking voter." The Republicans, he said, have no apologies to offer for their plank, for the speaker thought that every situation had been covered by the framers in "a careful, intelligent and laudable manner."

Mrs. Whitney said the Democrats started their platform with "grandiloquent phrases" and averred that the entire document was made up of phrases which meant little to the average voter. On the other hand, said Mrs. Whitney, the Republican platform "gets right down to business and it was drafted and worded so that every citizen understands its meaning fully." Her statement in connection with the war, that it had been won "by Americans and not by Democrats," was heartily applauded. She referred to the President as being "too proud to fight" and condemned the legislator who said that conscripts and convicts were alike.

"During the war," she said, "no Republicans sought any glory for the part they played. President Wilson invited hundreds of them to Washington to talk over the situation, but at no time was any publicity given to these conferences by the Administration's Publicity Bureau. Neither was capital made of these meetings by the Republican Party. At no time during the war was the late Colonel Roosevelt or General Leonard Wood invited to Washington for the purpose of consultation."

'DIRT FARMER' IDEA GOOD, SAYS HARDING

CONFERENCE ON RAILROADS

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, July 12.—Breaking the silence on campaign matters which he had maintained since his nomination, Senator Warren G. Harding expressed gratification today that Governor Cox has announced himself in favor of a "real dirt farmer" as Secretary of Agriture.

For sixteen years, under three Republican Presidents, Senator Harding pointed out, James Wilson of Iowa "a real farmer," served as Secretary of Agriculture.

His Democratic opponent's call for a "real dirt farmer," the Republican nominee held, was an "early recognition of at least one mistake of Democratic administration," and a purpose "to correct it by returning to Republican methods."

Governor Cox never has received a great rural vote in his Ohio campaigns, and as his plea for a real farmer as Secretary of Agriculture is construed as a bid for the farmer vote, there was much speculation here today as to its probable effect upon administration followers and farmer supporters of Secretary Meredith.

Senator Harding's reply to Governor Cox's call for a farmer head of the Department of Agriculture was made in the following statement, issued today:

"I note that the Democratic candidate announces as one of the first reforms he has in mind, to appoint a 'real dirt farmer' as Secretary of Agriculture. That is a reform that the Republican Party does not need to adopt. For sixteen years, under three Republican administrations, we had a real farmer from a real farm as Secretary of Agriculture, James Wilson of Iowa, who made the department the greatest of its sort in the world. He ran it for the farmers, made it an instrument to fight for the farmers and to serve them in a thousand ways.

"When the Democrats came into power they brought a university President as Secretary of Agriculture, and after him a publisher. The Democratic Party certainly needs to be reformed in this regard. The Republican Party certainly does not. As in the past, the Republican Party will go on developing the department for the service of real farms and real farmers.

"The truth is that if the great Department of Agriculture that Jim Wilson built up under McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft, had been maintained and carried forward under the old Republican ideals of practical usefulness, half our problem of high cost of living would have been solved for us in advance.

"It is gratifying to see this early recognition of at least one mistake of Democratic administration, and purpose to correct it by returning to Republican methods. A lot of others will be found that can best be corrected in the same way, and when the country comes to pass on the program it will decide to apply the Republican method of correction directly through a Republican administration."

Talks Transportation with Cummins.

Beginning with Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, and ending with Colonel Raymond Robins, Senator Harding held a number of important conferences today. It is expected that from now until the end of the week the Senator will deny himself to all callers and concentrate upon his speech of acceptance.

Mr. Harding frequently has spoken of the numerous interruptions during the past week that have given him little time to work consecutively on his speech. While he has made an outline, and has declared that it will be the shortest acceptance speech on record, it is understood that the Republican nominee has completed little over half his speech, and so far as can be learned, no engagements for political conferences have been made for the rest of the week.

Senator Cummins came to Marion last evening, at the request of Senator Harding, to talk over the great transportation problems confronting the country. He declared today that the Republican Presidential nominee was one of the most progressive men of the country on the important questions which face the nation and will face it in the next ten or twenty years.

"I have been closely connected with Senator Harding officially and socially," said Senator Cummins. "I probably have had as good an opportunity to know his general view of things as any other man. I think that he grasps the real problems that we have to deal with as well as, if not more comprehensively than, any other man of my acquaintance. His outlook is all forward and not backward. With respect to all the questions that will interest us in the next decade or two, he is as progressive as any man in the country, bar none."

Senator Cummins said he discussed the railroad and transportation problems with Senator Harding, and he had discussed them also with him many times before. Expressing his views on the Railroad bill and the country's transportation problems, Senator Cummins said that every day furnished a further indication of the value of the Esch-Cummins railroad law. Emphasizing the gravity of the railroad situation and the need for wise handling of the railroad problem, Senator Cummins said:

"The inability of the railroads to do the business of the country is costing the country every day more than the German war cost the people any day."

The Iowa Senator referred to the fact that in Iowa the moving of enormous amounts of grain and vast numbers of food animals had been blocked by lack of adequate railway facilities and service.

Progressive Leaders in Conference.

Colonel Raymond Robins, Chairman of the 1916 Progressive National Convention, and one of Senator Hiram Johnson's supporters in the Republican pre-convention campaign this year, conferred with Senator Harding for nearly five hours today. Accompanied by Walter Brown of Toledo, one of the three candidates for the Republican nomination for United States Senator to succeed Mr. Harding, Colonel Robins arrived at the Harding headquarters at noon, remained for luncheon and, after another conference, received with Senator Harding the newspaper correspondents at 4 o'clock.

The former Progressive leader said that he had not discussed the Russian situation or foreign affairs with Senator Harding, adding that their conference had been limited to "matters of labor and progressive legislation generally."

"Senator Harding has his own views and I have mine," Colonel Robins said, "but we find that in the fundamentals of this situation we are in substantial agreement. I have had a very satisfactory conference with the Senator. I think that the supporters of Senator Johnson in his pre-convention campaign, myself included, will be active supporters of the Republican policies and ticket in the Presidential campaign."

Have you made any arrangements to go on the stump for the Republican Party," Colonel Robins was asked.

He hesitated, looked at Senator Harding, and then laughed, "well I haven't been asked yet."

"How about that, Senator," some one asked Mr. Harding.

Senator Harding looked toward Colonel Robins with a smile and said: "I am sure that we will all be very happy to have Colonel Raymond Robins actively in all lines of the campaign."

Colonel Robins was asked for his opinion as to labor's attitude toward the Republican Party. "I have talked with a number of labor leaders," he answered. "Some of them, as you know, have come out for the Democratic ticket. Others are Republicans, but I find a number who are more willing to withhold their judgment until after Senator Harding's speech of acceptance.

"Any man's claim to be able to deliver the labor vote is childish. It can't be done. Moreover, in the past it has never been possible to deliver trade unionism as a group for any one of anything."

Another of Senator Harding's visitors was Mr. Bonnell, publisher of the Duluth, Minn., News-Tribune, who called to offer his congratulations and promise his support.

"The political situation in Minnesota on the whole is favorable to the Republicans this Fall," Mr. Bonwell said. "Of course, we have the non-Partisan League in our State, but this movement is a State affair and will have no effect upon the Presidential contests. As for the Third Party movement in my State, I think it will have little effect upon the result. The Third Party may possibly make small inroads upon the Republicans in the rural districts of the State, but this will have a corresponding offset by drawing to the new party Democratic votes in the cities."

John R. Rathom and C. O. Metcalf of The Providence Journal, were with Senator Harding for a short while this morning. Their call was merely a personal one, Mr. Rathom said, to pay their respects to the Republican Presidential nominee.

"What do you think of the front porch campaign," Mr. Rathom was asked.

"A good show window in a small town," Mr. Rathom replied, "is better than a soap box show on street corners all over the country. I don't think the campaign should get under way before the last week in October, but once it starts, it should be conducted in whirlwind fashion."

Just before Mr. Brown arrived at the Harding headquarters with Colonel Robins, Judge R. M. Wanamaker of Akron, Ohio, spent a few minutes with the Senator, together with Mr. Brown and former Governor Willis, who placed Senator Harding's name before the Chicago convention. Judge Wanamaker is a candidate in the Ohio primaries for the nomination for United States Senator.

L. J. Tabor of Bannersville, O., master of the Ohio State Grange, was in conference with Senator Harding this morning, and said he found that the Republican nominee was giving keen attention to the agricultural and food problems facing the country, and that he had a keen realization of them.

"The problem of agriculture and an adequate food supply for the nation," said Mr. Tabor, "is one of the biggest problems confronting the republic. It was inspiring to find that Senator Harding is keenly alive to the importance of a proper recognition of agriculture and realizes the necessity of agriculture properly functioning if the nation is to enjoy enduring prosperity and tranquillity. I feel confident that Senator Harding's utterances on rural questions will appeal to the rural thought of the nation.

"Organized agriculture is never political, but the American farmer has felt that he has not received a square deal in recent years. The farmer is thinking for himself and will give his support to the candidate whose utterances and record give promise for the best development of rural life.

"The high cost of living," Mr. Tabor said, "as it is affected by transportation and as agriculture bears on it, was discussed."

KENYON FOR HARDING.

Comes Out Finally for the Republican Ticket.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Senator Kenyon of Iowa, a progressive, said this afternoon that he would support the Harding-Coolidge ticket.

This is the first time the Senator has aligned himself squarely behind the nominees. After the Chicago convention Senator Kenyon made a statement at his home, showing that he was none too well pleased with the selection by the Republicans. He has declared himself frequently as against reaction in his or any other party.

"I can't stand pussy-footing no matter whether it's in my party or in any other," he remarked.

ARRANGE FOR NOTIFICATION.

Northampton Citizens Plan Ceremonies for Coolidge.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 12.—The Chamber of Commerce today appointed a committee of 100 prominent citizens to have charge of the arrangements for the notification of Governor Calvin Coolidge of his nomination for Vice President by the Republican convention.

The committee, which was appointed at the request of J. Henry Roraback of Hartford, Conn., member of the Republican National Committee, will meet tomorrow night to plan details of the affair, which will take place on Allen Field, Smith College, July 27.

WOOD INDORSES PARTY NOMINEES

Understands Progressives Are to Have Full Representation in Campaign.

CONFERRED WITH HARDING

Says Republican Program Must Be Constructive, Clean Cut and Forward Looking to Win.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Major Gen. Leonard Wood returned to Chicago today from Marion, Ohio, where he went on invitation of Senator Harding, conveyed through Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, for a conference on the political situation. Immediately on reaching this city General Wood issued a statement defining his position and emphasizing the fact that as a Republican he heartily indorsed the nominees of the party. The statement follows:

"I am a Republican and as a Republican I heartily indorse the nominees of the party, understanding that the progressive elements of the party are to be brought into the campaign and given full representation and participation. The party can win through united effort and such clear and explicit declaration of program as will bring the large, independent vote to its active support. We cannot win by destructive criticisms. Its policy must be clean-cut, forward-looking and constructive; one which, while recognizing America's responsibilities as the leading nation of the world, will guarantee her freedom from foreign control and class domination; one which will complete the enfranchisement of women; which will stand against all forces and influences tending to break down the morality, the physical well-being or the solidarity of our people.

"It must be a policy which will strive for a speedy return to a peace basis, to a Government under the Constitution, for economy, efficiency, revision of war taxation; for a strong, but conservative foreign policy, a policy which will protect American lives and rights abroad; for the building up and protection of our agriculture and industries; for industrial justice based upon the square, human handling of the issues between labor and capital, remembering that labor is neither a commodity nor a chattel.

"It must be for the improvement of public education; for a highly efficient army and navy, always ready, the product of a truly American policy of national defense; for the building up of a merchant marine and a sound foreign commercial policy; for the careful supervision of our immigration, and the systematic Americanization of those who are accepted; for the strengthening of the sense of citizenship obligation at all times, and the adherence to those fundamental principles and policies on which the stability and permanency of our Government depends.

"In short, a Government of the people under a clean-cut, progressive policy, meeting and dealing with the great issues of the present frankly and courageously, with a view to solving rather than avoiding them."

special legislative session had been awaited in national political and in suffrage circles with keen interest since his recent conference at Washington with Senator Harding, Republican nominee for the Presidency. It was understood that Senator Harding had urged the Governor to make it possible for Vermont, a Republican State, to ratify the woman suffrage amendment by calling into session a Legislature known to favor the amendment.

Text of Governor's Objections.

In the course of the proclamation the Governor said:

"The provisions for changes in the Federal Constitution, to which we Vermonters are loyal subscribers, are in conflict with those laid down in the Constitution of Vermont. The Federal Constitution provides that proposals for change therein shall, if favorable action is taken thereon by the Congress, be submitted to the Legislatures of the several States for their action, and the Supreme Court of the United States has in a recent decision, Hawke vs. Smith, June 1st, 1920, declared:

"'The referendum provisions of State Constitutions and statutes cannot be applied, consistently with the Constitution of the United States, in the ratification or rejection of amendments to it.'

"This decision leaves the people at the mercy of any group of men, who may lobby a proposal for a change in the Federal Constitution through Congress and then through the Legislatures of the States.

"In the face of this situation, I am asked to call the Legislature of Vermont into extraordinary session, not for the purpose of debating, considering, deliberating on the question at issue, but with a majority of its members pledged beforehand and in private, as I understand it, to ratify the proposed amendment.

"If the people of Vermont, in accepting a place in the Union of States, inadvertently lost in whole or in part the right of self-government and conferred it on a Legislature, there is all the more reason why a Legislature should not pass upon a question which has arisen since their election, and upon which their constituents have had no opportunity to express themselves. * * *

"We must now either remodel our Constitution to conform with the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, or the Constitution of the United States must be amended to provide for a referendum to the freemen of the several States before amendments to that Constitution become effective. As it stands and is interpreted by the Supreme Court today, the Federal Constitution threatens the foundation of free popular government."

MILITANTS BLAME HARDING.

Think He Knew Clement Would Refuse to Call Special Session.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Governor Clement's refusal to call a special session of the Vermont Legislature for the ratification of the Federal Suffrage Amendment caused chagrin and surprise among Republicans here today. They had expected the Governor to accede to the recent request of Senator Harding and issue the call for an extra session. One of Senator Harding's closest friends in the Senate and in private life said this afternoon that, after his conference with Governor Clement two weeks ago in Washington, Senator Harding confidently believed that the Governor would summon the Vermont Legislature.

Miss Alice Paul, Chairman of the National Woman's Party, issued a statement this afternoon putting responsibility for the situation directly upon the Republican Party, and asserting that Senator Harding was committed by the Republican platform to indorsement of suffrage. At the same time Miss Paul announced that a "larger delegation than ever" of suffrage leaders would visit Senator Harding on July 22. This is the day set for the formal notification to him of his nomination at Chicago. The Senator recently announced that he would meet suffrage leaders on that day.

"No refusal of Governor Clement of Vermont to permit the Legislature of his State to act on the Suffrage Amendment can be accepted as final when it is in direct opposition to the stand of his party and to the pledge of that party's candidate for the Presidency," said Miss Paul. "The Republicans have still the responsibility of finding a way to secure Governor Clement's support as well as the support of the Republican Governor of Connecticut for the party platform."

Prominent suffragists here have been speaking rather derogatorily of Senator Harding lately. One of the most noted officials in the militant organization said a few days ago that she was convinced, when Senator Harding set July 22 as the date on which to meet the women leaders, that hope of Governor Clement's calling the Vermont Legislature was gone.

"If Senator Harding had known Governor Clement was going to call the session he would have set an earlier date than July 22," said this leader. "I believe in his speech of acceptance he will take the position that in asking Governor Clement to call the session he has done his best. That, you know, would be a fine way to pass the buck."

The comparison made several days ago by the suffragists of Senator Harding's and Governor Cox's records on suffrage showed the Senator was regarded by them as being tepid on the subject and the Democratic nominee willing and enthusiastic. In a statement last week Miss Paul broadly insinuated that the expected suffrage to be finally ratified by a Democratic rather than a Republican Legislature. However, the suffragists are suspicious of both parties, and the fact that the Tennessee and North Carolina Legislatures have not been called to meet until August, too late for the primaries in several States, has created sarcastic comment among the militants.

The delegation of suffragists which will visit Senator Harding on July 22 will probably leave a number of experienced and war-tried pickets in Marion. These pickets will remain for some time, perhaps until the November elections, unless the Legislature of some State ratifies the Suffrage Amendment.

Legal proceedings highly important to the cause of suffrage will be taken tomorrow in the District of Columbia Supreme Court. The court will hear an application for an injunction restraining women from exercising suffrage under the Federal amendment. The court's decision may settle whether 21,000,000 will be able to vote for the next President in November.

If the court grants the injunction, woman suffrage leaders here concede that there is practically no hope of having the injunction set aside in time for women to vote in the November election.

Of course, not all of the 21,000,000 American women of voting age would be barred from casting ballots by the issuing of an injunction. Probably 11,000,000 of the 21,000,000 live in States which have woman suffrage under State laws. But the 10,000,000 women who live in States which have not given Presidential suffrage by State statutes would lose the right to vote this Fall.

Suffragists here say they are confident that the court will not grant the injunction. The full power of the Federal Government will resist the issuance of such a restraining order. Some of the best attorneys in the Department of Justice will appear in court to argue against the proposed injunction. After consultation with Acting Attorney General Frierson of the Department of Justice, the National Woman's Party stated tonight that assurance had been received from the Department of Justice that there was little to be feared from the application for the injunction.

The application for the injunction names Secretary Colby and Attorney General Palmer. The applicants for the injunction would restrain Secretary Colby from declaring the Federal amendment ratified by the required three-fourths of the States in case another Legislature, making the thirty-sixth, should ratify the amendment before November. It also would restrict Attorney General Palmer from enforcing the amendment.

HARDING DISAPPOINTED.

Says He Had Hoped Clement Would Convene Vermont Legislature.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, July 12.—When informed this afternoon that Governor Clement had refused to call a special session of the Vermont Legislature to act upon the Federal Suffrage amendment, Senator Warren G. Harding's only comment was:

"I had hoped that Governor Clement would convene the Vermont Legislature."

The Vermont Governor conferred with Senator Harding in Washington nearly two weeks ago, and the general impression at the time was that the Republican nominee had endeavored to convince Governor Clement of the political expediency of a Republican Legislature having the credit of casting the last required vote for the ratification of the Federal Suffrage Amendment.

It was Senator Harding's position that, as a Republican Presidential nominee not yet formally notified of his nomination, it would not be becoming for him to make a public appeal for the ratification of suffrage. In receiving delegations of woman suffragists in Washington the Senator had expressed his sympathy with the suffrage cause and pointed to his record in the Senate, where he voted in favor of the constitutional amendment.

WOMEN BUSY IN TENNESSEE.

Vermont Setback Stirs Suffragists to Greater Activity.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 12.—The refusal today of Governor Clement of Vermont to call a special session of the Legislature to act on the Federal suffrage amendment caused supporters of the proposal to redouble their efforts to obtain favorable action by the Tennessee General Assembly.

Although Governor Roberts has announced that he will convene the Legislature on Aug. 9, he has not yet issued a formal call for the session. He has explained that he is waiting for members of the Assembly to notify him of additional legislation they wish included in the call, which must be issued at least twenty days before the date of assembling.

The House is generally considered to be for ratification of the suffrage amendment by a safe margin, while the Senate is regarded as close. The State suffrage law, enacted in 1919, passed the House by a majority of twenty and the Senate by a one-vote margin.

Several members of the Senate have since resigned, while some who opposed the State Rights bill now are said to favor ratification of the Federal amendment, and several others who voted for the State bill are reported to be hostile to Federal enfranchisement of women.

PENSACOLA, Fla., July 12.—Governor Catts has refused to call a special session of the Florida Legislature to take action on the Federal woman suffrage amendment, according to an announcement made by local suffrage leaders tonight. They said the Governor felt that such action would be useless.

"SINISTER," SAYS MRS. CATT.

Suffrage Leader Hints at Something Behind Clement's Refusal.

The action of Governor Clement of Vermont in refusing to call a special session of the Vermont Legislature to ratify the Federal Suffrage Amendment drew condemnation from local women leaders yesterday—condemnation, however, which appeared to be aimed at the Republican Party chiefs rather than at the Vermont Governor.

It was said at the suffrage headquarters that a meeting would be held today, and that a direct appeal, by wire or otherwise, might be made to Senator Harding to exert his leadership in behalf of giving women the vote.

"If correctly quoted," said Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, "the decision of Governor Clement is so contrary to the dictates of justice, of common sense and expediency that it convinces me that there is a sinister and far-reaching influence behind it. To uncover that influence and spread it on the record is one of the immediate tasks of suffragists. The work of ratification will be pushed straight forward in Tennessee and North Carolina."

Miss Rose Young, another officer of the women's national non-partisan suffrage organization, said:

"It seems to be nothing less than a repudiation of Senator Harding's leadership," a comment called forth by the fact that Governor Clement recently conferred with Senator Harding in Washington, and the impression had been allowed to go forth that the Republican nominee had urged the Vermont Governor to further the suffrage cause.

RULING AIDS STATE AT TRIAL OF LLOYD

Activities of Alleged Bolsheviki Before Illinois Sedition Law Passed Admitted as Evidence.

REVOLT PLOT IS CHARGED

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—The State gained what is regarded as an important victory when, at the opening trial of William Bross Lloyd, millionaire member of the Communist Labor Party, and thirty-seven other alleged officers of the organization here today, Judge Hebel ruled that activities of the defendants prior to the passage of the Illinois sedition law could be utilized as evidence.

The trial got under way after two months spent in selecting a jury. In his opening argument, Assistant State's Attorney Lloyd Heth told the jury that it was the intention of the defendants to tear down the Stars and Stripes, raise the Red flag as a national emblem, annihilate the American Government and establish a dictatorship of the proletariat." Laboring men were urged to dynamite the banks and arsenals to get money and arms with which to carry on the fight for a Soviet system of government, he charged.

The majority of the members of the regular Socialist Party had become dissatisfied with the slow progress in bringing about Socialism by means of the ballot box, and wished to affiliate with the third internationale of Moscow, Russia, and persuade that party to commit itself to the overthrow of the Government by force and violence, the prosecutor charged.

He related the story of their unsuccessful attempt to convert the leaders of the Socialist Party and their withdrawal from the party at the convention in New York on June 21, 1919, wherein they became known as the "left wing."

"The defendant, William Bross Lloyd, was a delegate to that convention," Mr. Heth said, "and was elected its permanent Chairman and contributed $650 to its expenses.

"We are going to show that a document was drawn up and adopted known as the 'Left Wing Manifesto.' We are going to offer that manifesto in evidence. We will show that it urges the unskilled laborer to start a revolution; that its aim is to stir up the passions and hatred of that class; that it tells the laboring man he should hate his government, because capitalism and democracy are the same and all that is done for him is to coerce and supress him; and that it tells the laborer to hate and destroy his employer because he is a murderous master."

Several witnesses testified to being present at the left wing conference in New York when the Moscow manifesto was adopted and the "revolutionary age" was born.

Mr. Cummerow then told of the convention which opened in Chicago on Sept. 1 and ended Oct. 5, all the meetings of which opened and closed with the singing of the "Red Flag," and the following Bolshevik yell:

Bolshevik, Bolshevik, Bolshevik, bang!
We are members of the Gene Debs gang,
Are we rebels? I should smile.
We're with the Soviets all the while.

The meeting will now come to order.

Lloyd was elected permanent Sergeant at Arms. Among those present was John Reed, former New York newspaper man, who never has been apprehended.

Among the defendants in court today were Ludwig G. Lore of New York and Edwin Firth of Indianapolis.

PUTS CURB ON JITNEYS.

Bridgeport Council Bars Them from the Main Streets.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Tuesday, July 13.—The Common Council adopted an ordinance at 1:30 o'clock this morning, prohibiting jitney buses from using the central streets of the city, and outlining new routes for the buses. The vote was 15 to 7, and came at the end of a six-hour session.

It is believed that the ordinance will cause the Connecticut company to withdraw its order for suspension of trolley service in this city on Thursday.

then turned the weapon upon himself was received as almost incredible.

Geissler, who is 33 years old, lives at 201 West Eighty-fourth Street, where his wife is employed. They have no children. Mrs. Geissler, informed of the affair by THE TIMES early this morning, was prostrated. She declared that since her husband left for Connecticut she had received only one letter, this coming on Sunday, and being merely a short missive.

At his suite in the Hotel Plaza it was said that Cyril de Cordova, brother-in-law of the slain woman, informed of the shooting, had left to get in touch with other members of the family. His wife, Mrs. Cyril de Cordova, told THE TIMES:

"I knew that Arthur and his wife had gone up into Connecticut, but I had not been in communication with them since they left. I really know nothing as yet concerning this report. In fact we were informed merely that Mrs. de Cordova had met with some sort of an accident. I do not know her maiden name, nor how long they have been married. In fact, I am a newcomer in the family myself and know little about the other members."

O'Connor E. de Cordova, of 243 West 102d Street, Vice President of the New York Consolidated Exchange and member of the Board of Governors, a broker with an office at 45 Beaver Street, is a cousin of Arthur de Cordova. He was asked early this morning if he could shed any light on the tragedy, and replied that he did not know Mrs. de Cordova and that he knew nothing of the occurrence or of anything that might have led to it.

REPUBLICANS TO LAY CONVENTION PLANS

State Executive Committee Will Meet Here Today to Choose Permanent Chairman.

CLAIM STRENGTH FOR HUGO

Local Adherents Report That Support for the Secretary of State Is Growing.

The permanent Chairman for the unofficial Republican State Convention, set for July 27 at Saratoga, will be chosen today at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee to be held at 2:30 o'clock in headquarters, 43 West Thirty-ninth Street.

Final plans for the gathering at Saratoga will be gone over and, it was said yesterday, confirmation will be made of the appointment of Henry L. Sage of Albany and John Lord O'Brian of Buffalo as members of the Resolutions Committee.

According to those locally active in furthering the aspirations of Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo as the Republican State standard bearer, his candidacy is being well received. His leaders declared that petitions already turned into his headquarters bore the names of more than 20,000 voters who had expressed a preference for his nomination. The campaign managers predicted that before the convention acts well beyond 100,000 names of voters backing Hugo would be compiled.

The Hugo supporters declared that the petition campaign had disclosed the State Secretary, admittedly strong in the rural districts, as displaying surprising strength in the cities, especially in New York.

Suffolk County, his managers announced, was the latest to indorse Hugo, giving an additional eighteen delegates to the convention. In addition to seven New York City Assembly Districts already recorded for him, they pointed out, he had been indorsed by a number of counties, including Jefferson, Madison and Schenectady. The Hugo campaigners reported that a number of business men, ordinarily outside active politics, had offered their services in his drive to capture the nomination.

COX THANKS DEMOCRATS.

"Hard Fight Ahead," He Writes Club, "but I Will Not Fail in It."

John M. Riehle, President,
National Democratic Club,
New York City.

It gives me great pleasure to acknowledge the greeting from the National Democratic Club of the City of New York, and I feel that with your help given as freely as was given in San Francisco victory is assured. We have a hard fight ahead of us, but I pledge you I will not fail in it. With every good wish I am

Very truly yours,
JAMES M. COX.

President Riehle also announced that an active Campaign Committee was being organized by the National Democratic Club in the interest of Cox and Roosevelt.

COAL ULTIMATUM GIVEN TO GERMANS

view to defining the details and exact scope of the German plan.

"This mixed commission will begin its meetings tomorrow in order to submit a report to the conference with the least possible delay.

"The text of the coal protocol, drafted yesterday after the experts' discussion, was communicated to the German delegates. Proposals regarding the monthly tonnage of coal deliveries were exchanged without result, and it was declared that in these circumstances the figures fixed by the Reparations Commission were adhered to. The Germans announced that they would reconsider the question and give their reply at a later meeting.

"The Allies spontaneously announced that in view of the information given concerning the undernourishment of mine workers, they were prepared to study the question of improvement in their food position and asked the German delegation to submit practical suggestions to that end."

KEEPS CONFERENCE GOING.

Premier Lloyd George Determined to Exhaust Its Possibilities.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SPA, July 12 (by Telephone to Paris and thence by Cable.)—It is due only to the dogged determination of Premier Lloyd George that the Spa Conference was not ended tonight.

He has made up his mind to exhaust at Spa the possibilities of reaching a diplomatic agreement with Germany. It is his idea that the allied statesmen might as well fight out the argument with the Germans here and now as later, and it is his opinion that the Germans should not be allowed to leave Spa able to say that their reparations plan presented last night had not been considered.

Therefore the British Premier made a personal appeal to Premier Millerand this morning not to leave and the conference is now scheduled to last until Friday.

This was decided in the hope of reaching a settlement of the economic questions. Millerand's special train was waiting to take him back to Paris to assist in the Fourteenth of July celebrations, but the departure was countermanded in view of the important interests at stake here.

The new procedure is established as follows: The German reparations plan is to be handed over to a committee of experts who will make a report thereon to the Allies' Premiers, section by section. From the Allies' standpoint the German project has the basic fault of being indefinite, especially as concerns any mention of the sums to be paid.

The Germans have worked out an elaborate system of payment in goods without saying a word about the cash value or making any allusion to subsequent payments in gold or its equivalent. It is expected that when the Allies have thoroughly investigated the German proposal they will set a minimum figure below which the German payment must not fall. It will then be for them to get the Germans to agree to this figure. While so far no definite sum has been mentioned, it is understood that the Allies propose an indemnity total of £6,000,000,000 as the utmost they will be able to pay in the most favorable circumstances. The Germans are elated over the decision to extend the conference.

The Germans hope that they will be able to convert the Allies by a discussion to the acceptance of their viewpoint. There is really a conciliatory faction in the German delegation represented by von Simons. Opposite to him there is Hugo Stinnes as hostile to any concessions as he is powerful in German councils.

As Herr Euhre, Chancellor of the German Foreign Office, said to me today: "Any agreement we German diplomats reach must have the approval of Hugo Stinnes or we will be unable to retain power when we return to Germany after the conference. Millerand is not the only diplomat here who has got to reckon with internal political considerations."

The fact is that Stinnes is the real master of Germany today, and his bold stand against the Allies will increase instead of weaken his influence in his own country. More and more it is evident that this coal baron is boss of the German Government, so that while he is at Spa the problem of inducing Germany to agree to common sacrifices presents insurmountable difficulties. It remains to be seen what concrete results can be achieved. Will the Germans agree to the allied program or will they refuse to rise above a figure which Millerand cannot accept?

As far as the French are concerned they are thinking that any good that may come out of the conference can only be by hard bargaining which may need even more time.

One remarks the figure of William Boyden, the American representative on the Reparations Committee, and that of his counsel, Colonel Bain, haunting the resorts of the statesmen to find out what is going on. This afternoon Mr. Boyden had not seen a copy of the German plan handed out to the press at midnight last night. All along the American officials have been less well informed than the newspapermen, and less attention is paid to them.

As a matter of fact, none of the statesmen here appears to be certain just what Mr. Boyden's status is, in that they have nothing on Mr. Boyden. I understand he is speaking of returning to Paris tomorrow. Paul D. Cravath, the New York lawyer whose presence at the conference has been unexplained, has gone.

THINK FOCH'S BIG STICK WILL BE NEEDED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 12.—"Sooner or later it will come to a showdown between Hugo Stinnes and Marshal Foch," is the phrase quoted by the Intransigeant correspondent at Spa from the mouth of an allied Minister.

In other words, as the French see it Spa is tending toward a struggle between reactionary, revengeful, defiant German business powers, whom Stinnes typifies and leads and whom the French more than suspect of having made a secret deal with British, American, Dutch and even French financial industrial groups, and French military force.

The "allied" Minister referred to is almost certainly French, so thoroughly does the opinion he expresses translate French sentiment. The French are convinced that Hugo Stinnes is the voice and will, not of the German Government at Spa but of Germany—Germany beaten yet arrogant, pleading poverty and ruin, yet already plotting revenge on France. For that kind of German spirit, think the French, the big stick is the best corrective, and in the present juncture the big stick is Foch—who left the conference suddenly on Saturday evening.

It is quite plain to any one familiar with French newspaper tactics that what the French want is that the conference shall break up owing to the German refusal to agree to what the Allies demand. This morning, for instance, Pertinax, in the Echo de Paris, takes a most pessimistic view of the coal deadlock and says there is a strong party in the German camp—evidently Hugo Stinnes—which is in favor of resistance. They seem, he says, to be seeking a rupture on a matter like coal which affects Germany most closely.

In the event of a rupture the whole business of the German-allied relations would go back to the Reparations Committee, whose job it would be to insist upon and insure integral execution of the Versailles Treaty. Everything now depends upon Lloyd George, who is, so to speak, the father of the Spa Conference and who is likely to try to arrange a compromise.

That the conference has not only avoided a rupture but is actually to be prolonged—although the coal question is still unsettled—is manifest, proof that Lloyd George had done precisely what Pertinax hinted he would do. Nothing could show more clearly the fundamental divergence of policy between England and France.

England wants trade with Germany, therefore England wants to let Germa recover and despite arrogance of Hugo Stinnes, the English Premier intends to hang on until terms have been arranged by which that recovery will be rendered possible. It is needless to add that the Versailles Treaty, as it stands, would make German recovery, if not impossible, at least extremely improbable, and therefore the terms Lloyd George is aiming at must necessarily involve considerable watering of the terms of the treaty.

The French, on the other hand, just want Germany to pay coal and cash in return for the wantonly ruined French coal mines and almost equally wanton destruction of French property. If Germany goes broke in the process France would shed no tears. But the French now see only too clearly that the Spa Conference is England's game. If they had the courage of their convictions they would make no bones about admitting that the only way they can get from Germany what they want is by going and taking it. That is what the "allied" Minister meant when he talked to the Intransigeant correspondent about Foch.

The tide of indignation is rising in France, and if the conference drags on its—for France—unsatisfactory way much longer, it is possible that M. Millerand may receive information from Paris which will suddenly stiffen his back quite remarkably and thus introduce an entirely new factor into the carefully camouflaged process of whittling down the Versailles Treaty, now in full swing at Spa.

Forty-eighters more determined than ever to take the whole matter out of the committee's hands and put through amalgamation on their own basis at tomorrow's session of the convention.

The right wing men were uncertain tonight as to their course if they lose tomorrow. There seems to be only a bare possibility, however, that they will attempt to form a third party of their own, if the convention is taken away from them and goes over with the labor group.

Just before the two sub-committees met again near midnight both the Western left and the Eastern right wing of the Forty-eighters admitted that a big fight was on. A spokesman for the Hopkins-McCurdy-Pinchot group declared that the hitch is not so much opposition to labor's platform as to inability to get an exact insight into what that platform would say and what it would mean.

He expressed the fear that the drastic "nationalization" plank, once it was in the hands of the delegates, would receive a "Bolshevist" interpretation to which the forty-eight founders could never assent. If things came to this stage, he added, the conservatives would make a last stand on the floor of their convention. But he acknowledged that they faced the prospect of defeat.

"It doesn't matter whether those committees get together tonight or not. We are going to get together ourselves tomorrow regardless of what they do. The radical wing has the votes, and if it has to come to a fight on the floor—let it. We will win the fight and join with the Farmer-Labor element. There will be a third party regardless of the once dominant New York-New Jersey group in the Committee of Forty-eight."

One faction among the Forty-eighters attributes the set-back to the failure of the labor men to appoint a sub-committee to arrange the final get-together machinery in conference with a sub-committee of the Forty-eighters' Conference Committee. Mr. Hopkins told the Forty-eight Convention tonight that the labor men had just realized their oversight in not appointing the sub-committee and that it would be named at once.

Another faction of the rank and file is beginning to mutter that the Eastern Forty-eight men, realizing that they cannot hold the convention within the road upon which they set it in motion, are trying to block proceeding long enough to tire out the controlling majority of radical Westerners, in the hope that they will abandon the convention and enable the Eastern men to take control again.

La Follette the Probable Nominee.

Unless arrangements are suddenly thrown out of gear, it seems a safe prediction that the Presidential candidate of the third party will be Senator La Follette. Delegates who have conferred with his representatives profess to be satisfied that if an amalgamated party is born here the Senator will consent to be its standard bearer.

The Committee of Forty-eight is for him overwhelmingly. The Non-Partisan League is keen to have him head the ticket, because they face the fight of their lives this Fall in some of the Northwestern States where they are a political factor. They know that his popularity with the farmers will help them to offer successful resistance to any combined Democratic and Republican enemy.

Labor is more willing than eager toward La Follette and is not likely to offer serious opposition to him. A good part of the labor delegates prefer Frank P. Walsh, but they recognize that the Irish issue cannot be made the dominant one and show no signs of making a real battle for him.

Ford Headquarters are Opened.

Despite the strong talk for La Follette, the first Presidential headquarters in connection with the convention were opened today for Henry Ford at the Morrison Hotel. The headquarters are decorated with placards, stating that Henry Ford made Detroit fourth and will make America first, and proclaiming that he will do for the country what he has done for Michigan. They are in charge of Robert L. Stanoill, a Forty-eight delegate from Illinois, who was executive secretary to Secretary Redfield.

The moving spirit, in the Ford boom, however, is Charles B. Hoffman, Forty-eighter from Florida.

An announcement given out from headquarters said in part:

"The action to crystallize the increasing sentiment in favor of Mr. Ford as nominee of the third party," Mr. Hoffman explained, "had caused him and a number of delegates who were supporting the Ford movement voluntarily to make the decision to open the headquarters.

"Mr. Hoffman, who is the original Ford man at the third party convention, stated that the change in feeling had been so marked over Sunday in the various meetings which he attended and shifting toward the Detroit automobile manufacturer so rapidly that there was every reason to believe that Mr. Ford's nomination is assured. He again stressed the fact that, while Mr. Ford in no sense was an active candidate for the nomination, he had the assurance that, with a satisfactory platform provided, the Detroiter would be willing to accept the nomination."

Mr. Hoffman said further tonight that he knew Henry Ford would accept the nomination. He declared his candidate had made no stipulations as to platform, and he would make the race on any platform which was likely to be adopted at this convention.

Far Apart on Party Name.

Altogether the candidate problem is far less vexing here than it was when the Republicans met by Lakeside, or the Democrats gathered on the edge of the Pacific, but before the factions here, particularly the two principal ones, can find a promised land on common ground, there are two huge mountains they must scale. One of these is the name of the new party, and the other is its platform. The labor men are very nearly adamant on the name question. Their party was born of hatred for the American Federation of Labor, and nurtured in wrath against its president, Samuel Gompers. There are many of its delegates and leaders, hard-headed men with many battle scars, who know that they are not going to elect a President this year and are far more concerned in strengthening their hands in the labor fight than in anything else. These men are consumed with admiration and respect for the farmer group. They believe that the economic interests of the two are closely allied, and they are becoming more and more willing to go before the country under a combined farmer-labor banner.

But J. A. H. Hopkins, Executive Chairman of the Committee of Forty-eight, Allen McCurdy and others of the Eastern group, who dominated the organization until the more radical-minded Westerners stepped in and assumed a larger measure of control, came to Chicago actuated by a sincere desire to form a party that would appeal to the disaffected of all classes. They wanted to offer to men and women who were dissatisfied with the old line parties, their record, their platforms and their candidates, a constructive economic program on which they would unite. They feel that many thousands of such throughout the country are "white collar boys" to whom the farmer-labor label will carry no strong appeal. They will oppose a name of that sort and fight for a more inclusive one, but so far as one can gather from discussions with delegates, and particularly committeemen, it is probable they will be forced to yield on this issue.

The mountain that separated the two main groups on the platform, huge as it still is at this writing, is far less unscalable than it was a day or more ago. The labor men are not for an unequivocal plank, calling for recognition of the Irish Republic. The farmers have shown no indisposition to give the militant Irish element what it wants. The original Forty-eighters were against such a plank because a questionnaire on the platform showed their members overwhelmingly against it. They have advanced to a position of some willingness to cover the matter in a resolution, tacked on to the platform rather than in a plank, incorporated in it. Here again there is reason to believe they will have to give away.

If the Forty-eighters are forced to a compromise on these issues, which they did not contemplate at the beginning, when they little suspected that ten Westerners in sympathy with the labor men would be added to the Conference Committee to deal with the labor men, the sole remaining obsacle (and it is one that may have been surmounted before tomorrow dawns) is the public ownership plank.

The labor men were keen at the start for nationalization of industry. The Forty-eighters wanted to stop with ownership of basic resources, not so much because they are opposed to a more radical program, but because they think "nationalization" is what Mr. McCurdy described as "pre-revolutionary idealism," far in advance of present practical possibilities. The farmers wanted public ownership of transportation, stock yards, abattoirs, grain elevators, terminal warehouses, pipe lines, tanks, public utilities and natural resources such as gas, oil, mineral deposits, water power and commercial timber.

While the discovery of the Forty-eighters and the labor men that the divergence in their views and sympathies and aspirations existed more in the Executive Committee of the first named than among the delegates undoubtedly started the harmony movement on its way, emissaries of William Randolph Hearst have been aiding the get-together movement. They circulated among the delegates to both conventions yesterday, holding out the suggestion of support of the Hearst papers, though it cannot be said that they definitely promised any such backing. The drift toward amalgamation was accelerated.

Hearst Praises La Follette.

San Francisco, July 11.

Editor, Chicago American:

Please do not allow any organization to present my name at Chicago as candidate for any office if you can positively prevent it. Am not a candidate in any sense, and I think that any suggestion of being a candidate weakens my influence in the only way that I wish to exert it, namely, in behalf of the best men on any ticket, regardless of party.

Please do not put any obstacles whatever in the way of the nomination of Senator La Follette by the combined elements which constitute the third party. Senator La Follette is a great American, worthy of any honor that may be tendered him. The question before the third party, as I understand it, seems to be how best to promote effective American opposition to foreign entangling alliances.

If the nomination of Senator La Follette appears, in the wisdom of the third party leaders gathered in Chicago, to be the best way to accomplish this, their careful judgment and deep sincerity deserve all consideration in the columns of our newspapers.

I am not committed to any party or any candidates, nor do I want our papers to be so committed until after all nominations have been made and we have had an opportunity carefully to review the whole political situation and decide what is the best course to pursue in the interests of our clientele, in the interest of the public generally and in support of the principles for which we stand.

(Signed) WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Despite the guarded wording of this document, the Hearst men make no secret of the probability that the Hearst papers will support such a third party as appears about to be created. They are booming Senator La Follette and Frank P. Walsh for first and second place on the ticket. Hearst will insist on a flat anti-League of Nations plank, but there is no disposition here to deny him that.

Announcement was made to the Forty-eighters by Arthur G. Hayes of New York, Chairman of the Conferenca Committee, that Hearst's American Constitutional Party had agreed to come in on the Third Party movement without any conditions. Although the Executive Chairman, Mr. Hopkins, in a formal statement just before the convention opened, repudiated Hearst and his party, this announcement was received with applause and without protest.

Oratory Wearies Forty-Eighters.

While the Conference Committee was working all day to get the groups together and the Platform Committees were seeking to frame some sort of structure out of the thousand and one ideas, aspirations, inspirations and delusions laid before them by enthusiasts, the Forty-eight delegates devoted themselves to a day of oratory. It was hot, and long before night the delegates were weary and worn and less inclined to applaud every denunciation of wrong, every word of praise for the struggling and downtrodden, than they were in the morning.

The Rev. Dr. R. W. Bagnoli, a negro clergyman from Detroit, made the first speech, pleading for justice for the negro.

Then Swinburne Hale of New York took the platform and made a speech that his hearers liked so much that they kept interrupting him with their demonstrations of approval. Hale declared that when his grandfather stood behind his musket at Bunker Hill and waited till he could see the white of British eyes, "he had no such provocation as we have now when we see the yellow in the eyes of Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer."

Hale praised Chairman Christenson as the man who three years ago defended the first I. W. W.s who got into trouble in Utah and turned the applause in the Chairman's direction. He mentioned Louis F. Post, Assistant Secretary of Labor, who was recently the subject of Congressional inquiry because of his handling of "Red" deportation cases, and brought forth cheers for Post.

He mentioned Samuel Gompers and his voice was drowned in a sea of "boos." He tried to say that Mr. Gompers did not do a bad job sometimes and was opposed with a chorus of "not often." Of President Wilson, he asserted that he had "the highest ideals and lowest practices" of any man in the world, and found his audience loudly with him. Hale was reverting to his attack on the Attorney General, when Eamona de Valera, President of the "Irish Republic," appeared, escorted by Allen McCurdy and Dudley Field Malone of New York.

De Valera Asks Recognition.

Hale at once yielded the platform and De Valera, heartily welcomed, made a mild speech in favor of his cause. He asked recognition of the Sinn Fein government, said it could take care of itself and did not ask America to spring to arms in its behalf and handled the names of President Wilson and Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador, with respect. There was general hissing every time that De Valera mentioned Great Britain. By the time he had finished the enthusiasm of the crowd was pretty well spent and he got only lukewarm applause.

After that Chairman Hayes came in to report for the Conference Committee. Amid cheers he told the convention that it no longer was a question of "whether we'll get together, but how we'll get together." He said that while he could not report a great deal of accomplishment he could report a significant harmony spirit which would carry the parley to success.

Hale then resumed the platform to continue the attack on the Attorney General. He was a Captain in the intelligence Service of the army, and informed his hearers that he never would be an officer in another war, offensive or defensive, drafted or otherwise, which seemed to please them. Turning to Presidential candidates he said: "They say the soldiers will not vote for La Follette, but I tell you the soldiers know as much about war as anybody else and I tell you they will vote for La Follette." That brought a three-minute demonstration.

Then came the invited representatives of the labor convention, among them was James Duncan, leader of the Seattle strike and Chairman of the Washington delegation to the Forty-eighters' convention. Duncan, MacDonald and other labor men consumed the rest of the afternoon.

Another speaker was Taraknot H. Das of New York, who pleaded for independenc for India, charging that the British Empire made nefarious use of the opium traffic to keep the Far Eastern peoples in subjugation.

An interested spectator of the day's proceedings was Victor L. Berger, Socialist and publisher of the Milwaukee Leader, now under sentence for violation of the espionage act, who sat at the press table long enough to hear his name cheered when one speaker mentioned it. Berger was not called upon to address the convention. He departed saying that the delegates "ought to be honest and indorse the Socialist Party and Eugene V. Debs for the Presidency and have done with it."

Savage Attack on the League.

CHICAGO, July 12.—The League of Nations issue was mentioned before the committee of Forty-Eight Convention for the first time tonight. Oscar Maddaux, introduced to speak on the subject of world federation, asserted that President Wilson had "run counter to every American instinct" by the League structure he created and the manner in which he presented it.

"Nevertheless," Maddaux continued, "he made an issue which cannot be evaded, on which there can be no pussyfooting. It is something about which the people are thinking."

The convention applauded both the criticism of the President's attitude and the declaration that the League was an issue which had to be met.

A vitriolic attack on the two major parties was made by Frank P. Walsh, former member of the War Labor Board, when he spoke in behalf of freedom for Ireland. He assailed each old party and declared that nobody "had expected anything from either convention—and nobody was disappointed." Walsh said he had voted the Democratic ticket at the last election and added:

"But I, along with thousands of others, expected more. We had a right to expect something, and we got nothing but hypocrisy."

Discussing the merits of the platforms of the two parties, Walsh said the Republicans had drafted a "platform of evasion that isn't worth consideration." He declared it was up to "advance advertisement."

"But the Democratic platform," he continued, "is the blackest and the most sinister pronouncement ever unloaded on the shoulders of our citizens. It even makes every crime of the present Administration the crime of the whole Democratic Party; it makes the party of Jefferson only a masquerader as the party of the people."

SPEED MARK BROKEN BY TRAFFIC COURT

COLLECTS $5,000 IN FINES

Says Only Way to Stop Speeding Is to Empower Judges to Annul Licenses.

Magistrate John E. McGeehan sent thirty-six violators of the traffic laws to the Workhouse, giving one a ten-day sentence for speeding, and collected more than $5,000 in fines in a record-breaking day at the Traffic Court yesterday. Although he was sitting alone, he heard 390 cases, the greatest number ever disposed of in a day in the history of the Traffic Court.

At the end of the forenoon session Magistrate McGeehan predicted there would be about 500 ofefnders before him on Friday, as a result of the campaign against speeding being waged by motor-cycle policemen.

"The only way to stop speeding in this city is to give the Magistrates power to take away the licenses of the offenders," said Judge McGeehan. "There is no reason why we should have to wait for a man to violate the laws three times before his license is taken away. It is positively dangerous for a pedestrian to cross the streets nowadays, especially because of the taxi-driver's disregard for human life. I intend to send violators away whenever I feel I am justified and to impose heavy fines at other times. I belive there will be fewer automobile accidents after we sentence a few of the violators to long terms in the work house."

Proving he meant every word he said, Judge McGeehan sentenced Thomas Saunders, 38 years old, of 159 West Sixty-eighth Street, to ten days in the workhouse, although it was his first offence. Patrolman Peter Dicke of Motorcycle Squad No. 1, alleged that Saunders, driving a taxicab, on Park Avenue Thursday night, was speeding at the rate of fifty miles an hour. Dicke said he fired several shots before the machine stopped. Saunders said he thought the revolver reports to be his auto back-firing.

All but twelve of the defendants were first offenders. The second offenders were fined from $50 to $100, while he imposed fines ranging from 25 to $50 upon the first offenders. Some were given the alternative between a prison sentence and a fine.

The streets around the Traffic Court had the appearance of the parking space at the race track on a fine day. For blocks in either direction from the Court House automobiles were standing, their owners awaiting their turn inside. The room was jammed. It was a hard day's work, not only for the Judge, but for the court attendants as well, but case after case was disposed of with very little commotion.

FOUR LINERS BRING 7,132 FROM EUROPE

884 FROM SOUTH AMERICA

Boy Is Born at Quarantine to Passenger Aboard the Rotterdam.

Four liners arrived yesterday from European ports with 7,132 passengers, the largest number in one day since the war commenced in August, 1914. The list included 932 first cabin, 1,435 second cabin and 4,745 steerage. In addition there were 631 first cabin, 67 second cabin and 186 third class passengers from South America ports, making the grand total of 8,016 passengers for the day.

The first liner to come up the harbor was the Cunarder Imperator, from Southampton and Cherbourg, which had been held in Quarantine since Sunday afternoon to discharge 943 steerage passengers, who were taken to Hoffman Island for typhus observation.

Among the 372 passengers in the first cabin were Lieut. Col. and Mrs. George B. McClellan, who had been abroad since last December, most of the time in Italy and North Africa. Mrs. McClellan said that the Sahara Desert disappointed her. Her husband, the former Mayor of New York, who is now Professor of Political Economy at Princeton University, said that Italy was adopting home measures that placed her further in advance of other Allies in recovery from the war.

Premier Giolitti, he said, was passing drastic taxation measures, which showed Italy's desire to care for her big debt of the war. One portion of the taxation will hit American girls who have married Italians, for there is triple taxation on securities held abroad by Italian subjects. Lieut. Col. McClellan said he had obtained a year's leave of absence because of ill health. He will return to his post at Princeton in September.

Rear Admiral H. S. Knapp, who has been Commander in Chief in European waters for the last eighteen months, returned and left at once for Washington to make his report to the Navy Department.

The Cunard liner Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, which left Liverpool on July 3 and Queenstown on the following day, would have beaten the Imperator to the pier if she had not encountered fog off the coast on Sunday. The 869 steerage passengers on board came mostly from England and Ireland, and were berthed in the second cabin because the Cunard Line did not consider the German steerage quarters and decks comfortable enough.

Among the first cabin passengers was Mrs. Jackson Groome and her 17-year-old daughter Mamie, here on a visit to Mrs. Groome's son Robert, at 67 Riverside Drive. She said that her house, Shannon Manor, near Limerick, Ireland, had been burned down during her absence by Sinn Fein sympathizers, she believed, and did not wish to see the place again.

Mrs. Groome onced owned a valuable racing stable in Ireland. The head of the stud was the celebrated Velocity, who won the Cambridgeshire stakes before the war and for which she was offered £25,000 by the Australian Government. She is the only woman who ever won the historic stakes.

Campbell Meeker, son of a capitalist of Columbus, Ohio, whose mother lives in Sixty-seventh Street, this city, was stricken during the voyage. On arrival here his illness was diagnosed as a form of post-influenza.

Arthur Roberson of Victoria, Australia, arrived with his wife and daughter, after a mission to England. He said that, as representative of the State railroads of Victoria, he had engaged Harold Clapp, formerly Vice President of the Chicago & Illinois Railroad, to be the head of the Victoria system.

The French liner Rochambeau, which had 440 cabin and 1,351 steerage passengers from Havre, was not detained in Quarantine. One of the passengers was Captain Dailey Robinson of the Public Health Service of Washington, D. C., who has been on a tour through Switzerland and France delivering lectures to intending immigrants. She lectured before the Academy of Medicine in Paris and was made a member of the Academy of Science, and received its ribbon as an officer.

The last liner to reach her pier in Hoboken yesterday was the Holland-American Rotterdam, from the port of that name, with the biggest list of the day, 441 first cabin passengers, 505 second cabin and 1,686 steerage passengers. At Quarantine a son was born to Mrs. Rachel Herbst, 18 years old, a war bride from Poland.

Among the first cabin passengers was Giuseppe Catalani, Italian Minister to Persia. His wife, formerly Miss Susan Dimock, accompanied him. They are on their way to Bar Harbor for a vacation.

STOLEN AUTO FOUND

Honeymooners in Catskills Come Across Sedan from Weehawken.

William A. Peter, President of the Peter Brewing Company of New Jersey, yesterday, while on a honeymoon trip through the Catskills, came across a sedan automobile which was stolen from Theodore Sleidt, Jr., of 114 Hauxhurst Avenue, Weehawken, N. J., when he was held up with pistols by three men at Woodcliff Park, N. J., last Friday.

Mr. Peter, who is a neighbor of the victim, recognized the abandoned automobile on a road near Catskill, N. Y., and notified Chief of Police Ryan of Catskill, who communicated with Sleidt last night. Ryan said he believed the automobile was brought to Catskill by three young men arrested Sunday night at Kingston, N. Y., on a charge of holding up another automobilist and taking from him a Ford car at Saugerties, N. Y.

Belgian Minister Dies at Sea.

The surgeon of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company's liner Ebro, which arrived yesterday from Valparaiso via the Panama Canal, reported that Leon Guislain, the Belgian Minister to Peru, had died at sea of pneumonia on July 7 and his body was buried the same day when the vessel was off the coast of Cuba. The Minister was on his way to Belgium, via New York, for a leave of absence. The Ebro brought 150 passengers.

GLASS PRAISES COX.

Will Make Safe President, He Says —Also Likes the Platform.

WASHINGTON, July 12. — Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, home today from the Democratic National Convention, declared that Governor Cox, the Presidential nominee, is "a genuine Democrat and if elected will give the country a safe and clean administration."

Shortly after his arrival here, Senator Glass, who was Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, went to the White House, but did not see President Wilson. He expressed himself as "greatly pleased" with the work of the convention, and said he "looked for a 'corking' good campaign by the party, with every prospect of victory in November."

The Virginia Senator served two terms in the House of Representatives with Governor Cox and said he regarded him highly.

"Of course I think well of the platform," said Mr. Glass, "as I had a hand in its preparation. The convention thought well of it, too. Indeed, the convention unanimously declined to permit it to be tampered with in any respect. It was impervious alike to rhetoric and scheming. It was adopted without alteration of a word and expresses the convictions, the hopes and the aspirations of the Democratic Party without evasions or reservations of any kind."

FAMILY GROUP DROWNED.

Mother and Daughter Perish Trying to Save Former's Brother.

PORTLAND, Conn., July 12.—Jacob Meinstein, 65, Mrs. Elsette Sulzbacher, 60, his sister, and her daughter, Mrs. Ida Kollsch, 41, all of New York City, were drowned late today in the Connecticut River at Cobalt, near here, while bathing.

Mr. Meinstein called for help and when Mrs. Kollsch went to his aid he grappled with her. Mrs. Sulzbacher, who was on shore and not in bathing costume, waded into the water but sank before reaching them. The bodies were recovered.

den will be improved for indoor athletic meets.

Through his new business proposition Mr. Rickard has been forced to resign as matchmaker for the International Sporting Club. He mailed his resignation to the I. S. C. yesterday, to take effect immediately. This means that he will operate his boxing enterprises in opposition to the club with which he was formerly connected. In his statement Mr. Rickard said of his resignation:

"I shall devote my entire time to the management of the new enterprise, making New York my permanent residence. This will necessitate several changes in existing connections, and it is with regret that I announce my resignation as official matchmaker of the International Sporting Club, an organization which has done much to lift boxing toward the high plane the sport merits."

Mr. Rickard said that he intended to offer leases of five years' duration to the various exhibitors and shows, including the Horse Show, Dog Show, bicycle race and other attractions. In the past these shows leased the Garden annually. Mr. Rickard already has received a number of applications for using the structure. Among these was the application of the National Horse Show Association.

A Historical Structure.

No building has played such a long and interesting part in the amusement and political life of the city as Madison Square Garden. So great and varied has been its appeal to a wide range of people by virtue of the kinds of entertainments and gatherings which have been held within the hugh structure that every rumor that the Garden was about to pass out of existence has aroused a storm of protest.

Numerous efforts have been made to raise a fund by popular subscription so that Madison Square Garden might be preserved permanently and the suggestion has been put forth that the city should be the purchaser of the landwark, the financial backing, however, has never been forthcoming.

Madison Square Garden was built in 1890 by the Madison Square Garden Company, in which the stockholders were J. Pierpont Morgan, Sr., Darius O. Mills, James T. Woodward, Charles Lanier, Hiram Hitchcock, Adolph Ladenburg and Charles Crocker. The Garden covers the entire block bounded by Madison and Fourth Avenues and Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh Streets.

McKim, Mead & White were the architects, but Stanford White, of the firm, had more to do with the architectural features that any other man; the graceful tower, surmounted by the statue of Diana, has long been called his masterpiece. The memory of White has left a tragic interest in the Garden, for it was on the roof garden of the building that he was shot and killed by Harry Thaw on June 25, 1906.

Madison Square Garden was formally opened on June 16, 1890, with Edward Strauss's Viennese orchestra and a ballet under the direction of Leon Spinosa. The owners have repeatedly announced that the Garden was not a paying proposition. So far as the records show it has never paid a dividend.

In 1911 the Garden was sold to the F. & D. Company, headed by Louis Boissevain, at a price stated to have been $3,375,000. The New York Life Insurance Company in 1916, as the principal mortgage holder, became the owner on its bid of $2,000,000 at the foreclosure sale.

Hearing on New Ferries Aug. 6.

The Committee on Finance and Budget of the Board of Estimate yesterday designated Aug. 6 as the date for public hearings on the request of Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, for the approval of plans and the acquisition of property for the Dyckman Street Ferry and the Astoria Ferry.

HOUSE THINKS COX STRONG.

But Is Said Not to be Very Hopeful of Party Victory.

Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, July 12.—Colonel E. M. House, in a conversation with a member of the British Government today, expressed the opinion that the nomination of Governor Cox improved Democratic chances of victory next November.

Colonel House based his opinion on Cox's "soundness" on the League of Nations, which he said would attract the women's vote, and also the fact that his alleged "dampness" might attract male voters. However, Colonel House was not very hopeful of Democratic success, and is hoping for some great Republican mistake between now and election day.

VILLA BOTTLED UP, WAR MINISTER SAYS

Forty Chihuahua Bandits Killed or Captured in Engagement with Federals.

ANARCHY IN CHIAPAS STATE

Four Leaders There Are Reported Attempting to Form an Independent Republic.

MEXICO CITY, July 12.—General Joaquin Amaro has Francisco Villa, revolutionary leader in the State of Chihuahua, bottled up, following an encounter near Parral in which 500 rebels and 300 Federals participated, it was announced today by General P. Elias Calles, the War Minister.

The rebels, who lost forty men in dead, wounded and prisoners, fled to the hills, according to the War Minister.

Railway service to Nuevo Laredo, opposite Laredo, Texas, was re-established today.

Anarchy reigns in Chiapas State as a result of the activities of Rafael Cal y Mayer, Felipe Pineda, J. Ruiz and Tiburcio Fernandez, who are trying to form an independent republic, War Minister Calles stated today.

General Calles added that General Francisco Cosie Robelo had been sent to pacify these men, peaceably, if possible, by force if necessary.

Legislation making all Mexico "dry" is being prepared for presentation to the next Congress at the office of Provisional President de la Heurta, says the newspaper Universal.

"The Provisional President has decided on this step, says the newspaper, "as a means of accomplishing the regeneration of the Indian and half-breed races, which are great consumers of alcohol."

Workmen to the number of 60,000 will participate in a demonstration in honor of Provisional President de la Huerta on July 25, it was announced today.

The workers will thank the President for his attitude on labor questions.

Mexico will send a delegation to represent the Government at the celebration of the centennial of Peruvian independence next July.

Representatives of the oil interests in Mexico have declared themselves satisfied with the Government's attitude toward the industry, El Universal says today. The newspaper announces that during June seventeen permits to drill were granted.

A conference between Government official and oil men will be held Thursday if the health of President de la Huerta permits. The President has sent a statement concerning the oil situation to Raymond de Negri, Mexican Consul in New York.

LONDON, July 12.—Felix F. Palavicini, Mexican Envoy to Great Britain, Spain, France, Belgium and Italy, today presented his credentials to the foreign office here.

Senor Palavicini said today that his mission was to renew the relations between Mexico and Great Britain and also the other countries to which he is accredited.

He added that he represented a proally Government in Mexico, which promises to make good damages done to British property in Mexico.

Señor Palavicini shortly will proceed to the other countries to which he is accredited.

RENEW SOCIALISTS' PLEA FOR DEBS'S FREEDOM

Party's National Committee Decides to Send a Delegation to Call on Wilson.

DETROIT, July 12.—A delegation of Socialists will call upon President Wilson within the next fortnight and demand that he immediately pardon Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist Presidential nominee, now serving a term in Atlanta Federal Prison on a charge of violating the espionage law.

This decision was reached here today at a meeting of the Socialist National Committee.

George E. Roewer of Boston, Chairman of the committee which recently called on Secretary Tumulty at the White House and asked that the question of Debs's release be called to the attention of the President, will head the delegation. James O'Neal and Morris Hillquit of New York will be other members.

It is planned to organize about 200 men and women, Socialists and members of trade unions, to go to Washington.

Unless he is pardoned, Debs will direct the party's campaign this Summer from his prison. Party leaders plan to visit him frequently and learn his wishes.

ATLANTA, July 12.—No special arrangements have been made at the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary whereby Eugene V. Debs might take an active part in directing his campaign, it was learned tonight at the penitentiary.

Debs has the right, in common with other prisoners, to have visitors every two weeks, and by special request the Socialist Committee that formally notified him some weeks ago of his nomination spent two hours or more with him. Since that time one or two prominent Socialists have visited him, including Mrs. Kate O'Hare of St. Louis.

Fred Zerbst, warden at the Penitentiary, explained that the rule limiting visits to fortnight periods, was not an ironclad one, and was broken from time to time when there was "important business" to be attended to. He remarked that he had no precedents to go by and added: "Well, we'll cross the bridge when we come to it."

TO EXHUME GIRL'S BODY.

Bridgeport Police Heed Plea of the Mother of Missing Young Woman.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 12.—To set an anxious mother's mind at rest, State Policeman Frank Virelli has arranged to exhume, on Friday morning, the body of the young woman found under a refuse pile at the edge of Buttonbush Swamp near New Canaan, a year ago.

The mother, Mrs. Veronica Muller of New York City, is convinced that the body of the young woman which was found a few days after the disappearance of her daughter, Mrs. Anna Zirkellsach Waraday, is the body of the missing young woman.

State Policeman Virelli said tonight he did not think this was the missing daughter's body but would satisfy the mother.

CROKER COMPETENT, COURT'S DECISION

unfit and improper to manage the same for him.

8. That unless relief is granted by a temporary restraining order the defendant will continue to withdraw and secrete the said property for the purpose of consummating a fraud, and the said Richard Croker, Sr., will be stripped of all his property and will suffer irreparable loss and damage.

An answer was filed by the defendant denying all the above and other material allegations, and the same was sworn to.

At the same time a motion was filed by the defendant to dissolve the restraining order.

Richard Croker, Sr., filed a sworn motion to dismiss the bill upon the grounds that he is not incapable to manage his affairs and that he did not wish nor authorize the suit.

Upon application of counsel a day was set for a hearing upon the motion, and the parties were ordered to present on that day, or as soon after as they could be heard, before the court, all their testimony in connection with said motions.

It is of course proper for a suit to be instituted by a next friend when the real complainant is non compos or of weak mind and incapable. The practice, however, seems to be well settled that the next friend institutes the suit at his peril, the peril being that the real complainant may not, in fact be non compos or of such weak mind as to justify the attempted interference with his affairs. Whetstone versus Whetstone, 75 Ala. 495.

And the proper practice in raising this question seems to be by a motion filed by the alleged weak-minded person to dismiss the bill on the grounds as set out in Richard Croker, Sr.'s motion in this case. If after hearing the testimony upon his mental condition, it is not shown that he cannot manage his affairs, but the contrary is shown, the bill should then be dismissed. Isle versus Cranby (Ill.) 64 L. R. A. 513.

The first question, then, is is Richard Croker, Sr., too enfeebled in mind to manage his own affairs?

The next question to answer is is he so under the domination of his wife's undue influence that he has permitted her to fraudulently gain possession and control of his property?

Under the evidence as applied to the law controlling, both of these questions must be answered in the negative. The manner and demeanor of Richard Croker, Sr., in the court and on the witness stand clearly suggested a man in full control of his faculties. His memory is no doubt impaired, yet he remembered dates and transactions rather accurately. Impairment of memory alone does not indicate lack of mental capacity to justify a court in holding the property owner incapable to manage his own business affairs. Ex parte Burnstay 3 Ark. 168; Argo vs. Coffin (Ill.) 32 N. E. 670.

A great deal was said in the testimony of the alienists and in the argument of counsel about delusions of Richard Croker, Sr. He has had some misunderstandings with some of his children of late years. He may be wrong in his conclusions; but, according to the evidence, his attorney assured him that he had not been dealt with fairly. This seems to me to be some ground for his contention, even though it be false. He expressed a willingness to be shown that he is wrong. Such being the case, I cannot believe that his state of mind toward his children, nor on any other subject, constitutes delusions or hallucinations. 22 Cyc. 1113; Behler vs. Hicks (Ga.) 48 S. E. 306; 14 R. C. L. 551.

There is a great deal of evidence denying the charge of undue influence as well as the charge of mental weakness, and I think that the next friend has failed to sustain either charge. No sufficient proof of fraud was offered.

Richard Croker, Sr., has disposed of much of his property to his wife, and has not, for many years anyway, given any of his property to his children. But if this is his choice and he is competent to manage his affairs, it certainly cannot be stopped in a court of equity. The right of a property owner to make his own disposition of his holdings is jealously guarded by our law. Waterman vs. Higgins, 28 Fla. 660.

Richard Croker, Sr., confirmed all the transactions in the presence of the court. And the evidence is that he made them of his own volition and generally without the knowledge of his wife.

For the reasons above set out and others appearing to the court, it is ordered, adjudged and decreed that the temporary restraining order awarded in this case on March 30, 1920, be and the same is hereby dissolved and the bill of complaint in this cause is dismissed, all at the cost of the next friend, Howard Croker.

Done and ordered at chambers in West Palm Beach, Fla., this July 12, 1920.

E. B. DONNELL, Judge.

Richard Croker declined to make a statement tonight until he had read the text of the Judge's decision. He said he was pleased and that if his attorneys were satisfied he was. Mr. and Mrs. Croker start for New York Tuesday night and will sail for Ireland Saturday.

CHILDREN WILL APPEAL.

Counsel for Richard, Jr., Says Fight Has Just Begun.

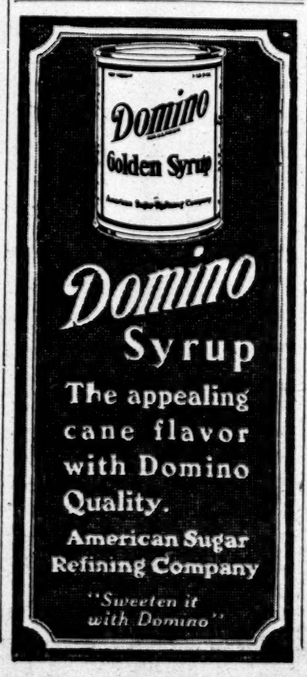
Frederick R. Ryan of McCombs & Ryan, counsel for Richard Croker, Jr., in the proceeding against his father and step-mother in the Palm Beach court, announced yesterday that he had wired to the legal representative of his firm in Jacksonville to prepare papers in an appeal from Judge Donnell's decision.

"I received word of the court's decision this afternoon," said Mr. Ryan, "and I immediately ordered our representative in Jacksonville to take an appeal. Judge Donnell's abrogation of the injunction is only the first round in a series of litigation of the kind. Richard, Jr., Howard, his brother, and their sister, Mrs. Ethel White, have only just begun this fight. That is all I care to say about the matter."

Harold Nathan of the law firm of Leventritt, Nathan, Cook & Lehman, counsel for the former Tammany leader, declared last night that while he had received no official notification of Judge Donnell's decision, the result was in no respect surprising to him.

"There is nothing that I care to say about the matter at this time," said Mr. Nathan, "except that Mr. Croker, Sr., naturally is gratified with the result. He never was in doubt of it, and his interest in the matter has centred principally on his desire to get away from Florida to go somewhere where he could get a rest before he and Mrs. Croker, Sr., return to their estate in Ireland. I have not heard from Mr. Croker, however, in six weeks, and I do not know when he will start for Ireland."

Mr. Nathan explained that there are pending in the courts in this city six actions growing out of the estrangement of his client and his three children living in this country. He said that five of the suits were started by Richard Croker, Jr., against his father, and the sixth suit was started by the son for an accounting of an estate of which his father was made trustee. He thought the first of the suits would come to trial in the Autumn or Winter.



What Are Your Sales In the Minneapolis Market?

EVERY harvest time a billion-dollar yield of living gold is taken from the soil of Minnesota, Montana and the two Dakotas.

The yellow metal outputs of Alaska and of Africa—though they fill the imagination with their romantic proportions—are dwarfed beside it.

This flood of wealth is the cereal crop of The American Northwest—an area larger than the Atlantic seaboard states, a land falling in places into 500-mile gardens as rich and as fertile as the narrow silt ribbon of the river Nile.

THE bank and storehouse of this treasure is Minneapolis. Before the first thin blades of the wheat have pushed their way to air and sunlight, Minneapolis has banked the crop. Throughout the months of husbandry, the unfailing stream of supplies for machines and men goes forward from Minneapolis. Into Minneapolis for milling and marketing, the bulk of the harvest comes when the threshing is done.

Every man who is touched by this enriching tide, as it spreads in widening circles to all the world, is prospered. But its richest deposit clings to the land that raised it and piles high the well-earned increment of Northwestern farmers.

Their profit is assured. Soil, climate and intelligent work bring them their yield as regularly as the seasons swing. On each successive return they build for bigger things next year. Waves of depression submerging industrial communities do not affect them, because they put their trust, and their effort, in the fecund land. So they prosper, they invest, and they buy. They have the money with which to buy the good things of life, and the taste to do so.

THE market of their investment and their trading, as of their grain, is Minneapolis. It understands their needs, because it belongs to them. Its people are their kind. It is their "big city," a commercial capital of which they are rightfully proud. They send their children here to university. Here they visit at their leisure. To Minneapolis they come to buy their goods, in person, or by letter, or through the innumerable firms that deal with Minneapolis jobbers

There is in this city founded on the agricultural wealth of The American Northwest, a reliable, effective means of communicating with these people. It is their newspaper—THE MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL. Their homes are visited by it daily. It serves them intelligently, fearlessly, honestly. Its cleanliness is proverbial among them. They subscribe to it and read it. Many of them have taken THE MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL now for more than 30 years.

BECAUSE of the good name it has among them, this newspaper is able to contribute something more than space and circulation to the business messages it carries. It invests the advertising it publishes with the special values it has created in the field of this great buying power by virtue of its service to the ideals and interests of this section. To the natural force of honest advertising, it adds the force of that reputation which THE MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL has earned as the representative newspaper of The American Northwest.

INQUIRY ON PALMER WILL BE CONTINUED

106 PAID IN COST FIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Further investigation of the Presidential aspirants will be mapped out at a meeting to be held in Washington about August 10, according to Senator Kenyon, of Iowa, who has just returned to the city. The senator is chairman of the special committee which conducted an inquiry first in Washington and last week in Chicago and St. Louis.

The campaign expenses of A. Mitchell Palmer, it is expected, will be taken up again. Following the committee's sessions held in St. Louis, a determination was reached to ascertain how much, if any, of the funds appropriated by Congress for the Attorney General's Department was used for furthering his Presidential aspirations.

It does not seem certain that the Kenyon committee will conduct an examination into the expenses of Senator Harding and Governor Cox during their campaigns from now on for the presidency. The committee now has the authority to make this inquiry, but as it was originally empowered to examine only pre-convention expenses, it may limit its scope to those. In that case another committee may be appointed next December by congress to investigate the expenses of the two presidential nominees.

Senator Kenyon, it is understood, has been making a preliminary inquiry on the use of the funds voted by Congress for the Attorney General's department. But as the Senator goes to the Maine woods tomorrow night "for my first vacation in twenty-five years," this investigation will be suspended until his return. Senator Edge, of New Jersey, will sail for Europe in a few days.

Senators Pomerene of Ohio and Spencer of Missouri will soon meet in St. Louis to take up the charge that the expenses of men antagonistic to Senator Reed at San Francisco were paid to the Pacific Coast.

Palmer's Friends Charge Injustice.

Friends of Attorney General Palmer said today that the Kenyon committee was unjsut in asserting that the Attorney General had in his care a two-million-dollar fund for investigating the high cost of living, and with which he built up an organization to aid him in his race. Mr. Palmer's friends said that the fund was set aside for practically all the various purposes of the department and that only a portion of it had been used for the cost-of-living campaign.

Search of the records of the Attorney General's department shows that there were two phases of the organization to fight the high cost of living—one the Fair Price Commission and the other the Women's Commission. The two employed together approximately 100 aids.

In thirty-three States the Fair Price Commissioners were appointed by the States and in fifteen the District Attorneys acted as the Commissioners. In California four Commissioners were appointed. In the Fair Price Division sixty-nine persons were on the payroll, Howard E. Figg, the Special Assistant Attorney General in charge of the campaign, receiving $5,000. Eleven officials received $3,000 or more, twenty-two $1,-800 to $2,400 and thirty-five $720 to $1,800. In the woman's division thirty-seven persons were on the payroll, ten working for $1 a year, two receiving $2,400, eight $1,200, fourteen $1,800, one $300 and two $600 each.

It is said here that one of the first witnesses before the Kenyon Committee when it resumes its sessions will be Mr. Figg. From him the committee will try to learn how large an organization was maintained throughout the country and how many persons were employed, what their activities were and whether they used their time in behalf of Mr. Palmer's candidacy.

Expect to Hold Hearing Here.

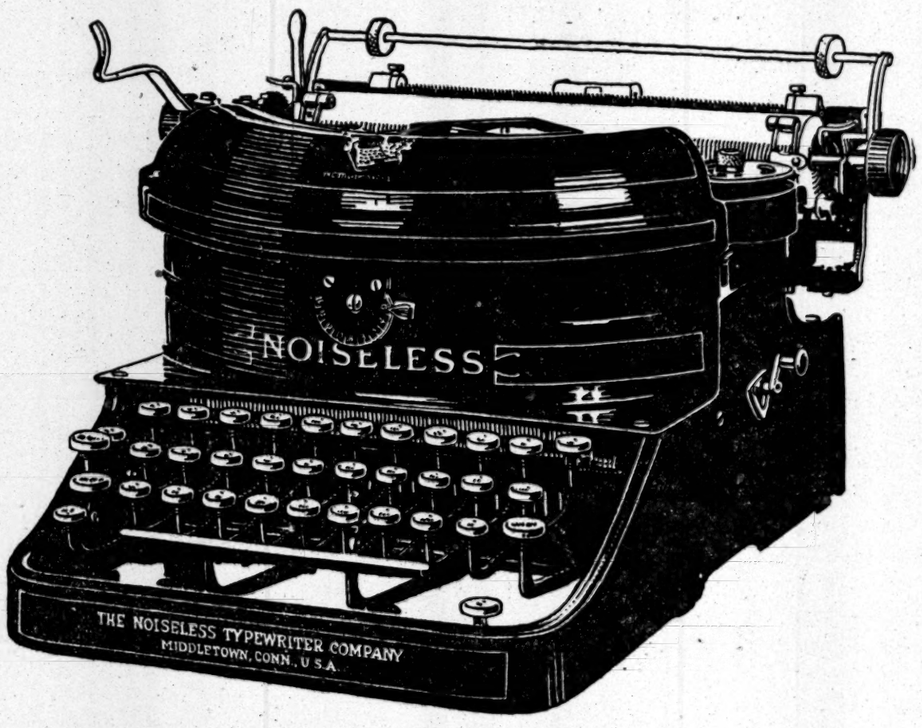
The committee will wait until its meeting, Aug. 10, to decide whether it will participate in inquiries into the expenses of Messrs. Harding and Cox.

"The committee had expected to wind up its work with the examination of three or four more witnesses," said Senator Kenyon, "but a number of new lines of investigation have opened that the committee believes require further investigation. Senator Pomerene is expected to return from San Francisco by way of St. Louis, and, with Senator Spencer, complete the taking of testimony there. After that nothing will be done for a month, during which time the committee will determine whether to follow out the new lines of investigation or close the hearings on the subject of expenditures relative to the campaigns for the nomination for President.

"Senator Edge is sailing for Europe in a few days and I have made arrangements for a little vacation in the woods of Maine. We are all desireus of completing the work as soon as possible.

"However, we desire to make the investigation complete. I find upon my return, many letters from different States urging the committee to investigate the pre-convention campaigns in their States. These matters will be submitted to the full committee about Aug. 10 and final action will then be determined."



The Only Typewriter Permitted In the Chicago and San Francisco Convention Halls

The Noiseless Typewriter was used not only in the press sections—but even on the speakers' platform! No other typewriter was permitted inside the Convention Halls, where The Noiseless was used by the Associated Press, the International News Service, the United Press, and the Universal Service, as well as by correspondents of the great dailies.

The Noiseless Typewriter was selected not only because it is the one quiet typewriter, but also because of its speed and dependability. It did not disturb. It stood up under the terrific strain of both Conventions. No better test of a typewriter was ever made.

The Noiseless Typewriters used at the Conventions were regular stock machines such as you can purchase any day for your own office.

Unless you prefer Bedlam to Quiet it is worth your while to investigate this revolutionary improvement in the typewriter.

TWO ARRESTS IN YONKERS

Proprietor and Bartender Held—Five Taken Into Custody in Brooklyn Over Sunday.

Detectives looking for two men who escaped last week from Lake Hopatcong jail, where they were held in connection with automobile thefts, yesterday found and confiscated ten cases of the $100,000 worth of whisky recently stolen from three trucks held up on the Lincoln Highway, near Kearny, N. J., The liquor was found in a roadhouse at Mine Hill, near Dover, N. J. The trail of Robert Eckert and John Thompson, sought by the officers, had led the detectives to this place.

According to the Newark police, who made a report of the finding of the whisky, the proprietor of the roadhouse admitted he had bought twelve cases of whisky at $70 a case from men who stored a truck load of liquor in his shed early Thursday morning. There were about 70 cases on the truck, he said. The proprietor was not arrested. A report of the transactions will be made to the Federal prohibition enforcement agents. The detectives were told that later on Thursday the whisky was shifted to another truck and both trucks were driven away.

Agents have been operating at Yonkers during the last few days. Saturday night Anthony Copollo arrested Phillip Tremble, a bartender, at 31 Dock Street, on a charge of selling him a glass of whisky. Copollo charges he was then attacked by John Herald, proprietor of the place, who snapped a revolver at him, but the weapon did not explode. Herald and Tremble were arraigned before Commissioner Hitchcock here yesterday. Tremble was held in $250 bail on the liquor selling charge, while Herald was placed under $1,000 bail for a hearing on July 19 on a charge of interfering and obstructing an internal revenue man in the discharge of his duty.

Five men were arrested in Brooklyn over Sunday for violating the prohibition law, it was reported yesterday at the office of Mr. Quigley. Joseph Fetel, owner of a café at 1,116 Manhattan Avenue, Brooklyn, was held in $1,000 bail on a charge of owning, and his bartender, David Schwartz, in $500 bail for alleged serving liquor, by Commissioner McCabe. William Schildt of 1,806 Bergen Street was held in $500 bail for illegal possession of liquor by Commissioner Rasquin. Gustav Weller of 1,243 Myrtle Avenue and Gustave Colluris of 1 Broadway, Elmhurst, were held in $1,000 and $500 bail, respectively, on a similar charge.

James Shevlin, Federal Supervising Prohibition Agent for this State, is in Washington conferring with officials and prohibition enforcement agents from other States, relative to new regulations by which the issuance of liquor permits may be more properly controlled. He is expected to return this morning.

NAVY RUM TRIAL RESUMES.

Witness Not Sure That Bottles from Bimini Held Liquor.

The trial by court martial of Ensigns Winsor H. Cushing and Frank Lamb, U. S. N. R. F., charged with bringing liquor into this country from Bimini, Bahama Islands, was resumed yesterday at the Brooklyn Navy Yard when Lieutenant Hugh H. Cuthrell, acting commander of the air station at Key West, took the stand as a witness for the prosecution. It is alleged the two Ensigns violated Order No. 99, issued by Secretary Daniels some years ago, forbidding the storing of intoxicants aboard vessels of the department, by bringing liquor to Miami, Fla., in a naval seaplane.

Lieutenant Cuthrell was not certain Order No. 99 had been violated. He saw the seaplane land, he said, and, when he inspected it for repairs found 144 brown bottles, without labels, on board. The witness said he did not know there was anything in the bottles, which were in the gun pit. He ordered the seaplane towed out and the bottles thrown overboard. The bottles, he said, sank.

Lieutenant Cuthrell was asked about the findings of the board of investigation in the case. He said members of the crew of the seaplane said they were very busy when the bottles were put aboard by natives at Bimini and did not pay attention to what was being done. They and the officers were astonished when they reached Miami to find that the seaplane was carrying a lot of suspicious looking bottles.

SHOOTS GIRL, KILLS HIMSELF

His love rejected, Jesse Levitch, 24 years old, shot and seriously wounded Ida Deblinger, 16, yesterday in the hallway of the apartment house in which both lived at 133 Henry Street. Then he sent a bullet through his temple, and died an hour later in Gouverneur Hospital.

The young man and Miss Deblinger became acquainted a year ago. Two months ago the girl told Levitch his attentions were unwelcome. Yesterday he demanded that she marry him. She refused. Levitch drew a pistol and fired three times. The first bullet passed through the girl's left side, the second went wild, and the third struck her left hand. As she ran screaming into the street Levitch shot himself.

Miss Deblinger staggered to a drug store at Henry and Rutgers Streets, where she asked a clerk to send a policeman to the hallway of her home. Then she walked unassisted to Beth Israel Hospital, at Jefferson and Cherry Streets. There she collapsed. She is said to be in a dangerous condition.

When a policeman arrived at the Henry Street house he found Levitch dying. Neighbors told him Levitch threatened to kill the girl and himself three months ago. Levitch's mother was warned and hid the pistol while her son slept. The girl's parents also were warned of the threat, but withheld information from the police on Levitch's promise not to annoy or harm her. Levitch was a printer.

Dr. Hammer Sentence Put Off.

Sentence upon Dr. Julius Hammer, Bronx physician convicted of manslaughter in connection with an operation performed on a woman, was postponed yesterday until July 19. The case against Thomas Sheehan, former Bronx politician, indicted for an alleged attempt to bribe a juror in the Hammer case, was put over until Friday, when Sheehan's counsel, Louis F. Fridiger, will submit briefs in support of an application to inspect the minutes of the Grand Jury which returned the indictment.

Big Business Is Moving Uptown

Banks, Bankers and Brokers, Accountants, Lawyers, Insurance Companies, Industrial Concerns, and other large professional and corporate interests have emphasized the uptown business movement by the establishment of main, or branch offices in the Grand Central Terminal Zone. This district now is the very heart of the uptown business, financial and transportation centre.

This influx of new business population, added to the already great concentration of hotel, retail shopping, and other interests in the Terminal zone, has created an unprecedented demand for stores and offices in and adjacent to 42nd Street, Fifth, Madison, Vanderbilt, and Park Avenues. So insistent is the demand that space now is at a premium, with bonuses being paid for leases not yet expired.

The demand for space simply cannot be met at any price, and several of the more prominent hotels in the 42nd Street district recently have been acquired for conversion into office buildings.

To meet this situation, the blocks between Madison and Park Avenues, 46th and 47th Sts., are to be improved with one of the largest office buildings in the world, to be known as the Park-Madison Building, and to be directly connected with the Grand Central and subway stations.

The New Thirty-One Story

will absolutely dominate the uptown business centre. It will be co-operatively owned and managed. It will be erected, and held free and clear of real estate mortgage.

More Than One Million Square Feet of Office Space, in unusually large and economical units of 10,000 to 60,000 sq. ft. per floor, will be provided, and can be purchased now from the floor plans.

A Surety Company Bond will guarantee completion of building.

An amount of space will be reserved for renting, the revenue from which, it is estimated, will be sufficient to pay all operating expenses and leave a surplus, thus eliminating future rental payments by stockholders.

NEW YORK is the financial centre of the country. Wall Street, because of the location of the Stock Exchange, is the financial centre of New York. Because, however, of the shortage of available office space, and the high cost of renting in the Wall Street zone, it has become necessary to establish a new financial district uptown.

The heart and centre of this district is the Terminal Zone, which has great transportation advantages.

Office space, in and near the Terminal Zone, at $4 to $7 per sq. ft. is absorbed as rapidly as produced. With bonuses being paid for leases not yet expired, the demand is far greater than the supply.

These are the conditions that have led to the offering, of more than 1,000,000 sq. ft. of office space in the mortgage-free, Park-Madison Building, on the tenant-ownership plan.

Under the Mortgage-Free, Park-Madison plan of office ownership, the cost of space to subscribers, after charging 6% interest on the investment, and 2% for amortization, will be $1.68 to $2.24 per sq. ft., until the investment is amortized. There will be no rent overhead thereafter.

TWO SPEEDY SHOWS ON CENTURY ROOF

GIRLS GALORE, NOVELTIES

THE CENTURY REVUE AND THE MIDNIGHT ROUNDERS—Two shows, the first beginning at 9 o'clock and the second at 11:30. Music for both by Jean Schwartz, lyrics by Al Bryan, book by Howard E. Rogers, staged by Lew Morton and Jack Mason, under the direction of J. J. Shubert. On the roof of the Century Theatre.

After a period of darkness and then a false start or two on its new way, the roof of the Century Theatre is again ablaze and accessible to those who want to eat and see an elaborate show at the same time. One performance begins at 9 o'clock and the other at 11:30. The first is "The Century Revue" and the latter "The Midnight Rounders." Both opened last night, following a press showing of most of the "Rounders" on Sunday evening.

Most of those who go to the Century Promenade, which is the name for the roof itself, will expect an expensive, expansive entertainment, full of songs and dances, novelties, nonsense, speed and girls—first and last full of girls—and they will get just about what they are looking for, perhaps a little more, for the Century shows are abundant—if anything, extreme in several directions. The chief impression that one gets from them is of girls, females of the species in all of Broadway's variety and extravagence, displaying the latest eccentricities of dress and also, in considerable area, themselves. There are, too, several amusing novelties, some catchy music, and a number of scenes that may fairly be called spectacles. And, of course, the dancing is a feature, and some effort is made at comedy, though in this particular, no noteworthy success has been achieved.

Both shows are glorified cabaret entertainments, extensive revues, elevated and elongated vaudeville. Things get started in the "Rounders," for example, when Jane Green comes out and sings "Romantic Blues," and they are well under way when Tot Qualters leads in a novel and rather effective, "Clock Song." Muriel De Forrest stirs things up with a "Danse Jazzique," and after a couple of scenes that vainly attempt to keep the show's story going Ted Lorraine and Gladys Walton do something musical in "The Mansion of Roses." Another novelty—and a good one—follows, "Heartbreakers," with Joe Byam leading, and following it is one of the most attractive numbers of all, "The Story of the Waltz," in which Leo Beers, Rosie Quinn, May Thompson, Norka Rouskaya and others present snatches from "The Chocolate Soldier," "Merry Widow," "The Pink Lady" and other favorites.

An "intimate" act is Rosie Quinn's "A Mouthful of Kisses," and "The Rue de la Paix" serves to bring in the Frenchiness of Madelon La Varre, and also, "Shimmy Nods"—in which the girls all shimmy and no one nods—headed by Tot Qualters again. The most spectacular of the scenes is a dance-pantomime, Cleveland Bronner's "Fantastic Conception of Twenty-four Hours," "In the Clouds" gives Walter Woolf's voice—the best of the evening—something of a chance.

And so it goes. "Loveland," with May Thompson, John Lowe and the girls; "Just Clothes," with Madelon La Varre and the girls; "A Few Intimate Moments," with Rosie Quinn and the girls; "Beautiful Shoulders," with Vivien Oakland and the girls; "A Beauty Is Like a Rose," with Walter Woolf and the girls, and other acts with other leads and the girls—always the girls—fill out the evening.

MUSIC NOTES.

Samuel Gardner, violinist and composer, will appear at the Stadium tonight, conducting the National Symphony men in his tone-poem, "The New Russia," first performed by the Philadelphia Orchestra last year.

The Montefiore Home and Hospital will have a free concert this evening by the Goldman Concert Band, the first of a series by the players from Columbia University in local charitable institutions.

Ireno Williams, Sudworth Fraser, Bertram Peacock and Wilfred Glenn are the singing cast in ten scenes from "Faust" this week at the Capitol Theatre. Nat Pineton also leads the ensemble in Cadman's "At Dawning."

'GIRL IN THE SPOTLIGHT' REAL MUSICAL COMEDY

Victor Herbert's Fine Melodies and a Story of Heart Interest Please at Knickerbocker.

THE GIRL IN THE SPOTLIGHT, A musical comedy in two acts and five scenes. Music by Victor Herbert; book and lyrics by Richard Bruce. At the Knickerbocker Theatre.

Principals—Hal Skelly, James B. Carson, Ben Forbes, Richard Pyle, John Rierhard, William Cameron, Johnny Dooley, June Elvidge, Mary Milburn, Minerva Gray, Agnes Patterson, Jessie Lewis, Ruby Lewis, Lucille Kent, Lillian Young, Evelyn Grieg, Gertrude Reynolds, Flora Corsbie and Helen Gates.

The usual Summer musical shows are expected to be notoriously bereft of any one particular virtue. We go taking along Mrs. Grundy's mantle to cover the multitude of flaws. Not so last night at "The Girl in the Spotlight," presented by George W. Lederer. The first-nighters went to the Knickerbocker Theatre expecting Victor Herbert, who wrote the music, to approach some of his tuneful triumphs of the past, and anticipating that the large cast would do its part.

No one was disappointed. Mr. Lederer has offered a very real musical comedy. It is a story play worth while watching if we were deaf, and worth while to sit through if we were blind. The story has heart interest and pretty blondes and brunettes, and the producer has spared us the usual constant changing of scenes and costumes. Never is the audible dollar dangled before the audience. Even the most callous to put the stamp of approval on the melodies were convinced that Mr. Herbert's music was all right when he was forced out of the orchestra pit and onto the stage by a thunderous applause at the end of the first act.

The new musical comedy is featured as a Victor Herbert attraction. When he wrote "The Fortune Teller," "Mlle. Modiste" and "Sweethearts" he had very different material to deal with. It appeared for a while last night that he had overrun the boundaries of his particular art, stepped into a vehicle not built for him, and tried with his baton to whip the galloping story into first place. But he did it, and got constant rhythmical variety by his constant shifting of style.

When the curtain went up we were sure from the program that the cast was without a star. We watched the play just picking out thoose who pleased most. When the act was over there was someone we wanted to hear sing again and we got the notion that we would see in a little while the name Mary Milburn up in lights. She is the petite heroine of the show, and if she has not a great voice she fools people into thinking so by her sincere work coupled with an appealing personality.

There was another member of the cast who may be a commer. His name is Ben Forbes. It was whispered that he is a protege of Charles M. Schwab, who sat in a box and like everyone else forgot about business while the young tenor comedian held the stage. Others who are worth seeing are Johnny Dooley, June Elvidge, Hall Skelly and the leading ladies of the future, the chorus.

The story is by Richard Bruce and is as empty as a shell washed up on the shores of memory. But it is charmingly washed up and some of the lyrics are exceedingly clever. The songs, which he and the composer will probably leave behind them, are "I Cannot Sleep Without Dreaming of You," "Dancing Lesson" and "There's a Tender Look in Your Eyes."

The first act is better than the second, which drags a bit, for the audience is allowed to forget the plot. It is worth remembering even if it be an old story. Here it is: A little Irish girl is keeping a house in Greenwich Village bright with her broom. She also makes the four "art-nuts" bright with her singing. She writes a song herself, which, after some little doubt, gets herself in the spotlight and she marries one of the "nuts" and makes him famous by singing in his opera.

MISS MENTH PLAYS INDOORS

Three times this season pianists have played at the Stadium concerts under the auspices of the Music League of the People's Institute at City College and rain has cheated each of them out of a hearing in the big amphitheatre. Miss Herma Menth, last night's soloist, was the third victim. All played in the great hall of the college. The others were Harold Bauer and Miss Winifred Byrd, the latter of whom started her number outdoors, but, with her audience, fled to the hall for shelter.

Miss Menth last night played Liszt's E flat piano concerto, without rehearsal, she explained apologetically afterward, but so effectively that the audience would not let her go finally until she had played three ballet music from Schubert's "Rosamunde" and a scherzo by Chopin.

Orchestral numbers included Mendelssohn's "Fingal's Cave" overture, the overture to Rossini's "William Tell" and Tschaikowsky's andante cantabile for string quartette, part of which was repeated as an encore.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The opening of William Rock's musical review, "Silks and Satins," at the George M. Cohan Theatre has been postponed until Thursday evening.

At the Woods Theatre, Atlantic City, last night A. H. Woods presented a new comedy-drama, "As the Clouds Roll By," William J. McNally is the author. The principal role is acted by Irene Fenwick.

John Cope and Grant Stewart have been engaged by Comstock & Gest for "The Cave Girl," by George Middleton and Guy Bolton.

THE HIGH MARK.

There is always a preliminary sentimental time in Presidential campaigns. When the new candidates are named Americans dearly love to learn all about their home life, their proud old fathers, their sainted mothers, their well-behaved yet vivacious children, their attached neighbors, their adoring servants, their devoted fellow-workmen of other days. We have now had several weeks of this, and it would seem that even the most gushing must have had their fill. The era of good feeling between and about Senator HARDING and Governor Cox must soon give way to the rigors of the campaign. Chairman HAYS apparently undertook to show on Sunday that the force of nature could no further go in the direction of genial nothingness by his little prose-poem on the joy of being at church with Senator HARDING and witnessing the love and loyalty with which his family life is embowered. It would be impossible to beat this, and after it the reaction will surely set in. The pleasures of sentiment will be replaced by the stern joy which warriors feel.

POLAND AND THE ALLIES.

Two things stamp with high importance the statement about Poland issued by the Supreme Council on Sunday night. One is that a definite Polish policy has been announced. The other is that the Allies are in entire agreement about it. After weeks of uncertainty, after some disquieting signs that France was not in harmony with England, nor Italy with either, we have a proclamation that is both clear and joint. Affairs concerning Poland and Russia should now march quickly.

Unhappy bygones are sponged from the slate by the allied announcement. The rights or wrongs of the Polish venture into the Ukraine are not gone into. It may have been, as the Poles assert, a military defense by taking the offensive. Or it may have been an ill-conceived campaign in behalf of a greater Poland. Either way, it has failed. The Poles have appealed to the Allies for aid, but have been informed that it will not be given so long as their troops are fighting on territory not Polish. On the other hand, the Moscow Government has been notified that if the Soviets refuse the offered armistice and "attack the Poles within their proper boundaries" the Allies "will give Poland full assistance." In other words, they will not permit the Bolsheviki to destroy the new Poland. The result ought to be a speedy cessation of hostilities. The Russians have already made peace with Lithuania, and are about to do so with Latvia. A peace with Poland also, combined with the concessions and pledges which the Soviet Government has given to England as the condition of opening trade, would make it possible to introduce something like order in vast areas repeatedly overrun and devastated.

In that event the Soviets would have a fair field in which to show whether they can make their system work, or no. It will then be more like an "isolated" experiment in a laboratory. Till now, LENIN and TROTZKY have thriven on interference. They have raised great armies on the plea that foreigners were invading and seeking to destroy Holy Russia. Many intelligent Russians believe that, as soon as this external pressure is removed, the whole Soviet scheme will collapse. About that it is safer to make no predictions. We know that LENIN has already modified profoundly his original doctrines, compelled to do so by force of circumstances. An English correspondent recently reported him as saying frankly that he did not know whether the peasants could ever be got to accept the new régime. That means, of course, at least 80 per cent. of the Russian people. What they will do, or can be forced to do, in fighting against foreign armies or counter-revolutionary armies has been demonstrated. What they will do when their country is at peace we do not yet know. Whatever it is, they are entitled to the chance to assert their real and deliberate purpose, and apparently are now going to have it.

INTERNATIONAL PRIORITIES.

There is no saying what the news facilities of Spa may be, but it is sure that there is a singular contrast between the news from Spa and that from Berne. On the same day that the Germans at Spa plead their inability to deliver coal to the Allies on account of indemnity obligations a Berne cablegram announces the negotiation of a new commercial treaty between Germany and Switzerland whereby Germany agrees to displace American coal, in part, by the delivery of 40,000 tons of coal monthly to Switzerland. We have a use for all the coal we can mine, and there are those who will be glad that Switzerland is to take less coal from us. There is no local grievance for us, but we have a great interest in the question of the order in which Germany shall fulfill its obligations and of the good faith of the arguments it uses regarding priorities.

Nothing could be more solemn than an indemnity obligation to make good criminal damage, but the Germans presume to set up the difficulty of getting the miners to work more than six hours a day to increase the output, although they are willing to work eight hours if paid double time for the hours over six. The Allies are working as they fought, and the Germans should be made to see that it is necessary that they should do the same, lest a worse thing befall them. The coal question is the stalking horse for the general question of priorities. If German labor and trade considerations are allowed to take precedence over treaty obligations, we shall hear next that the German interior debt takes precedence over the external debt, whether on indemnity or loans. The priority of the Allies' coal claims contains the principle of the priority of the international obligation which Germany must some time issue and which we must take in payment of our exports, although the exact form of the business cannot yet be clearly seen.

RAILWAYS AND REGULATORS.

At the beginning of this month the country's railways organized according to a declaration that "it is incumbent "upon the individual companies by "voluntary action and co-operation "to establish an agency authorized to "deal promptly and effectively with "such emergencies as contemplated "in Section 402 of the Transportation "act." In other words, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the railways collectively will deal together as units, although in form the commission's orders will continue to be addressed to individual companies as cases arise. For example, in Illinois and New York there are questions whether the States can restore the two-cent passenger fares, or whether the Transportation act fares shall prevail. The immediate question is more important in principle than in the amounts involved. The principle is whether national or local power shall regulate railway affairs. It is evident that the Illinois Central and the New York Central, powerful companies as they are, are at a disadvantage as individual companies before the Interstate Commerce Commission, and that the Association of Railway Executives can present the question better from the standpoint of public interest by as much as the association will have no direct interest at stake.

This question is acute in New York, and the national question not improbably will be fought out here. Governor SMITH sent the Legislature a special message opposing the provision that national power should prevail over State power in this matter. The Public Service Commission followed this up by an order that the Central should reduce its fares Aug. 1. The Public Service Commission also has suspended until December the Long Island's new schedule of rates, which was designed to control travel beginning with July. As the Long Island is distinctively a passenger road and makes in Summer the surplus which helps it with its Winter deficit, the order is unusually prejudicial to the local road and illustrates the need of quickening the methods of local as well as of national regulation. In June the Long Island carried an unusually large normal business, but earned $75,000 less than in the same month last year, while operating expenses increased $200,000. It is time to end regulation of that sort, whether local or national, and the railways, in combining their forces to meet the regulators, are only imitating the combination of the regulators for the preservation of their powers.

For example, the National Association of Utilities Commissioners filed a joint brief against the Transportation act, declaring that the railways should go into State courts to defend themselves against State regulation, or otherwise the State regulators might have to cross the continent to defend their orders in Federal courts. According to this brief of the national organization of regulators the Federal system has heretofore worked well because the right of the States to regulate local affairs has been respected. But the Transportation act subjects the States to the findings and orders nominally of the Interstate Commerce Commission, but really of the subordinates of the commission. The Long Island commutation rate order is one of the dozen specifications in which the regulators thought that local orders should take precedence of national. The New York Central fare case comes under another specification.

It is time that individual companies should no longer be compelled to bear the brunt of sustaining the public interest against local interests, or of individually antagonizing either local or national regulators. The State and Federal authorities have provided a railway prosecutor, but conditions have developed the need of a public defender of public utilities. This need the combination of railway executives is qualified to fill and thus to establish a new policy, although that was not one of its original objects.

THE JAPANESE IN CALIFORNIA.

Viscount KANEKO surveys the question of the Japanese in California somewhat too much from the single point of view—that of Japan. That method might solve simple problems in mathematics; it does not lead to the best results in solving ethnological and political problems as complex as that presented by the presence of the Japanese in California, in numbers already considerable and which the people of that State do not want to see increased.

We can understand that the existing and proposed restrictions upon land occupation by Japanese in California are distasteful to the spokesmen of thought and opinion in Japan. They resent these restrictions as discriminative, as an undeserved humiliation of their race. But it will not do to leave out of account the state of public opinion in California. Decidedly, the question has two sides.

All this was frankly acknowledged by the Japanese Government when the Root-Takahira agreement was made, by which that Government consented to measures respecting immigration which are not applied to some other races. We cannot overlook the fact that the people of California are opposed to any increase in the Japanese population of that State. The right to own land has been denied to the Japanese there, but this restriction has been evaded in considerable measure. It is now proposed by a law about to be submitted to the referendum vote of the people that the leasing of land to Japanese shall also cease. The grounds upon which the Californians object to the coming of Japanese are perfectly well known. They cannot be removed by legislation; the prevalent feeling would only be strengthened by any sharp controversy between the two Governments. The same feeling was shown in the Dominion of Canada in the case of Hindu immigration. It has been even more pronounced in Australia in respect to Japanese immigration.

Viscount KANEKO speaks frankly and with positiveness upon this subject, because he has been much in this country and knows that we shall not misunderstand him. He has been conspicuously an advocate of the friendliest relations between the two peoples. But the removal of what menace there may be in the question lies not in emphasizing either Japanese resentment or the strong feeling of the Californians. The method of forbearance and of friendly conference with a view of good understanding, upon which Prime Minister HARA laid emphasis in the message he sent to the American people through our correspondent in Tokio, Mr. JOHN FOORD, is the sounder procedure. Good influences will be exerted in this country upon the Californians to restrain them from going too far; it is to be hoped that like counsels of moderation will prevail in Japan.

THE CASE OF DR. TILDSLEY.

In the face of an almost universal protest that Dr. TILDSLEY should be re-elected, and at once, the Board of Education has alleged no shadow of justification for its long delay. The recent letter signed by twenty-one high school Principals is as trenchant in effect as it is courteous and reserved in manner. It indicates that "only a few persons" oppose the re-election, and it leaves no reasonable doubt that their opposition is unwarranted—in fact, radically opposed to all sound policy.

The objection of these few persons is that Dr. TILDSLEY performed a "duty assigned to him by the Board of Education," namely, the duty of bringing to trial teachers who failed to co-operate with the board "in support of the Government during the "war." While citizens of New York were fighting and dying in France, certain teachers strove to instill into the minds of their children a poisonous doubt as to the justice of the allied cause, and when Dr. TILDSLEY established the facts against the teachers they were dismissed. That is the worst that has been alleged against him—doubtless the worst that can be alleged. After an agitation which has been all too protracted, no one has given his name to the opposition. For this there can be only one reason. To do so would be to proclaim a bias that is pro-German, or at least anti-American.

The twenty-one high school Principals very cogently base their plea upon the merit system, which Dr. TILDSLEY was mainly instrumental in enacting into law. The basis of continued employment is "faithful service." Under the law a public servant shall be dismissed "only on proof of profes-"sional incompetence, neglect of duty "or misconduct." Yet Dr. TILDSLEY, whose championship of the merit system is only one of many vital services, stands to be dismissed because he fought loyally against the corruption of the children of his fellow-patriots. The twenty-one Principals conclude their letter with the statement that "failure to re-elect Superin-"tendent TILDSLEY will be hailed as a "personal vindication and victory for "all teachers whose loyalty has been "questioned and whose radical ten-"dencies have subjected them to sus-"picion."

The war is fought and won. The great need of the present is that the old bitterness be sweetened, the old antagonisms give way to mutual tolerance and understanding. Above the wrong to Dr. TILDSLEY, and to the morale of the schools in general, is the fact that the delay of the Board of Education is fanning the ancient hatreds from which the world has already suffered enough.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

He Answered the Call to Service.

When the Rev. Dr. ISRAEL FRIEDLAENDER started on the expedition, or, more accurately, on the mission, which ended in his death at the hands of bandits in the Ukraine, he thoroughly understood the dangers he would encounter. This knowledge he had from the detailed information available to the groups of which he was a member, and it had been emphasized by our State Department when application was made to it for permission to carry to the starving and fever-stricken peoples of Eastern Europe the money that had been raised here by the Joint Distribution Committee of All Jewish Relief Funds. Full warning was given that in the regions it was proposed to visit no authority existed with which our Government could deal, and that consequently it could promise no protection there to its citizens.

In spite of this Dr. FRIEDLAENDER undertook the task. Hitherto a man known only as a scholar among scholars, of profound learning and an able teacher, he recognized and accepted as his a perilous duty which he had a dozen good excuses for transferring to others, had he chosen to do so. Instead of continuing his many and important activities in safety at home, he went himself to the lands where conscience told him he was most needed and where his services could do most for the cause he had so deeply at heart. He has met the fate he must have counted more than probable—the martyrdom of a man who braves death to save from death his fellow-men.

From the brief report now at hand in regard to the murder of Dr. FRIEDLAENDER and his companion, it seems to be evident that they were killed, not for any reasons of politics or prejudice, but merely to get possession of the money they were carrying. It is a significant fact, however, that the robbers were in Bolshevist uniforms—another illustration of the impossibility of distinguishing between Bolshevism and brigandage.

New Brunswick Decides to Prohibit.

Judging from the returns of the vote just taken in New Brunswick on the question whether the province should be wet or dry, the opponents of prohibition and the friends of its mitigation have not as much to hope from referendums as it has been their wont to claim. In Canada, as here, there has been much complaint about prohibitory action taken while great numbers of men were abroad as soldiers, and many prophecies that, as soon as these men had a chance to make their opinions and desires effective, they would bring about a repeal of restrictions which they resented. The Canadian soldiers have been home and demobilized for months, but in the more western part of the Dominion, and now on the coast, the only effect on the popular vote that can be credited them is that of increasing the dry majority.

In St. John, a city with a population largely of the seafaring sort, and with a long and well-established reputation, therefore, for antagonism to water for drinking purposes, prohibition has been carried by a vote of two to one, and similar reports are coming from all parts of the province. As there is no appreciable difference between the people of New Brunswick and New Englanders, except that the former call "Loyalists" those whom the latter call "Tories," there seems to be small chance indeed of doing away with dryness on this side of the frontier line at its eastern end—not by appeals to the people as against the Legislatures, at any rate.

Failure Seems Complete.

After more than a month of industrious investigation by three groups of the law's official upholders—and by nobody knows how many that are non-official—the Elwell case remains exactly the mystery it was on the morning of June 11. Of course, the various activities displayed have not been without results. There has been made known, in the first place, a good deal about ELWELL as a man and the sort of life he led. This information has not been without interest of several kinds, but it has not been particularly edifying or useful.

Another consequence of the assorted inquiries has been the disclosure of the names, and more or less about the habits and amusements, of somewhere between a dozen and twenty people who at one time or another had been friends or acquaintances of ELWELL. To some of them the revelation has been extremely embarrassing and to all the rest in some degree unpleasant, but from their troubling or annoying has come no faintest hint, no warranted suspicion, as to the identity or even the sex of the person who used the big automatic with such fatal skill and then evanished as successfully as if of air.

And that, so far as known, is all that has been done. The smallness of accomplishment is not a reason, perhaps, for blaming or ridiculing anybody, but surely none of those engaged in the investigation can claim to have earned any glory.

As a Phrase It Has Some Merit.

One of the German delegates at Spa, with characteristic German tact and suavity, endeared himself to the representatives of the Allies by telling them that such demands as they were making could come only from sufferers from "the disease of victory."

The phrase is not without a certain neatness, and probably the malady it names does exist, but it is not for Germans to treat its victims with scorn. "The disease of victory," with the delirium it produces, is exactly what made them believe in 1914 that they again could go where they chose and do what they would.

Of course, now, they bitterly resent the infliction upon themselves of the inevitable, necessary and just consequences of defeat. Not since NAPOLEON'S day have they had any experience with ill success, and NAPOLEON they have forgotten except as a conqueror and therefore as an exemplar. The fact that he conquered them has escaped their memories.

SIMPLIFIED GRAMMAR.

No Objection Seen to Making Education Easier.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Porterfield's sincere defense of the study of grammar in public schools has interested me because he appears in his letter an enthusiast riding his hobby, but moving so rapidly that he fails to see what all his neighbors along the highway are doing and thinking.

As one who uses words as tools to make a living, and not as one who teaches others how to use them, I should like to show Mr. Porterfield that he has possibly overlooked a large group in society that has not the familiarity with the English language that he has, and yet a great part of it knows what it is talking about, and therefore can be called educated according to Mr. Porterfield's standards.

If another were attacking this question, he, too, no doubt, would mount his hobby and say, perhaps, that the thing of greatest importance today is for a man to be versed in economic and social problems, while another would laud a wide, analytical knowledge of history.

"Already," says Mr. Porterfield, "there is far too great a tendency in education to make it easy, which is immoral; to make it short, which is irrational, and to make it practical, which is dangerous. Education is a difficult, slow, rational affair. And to be educated consists merely in knowing what you are talking about."

The history of education has shown that endeavor to make it easy, short and practical has brought no bad results. Progressive-minded pedagogues have concluded that one's education can not be completed with a Ph. D. degree. There is too much to know today. The student, if he is to be really educated, must continue his studies after his university course is completed. In order, then, to give the student a good start in his education schools and colleges teach the basic principles of subjects, with some intensive work in a few branches, to make learning an easy, practical, short business—and it is a business.

In hundreds of branches of endeavor men cannot give too much time to the study of things that, later, they cannot apply directly to their professions. The physician must give intensive study to anatomy, the lawyer to the statutes and the engineer to his mathematics. Besides that he must have the broad foundation that all men must have to make any sort of mark. To get this his intermediate instruction must be easy, short and practical. In such a scheme grammar cannot receive attention to the detriment of arithmetic, music, carpentry and reading. Consequently any method that may simplify the mystery of grammar for the majority of us should be heartily accepted as a rational evolutionary step. With this done, I see no reason why idealism and sincerity should not thrive as usual among those fortunate few gifted with mental force.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your today's issue, under the caption "American Women Made Turks Obey," appears an article which needs some elucidation on certain misguiding points for the interest of your readers.

In this article Miss Alice Clark of Evanston, Ill., is quoted as saying: "The Turks and Armenians equally are to blame for the Cilicia fighting. The Turks intended to fight the French, not the Armenians. The Armenians, however, joined the French and accepted arms to fight the Turks, which started the war of retaliation. * * *"

I will ask permission to say that it is not a war of retaliation, but the continuation of a war of extermination which was begun long ago. The Cilicia fighting is nothing else but a struggle for self-defense. The brave Armenian youth, enraged at the cold-blooded murder of his beloved mother and at the unfathomable sufferings of his enslaved sister at the hand of the brutal Turk, is shedding his blood at the altar of honor, "through misguided sense of chivalry" (?), as Miss Clark calls it, to save the life and honor of the remaining helpless Armenians.

Be it as it may, the Armenians have treated with the implacable Turks for centuries with every honorable means, but have not been able to receive the same treatment as Miss Clark and her associates have through their skillful tactics under the protection of our victorious flag. R. N. SERABIAN.

Sherman Statue Needs Attention.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is there not some way in which pressure could be brought to bear on the city administration to put the statue of General Sherman and its surrounding plot in respectable condition? All during the war this statue was hidden, and now that the temporary buildings around it have been removed it is still left with a broken down iron rail fence and the plot strewn with old cinders.

This really magnificent statue is so grimed with smoke and dirt as to be almost unrecognizable, and its prominent location at the gateway of Central Park on Fifth Avenue makes it all the more conspicuous as a disgraceful exhibition of New York's administration neglect.

This was specially called to my notice when riding on top of a Fifth Avenue bus the other day by the remarks of a little boy riding beside his mother in the seat in front of me. He said: "Oh, mother, what is that old statue?" As they were evidently Summer visitors to the city, she answered: "I don't know, I am sure, but it looks as though it was so old and dilapidated that they must be going to tear it down and cast it into the scrap pile."

Certainly the Ohio Society and the G. A. R. should use their influence to have this really magnificent statue put in recognizable condition and the plot swarded with grass. E. ANDREWS LLOYD.

A Name and Symbol.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I understand the Committee of Forty-eight is worried over the appellation by which its offspring shall be known. How strange! Has not one of the Forty-eight read the Scriptures? If he had he would find the name of Adullamites quite befitting the occasion, with a cave as the emblem.

The press staff of the Northern Baptist Convention, if I may speak for myself along with others, appreciates the pains taken by THE NEW YORK TIMES to give generous publicity to the proceedings of the convention, giving your many readers the country over the chance of attending the interesting meetings at Buffalo, at least by proxy.

WEALTH AND GOOD-WILL.

Are We Taking Advantage of Our Present Opportunities?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The reading of your editorial article, "Two Kinds of Finances," cannot fail to bring to the notice of our purblind economists the fact of our present opulence actually constituting a menace to the future unless steps be taken in time.

During the past six years we have had international business literally thrust upon us, as you so justly say. Never before has a nation been given such wonderful opportunities of expansion. While former competitors were busy settling accounts among themselves America placidly stepped in and secured their markets. We did not have to go out and find them, as England has done and is doing today, but merely filled a need and supplied the foreigner with our merchandise.

As a result we have waxed wealthy and filled our coffers with half the gold of the world. New markets have been found for our products and a greater number of ships in which to carry them. The trade balance in our favor has increased to such figures as cause one to gasp.

The wealth which we have amassed and our consequent international importance are too obvious to need comment, but have we developed in a manner commensurate to our bigness? Have we made the best use of our chances? Did we secure the good-will of those with whom we were dealing? These are questions which the future will decide.

In fact, we have already sufficient evidence at hand to judge by. Take the case of South America, for instance, which is or ought to be the natural customer of the United States.

Before the war German trade dominated. Then America secured it and regarded it as her own. Some feeble efforts have been exerted to hold it.

With truly phenomenal recuperation, however, the entry of Great Britain as a competitor has taken us somewhat by surprise. We had not looked for such speedy recovery on the part of these wizards of international commerce.

Not only are they able to undersell us in many commodities but they understand what the foreigner wants and supply him with it.

England's good-will is one of her most valuable assets, and, in spite of the strain occasioned by war on her finances and man power, she seems to be lifting herself to a more powerful position than ever before.

What do we see? Gradually she is taking our South American trade from us. Her ships are busier than ever before carrying not only her own merchandise but that of many other nations.

We are, of course, less dependent upon British shipping than we were formerly, but has sufficient study been given to the handling of our shipping? Do we fully understand the business? Although we can teach England many things, we have a good deal to learn from the old country, and we would do well to broaden out and adopt some of her methods.

There is another matter which is noteworthy. England's good-will and prosperity are not solely the outcome of her geographical position and commercial ability, but very much is due to her large out-of-door attitude in the matter of foreign investments. Recent years have seen Wall Street forge ahead toward being the world's banker. She can never realize that ambition while there is what amounts to a mere semblance of a discount market and the price of money is so high. The money is here in the United States, and yet the chief business is done in London. It is calculated that for every foreign bank carrying a balance in New York ten carry balances in London. Good-will again is the chief factor, but at the same time the Britisher knows how to employ his capital abroad and we do not. British capital is working all over the world bringing in fat dividends and good business. Can the same be said of America? We who are suffering from acute financial indigestion prefer to labor under the consequent disabilities rather than relieve the strain by investing elsewhere. No one will deny that we have an unhealthy amount of money in the United States.

It is a well-known fact that the influx of gold forces up living costs. Yet we are content to pat ourselves upon the back and say how well we have done. This is true, but are we doing well, or as well as we might? Do we see things in their right perspective?

Is it generally known that the more gold we import the poorer we will become in the long run? Why, instead of further embarrassing ourselves with gold imports, should we not use it, and much of that which is actually here, in developing our foreign markets? Immediate results cannot be expected, but they would be felt at a time when most sorely needed, namely, when we have recovered from our smug opulence and the relative purchasing power of the dollar would otherwise cause us to lose much of our cherished gold.

By using the precious metal now we can build up good-will and trade; we can bring down the cost of living and so enhance the purchasing power of our currency.

By waiting we get nothing but the prospect of having it taken from us—too late to be used to our advantage.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Any one who has traveled over the cattle countries from Northern Alberta to Southern Texas can sympathize with Mrs. Fiske in her battle for animal protection.

I have traveled by train and automobile from North to South and have seen and heard, first hand, results of careless rangers whose profits from the "survival of the fittest" amply pay for the great percentage of cattle yearly lost through neglect. Many a sad hour have I endured passing through Southern countries in drought season by seeing dead cattle along dry streams, and further north landscape dotted by cows and calves dead from neglect, and, again, carcasses of sheep caught in wire fencing where Winter storms have driven them. While it is possible to wire fence the ranges, why not windshields here and there that snowdrifts will reinforce? The beasts then need not be driven before the storms and might have a better chance to survive.

Good luck to those who have power to be heard in the cause of the cattle on the prairies. LOTTA VAN SCHAICK.

EUGENIE.

Into the Present, see! the Past has reached,
And taken back its own, a faded flower,
Its one-time lustre gone, its beauties bleached,
An Empress long since shorn of youth and power.
A thousand mem'ries cluster round her pyre,
The Tuileries, like phoenix from the fire,
A glitt'ring throng bend knee before her throne,
Whose tottering none yet see, and Europe waits,
In flattering silence, till the gods make known
The stern decision of the brooding Fates.
Again the pageant gathers, and the hosts
Await her coming decked in costumes brave,
But lo! the soldiers and the throngs are ghosts
Who come to bear her escort to the grave.

DESCHANEL HAS A RELAPSE.

Copyright, 1920, by Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, July 12.—French politicians are feverishly discussing the possibility of a meeting in the Senate Chamber at Versailles soon to choose a Vice President and possibly even a President.

The veil of mystery which has hidden the facts concerning President Deschanel's condition from the public, was lifted somewhat this morning by the publication of an agency radio note saying that M. Deschangel had suffered a new relapse into a state of fatigue, requiring constant attendance and complete rest.

The announcement that the President would be unable to review the troops on the national holiday, July 14, is accepted generally as proof that his condition is most serious. Tradition attaches the highest importance to participation of the President in the ceremonies of the fourteenth. The French are asking on the streets and suggesting in the press, "what's the use of having a President who is unable to take the centre of the stage on July 14th?"

The possibility of a new election is stirring up party strife. The Socialists and Laborites assert there is a conservative plot to assemble a constituent assembly at Versailles toward the end of July to elect a Vice President who would become President under a law to be passed later, providing his succession on resignation of the President.

The Socialists say the Conservatives' candidate is General de Castelnau. Some weight is given to this assertion by the fact the conservative press suddenly is telling the world de Castelnau is a hero and the most able French leader. Marshal Foch, M. Poincaré and General Lyautey, Governor of Morocco, are discussed as other possible favorites with the Conservatives.

M. Deschanel has gone to Rambouillet, as ordered by his doctors, for a complete rest. The public gets no details of his condition. He receives nobody.

CRITICISE BRITISH FINANCE.

Excess Profits Tax Assailed, but Chancellor Refuses Reduction.

LONDON, July 12.—A strong attack was made in the House of Commons today on the Government's financial policy, especially the excess profits tax.

The discussion came up over the Finance bill, which is in the committee stage. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replying to criticisms, declined to reduce the excess profits duty below 60 per cent., as provided in the budget, but he promised that next year the duty would not exceed 40 per cent.

The Chancellor also undertook that there should be no more borrowing, but said that the nation should begin while it was prosperous to make an earnest endeavor to reduce the debt. He was glad to say that on the Government's advice the banks were showing more caution in advancing credits for speculative purposes.

BISHOP GRAY'S PESSIMISM.

He Tells Londoners of His Colleagues' Despair Before Their Task.

LONDON, July 12.—American Bishops attending the Lambeth Conference of the Episcopal Church occupied pulpits in many London churches yesterday.

The Right Rev. William Crane Gray, Bishop of South Florida, who preached at Chelsea, spoke despairingly of the work of the conference, saying that nearly 300 Bishops who were "trying to deal with the world's problems felt they were inadequate for the job" and added: "The world apparently is thinking the same." Dr. Gray said he felt the Episcopal Church should meet Christian Scientists and "extract the truth from their doctrine, for there is much truth in it."

CITY AWARDS CONTRACTS.

Curran Objects to Having Architect Superintend Job of House Painting.

The Board of Estimate yesterday awarded to Rodgers & Hagerty, Inc., the contracts for the excavation, foundations and footing of the new court house, and to Wells & Newton Company the contract for the drainage and rough plumbing. Contracts on the other work, with the exception of the stone work and steel work, have already been awarded. It was decided to readvertise for bids on the stone work, with a revision providing for alternative bids for granite or limestone.

Borough President Henry H. Curran, who, in the absence of Aldermanic President LaGuardia, was the only Republican present, was the only member who opposed the award. "I think that decent consideration for the people would be to look to the building of houses instead of taking millions of dollars to put up a new court house for the convenience of a few judges, with the calendars growing smaller all the time," said Mr. Curran.

Later, at a meeting of the Finance and Budget Committee, Mr. Curran objected to the employment of an architect in connection with contracts for painting the south wing of the Workhouse on Blackwell's Island. "This is the first time I ever heard that it requires the services of an architect for painting the side of a house," he said. Controller Craig said that the contract had already been approved and the work done, but at Mr. Curran's insistence the committee agreed to further consider the matter.

CITY PAY RISE UP TODAY.

Democrats Say Republicans Will Not Dare Defeat Increase.

The Board of Aldermen will act today on the proposal to grant a 20 per cent. increase to city workers under the authorization by the Board of Estimate of a $5,000,000 revenue bond issue. The flat percentage plan, which has been favorably acted upon by the Board of Estimate, will, it is expected, be bitterly assailed by Fiorello H. La Guardia, President of the Board, and other Republican members, but it is believed that the plan will be adopted.

Fifty-five votes, or two-thirds of the membership of the board, are required to pass the resolution. If all of the forty-one Democratic members of the board are present and vote for the bill the aid of fourteen Republican and Socialist members will be needed. Despite the opposition of the Republican leaders, the Democratic members say that the opponents of the measure will not dare to defeat the proposed increase.

About 43,000 city employes will benefit. There is a possibility that the $5,000,000 bond issue will not be sufficient for a general 20 per cent. rise. In that case the percentage will be reduced.

Mr. La Guardia's opposition to the flat percentage plan is based on the fact that higher salaried employes will get the greatest benefit. He urges a maximum increase of $600.

BIG PAY FOR CHICAGO BOYS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Unable to resist the lure of "big money" nearly 4,700 school children between 14 and 16 years of age have shared in the highest wages ever paid to juvenile workers in Chicago, during the last ten days. Miles Anne Davis, head of the Working Certificate Bureau of the Board of Education, says the majority expect to return to school at the end of the Summer vacation.

"It is the high pay that is demoralizing the children," Miss Davis said. "Child workers are in great demand. They are able to get from $15 to $30 a week without half trying. I had one boy in here last week who has already served in fifteen jobs this year. He quits a job as soon as he has an offer for more money at another job. Another boy, only 15, is working as an assistant riveter at the South Chicago Steel Mills. He receives $7 a day."

SCHOOL ATHLETIC APPROPRIATION CUT

Board Recommends $8,000 for Competitions and $73,000 for Physical Training.

$5,000 FOR PHONOGRAPHS

Albert K. Aldinger, Director of Physical Training, told President Prall of the Board of Education yesterday, at the hearing on the school budget for 1921, of the sums required by his bureau. The matter of after-school athletic activities was first considered. Mr. Prall said that the sums asked for them should not be in the school budget any more than in any other city department budget. This work, he explained, is something that is due to the children and their parents, but more especially is due to the city of New York.

The looking after pupils after school hours, he said, is vital, as it prevents the growth of crime. It saves money for the Health and Police Departments by conserving the moral and physical health of the children.

Dr. Aldinger said that $7,800 was appropriated in 1920 for athletic competitions, but that $10,000 was needed. The sum allowed was $8,000. He asked for $73,000 for physical training, and it was allowed. For 1920, $59,787 was granted. For athletic supplies $20,213 was allowed.

He requested $11,870 for phonographs and records. He said that it was proposed to supplant pianos and the necessary players by phonographs sufficiently compact to be taken from one school to another as the occasion might require, and in this way a large saving would result. The amount was cut to $5,000.

Dr. Aldinger also said that the stenographer employed in public school athletic work has been paid for eleven years by the Public Schools Athletic League, which thinks that the city ought to pay his salary of $1,800. This was not allowed. For athletic fields he obtained $11,900. In 1920 the sum allowed was $9,416.

He wanted thirty-two Supervisors at $161,000, instead of twenty-seven at $124,000, as at present. His request was granted. In 1920 the athletic events numbered 1,440. He asked that 2,000 be granted for 1921. This was not allowed.

Captain C. G. Leland, the Board of Education's chief librarian, asked for $78,000 for libraries, but $70,000 was granted. The sum he obtained for them in 1920 was $66,000.

George J. Loewy, Director of Vocational Activities, gave his estimates for shop work, serving in the elementary schools, pre-vocational, vocational and co-operative schools. Many of his estimates were cut. Most of the reduction was in the Advisory Board on Vocational Training, created by the Legislature.

A request for $71,000 to remove the last of the Gary school equipment and machinery, valued at from $125,000 to $150,000, from the Gary schools for use in vocational schools, thus allowing for the rebuilding of classrooms which had been used for the Gary system workshops was granted.

One of the lesser items cut from Mr. Loewy's estimate was 75 cents for the meal of each co-ordinator in the high schools. Dr. Ettinger explained that when the new co-operation school was established in Hubert Street, with 1,000 students, the work of the co-ordinators would be done in it and not, as now, in the various high schools of the city. It was shown that the chief co-ordinator by the receipt of various salaries would draw $5,600 from the city treasury in 1921. It was decided to cut down some of the activities of what Mr. Prall said was an educational "Pooh Bah."

The conference will be continued today.

MRS. GIBSON WEDS MAJOR M. E. LOCKE

Gen. Pershing a Guest at Ceremony of Former Wife of Preston Gibson at the Ritz.

GEN. WRIGHT IS BEST MAN

The marriage of Mrs. McMillan Gibson of Washington and Major Morris Ernest Locke, U. S. A., was quietly celebrated at 5 o'clock yesterday in a private suite at the Ritz-Carlton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Charles Wood, pastor of the Church of the Covenant in Washington, who came to New York from his Summer home at Jamestown, R. I., to officiate. Major Gen. William Mason Wright was best man for Major Locke.

Only a small group of relatives and intimate friends witnessed the ceremony, which was followed by an informal reception.

The bride's uncle, Francis Wetmore McMillan, gave her in marriage. Her two children, Master James McMillan Gibson and young Miss Mary Preston Gibson, were her only attendants. She wore a gown of white chiffon and a large henna-colored hat and scarf of the same hue. Little Miss Gibson, who acted as flower girl, wore a white frock and carried pink rosebuds.

The bride came to this city from Washington last week and has been stopping at the Ritz-Carlton. Major Locke and his relatives arrived here Sunday, and made the Hotel Gotham their temporary residence. Among the party with Major Locke were Miss Erskine of Baltimore, Miss Mary Erskine of Chambersburg, Pa., and W. P. McGuire of Harrisburg.

Mrs. Locke was formerly Miss Grace Jarvis of Detroit, before her marriage to Preston Gibson, son of the late Senator from Louisiana. Major Locke served overseas with the American forces and since his return to this country has been on duty at the War College in Washington.

Among the guests at the wedding were General John J. Pershing, who was accompanied by his aid, Colonel Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson, cousins of the bride, who came from Brookline, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Polk, Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, and her daughter, Mrs. Cromwell Brooks.

Major Locke and his bride will spend their honeymoon motoring, and will visit Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson at Brookline before returning to Washington.

WANDERER INDICTED, WILL FACE TRIAL SOON

Two True Bills Are Found Against Him by Grand Jury—Release the Girl in Case.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Carl Wanderer, former army officer, will go to trial within a month for the slaying of his wife and an unidentified stranger who aided him in staging a simulated holdup, State's Attorney Hoyne said today, after two true bills had been voted by a Grand Jury.

The indictments will not be returned until later in the week, on recommendation of the State's attorney's office, to permit further questioning of the prisoner.

Meanwhile, the police continued their efforts to find a woman in the case and to establish the identity of the stranger. It was thought for a time that he was John J. Maloney of River Point, R. I., but the police said that a description of Maloney did not tally with that of the man whose body is in a morgue. The unidentified man was not more than 22 years old the police said, while Maloney was said to be about 40.

Wanderer, who had maintained a cheerful composure since his arrest, is weakening under the strain of events, the police said. When questioned today his replies were halting, and he complained that he had not had a square deal.

He still insisted that he did not know the identity of the man he shot.

"I went through the locality where I met this fellow," he said, "to pick up the first 'bum' I could get to agree to accept my offer, determining that whoever he was I would shoot him to make it appear that the robbery I intended to stage was real.

"To make the whole affair appear more reasonable, I had my wife draw $1,500 from a bank so that would be a motive for the man to hold us up."

The police questioned Miss Julia Schmitt, a stenographer, after it was learned that Wanderer had written a letter to her, but she was later released. Both Wanderer and the young woman denied anything more than a casual friendship between them. Miss Schmitt said she did not know Wanderer was married.

Rogers—Rowley.

The wedding of Miss Julia Victoria Rowley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rowley and Rufus L. Rogers, son of Mrs. Herbert Rogers, of Baldwinsville, N. Y., took place last evening at the home of the bride's parents, North Plainfield. The Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, of Passaic, officiated.

Mrs. Samuel Massey, of Saratoga, was matron of honor, and Franklin Rowley, brother of the bride, was best man. The ushers were Harry B. Winit, of Brooklyn, Ralph Smalley and Addison Newkirk, of Plainfield. Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Syracuse University. The latter is employed at the Syracuse branch of the New York banking house of Spencer Trask & Co.

Brucks-Stettiner.

The marriage of Miss Lillie Stettiner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stettiner of 23 West Seventieth Street, and Lester M. Brucks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isidore Brucks, of 304 West Ninety-ninth Street, took place last evening at the Hotel St. Regis.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Harry N. Wessel, as matron of honor, and the Misses Brucks. Edwin Brucks was best man and Harry N. Wessel and Arthur Brucks served as ushers.

Miss Bell to Wed R. H. Finlay.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Helen Bell, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert J. Bell of Brooklyn, to Raymond Holdsworth Finlay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Finlay, also of Brooklyn. Miss Bell's father is on the Board of Governors of the Crescent Athletic Club. Mr. Finlay was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania, class of '15, and later from Annapolis. As a Lieutenant, junior grade, he was in command of submarine chasers. His father is President of the Yacht Racing Association of Gravesend Bay.

Paterson-Blydenburgh Engagement.

Mrs. Addie G. Paterson, of Middletown, Conn., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Marion B. Paterson to Dr. Theron Blydenburgh. Dr. Blydenburgh is attached to the Park Hospital, 395 Central Park West, this city.

ABSOLVES PRELATE IN ANTHEM INCIDENT

PLOT ON SHIP, HE CHARGES

Father Vaughan Says Air Followed "God Save the King," Sung by Britons.

Archbishop Daniel Mannix of Melbourne, Australia, did sit still during the playing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" on board the Ventura, in Honolulu harbor, but he did it because he did not know that the music, which he heard but faintly, was that of the American national anthem.

The prelate's secretary, the Rev. Albert Vaughan, who is a native of Australia, arrived in this city yesterday, and last evening explained the incident to reporters at the rectory of the Catholic Church of St. Benedict the Moor, 264 West Fifty-third Street, where he is a guest of the Rev. Thomas M. O'Keefe, the pastor.

"It is all a plot," said Father Vaughan. "Efforts were made to discredit his Grace in Australia, and also on the Ventura. The incident in Honolulu harbor was the culmination of a number of happenings."

Then he told of the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" being called for one evening at dinner. He went on:

"The moment the air of 'The Star-Spangled Banner' was begun Archbishop Mannix arose to his feet, as did all our party, and remained until it was concluded.

"Three days after this the Honolulu Band was farewelling our vessel. The band was stationed on the wharf. The Archbishop was seated on the upper deck of the vessel, from which he could not see the band.

"The band rendered several items, and at the end broke into the air of 'America,' which is the same as that of 'God Save the King.' A group of Britishers gathered near the Archbishop's deck chair, and sang to the band's accompaniment the words to England's national anthem, 'God Save the King.'

"It was an evident effort to embarrass Archbishop Mannix. The Archbishop refused to take any notice of the anthem. Then a gentleman named Parsons approached the Archbishop and said to him: 'Do you not know that is our national anthem?'

"The Archbishop at this time was unaware of two facts. The first was his Grace did not know who Mr. Parsons was or what his nationality was. The second is that he did not know the band below on the wharf had broken from 'America,' or 'God Save the King,' into 'The Star-Spangled Banner.'

"The Archbishop thought that Mr. Parsons was one of the Britishers that had been singing the words of 'God Save the King' to the band accompaniment."

Father Vaughan added that the Archbishop was "confused and embarrassed" in Honolulu Harbor by the actions of the Britons. He told how the Archbishop saluted the American flag at San Francisco, and said it was ridiculous to think the prelate would insult a country he was about to visit.

The Mr. Parsons to whom Father Vaughan referred is Marcellus Parsons of this city, who subsequently, with several other passengers, filed with the Immigration Bureau of the State Department at Washington, D. C., a protest against the admission of Archbishop Mannix to the country and a request for his deportation.

Archbishop Mannix and his party made their journey from Australia on the Ventura, leaving Sydney May 19, last, and arriving at San Francisco, June 7, last. The Archbishop went to Montreal. He is due to arrive in this city at 6 o'clock Saturday evening. Today he will be at the Catholic Summer School, Cliff Haven, Lake Champlain. He will come down from Albany Saturday morning on the Hudson River Day Line. While here he will be the guest of Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes. He is on his way to Rome.

A mass meeting in the interest of Ireland will be held in Madison Square Garden next Sunday evening under the auspices of the Archdiocese of New York, at which Archbishop Hayes will preside. The speakers will be Archbishop Mannix and Eamon De Valera, so-called "President of the Irish Republic." Next Tuesday evening a dinner will be given to Archbishop Mannix at the Hotel Astor by the Maynooth Union of the United States. Archbishop Hayes will preside and De Valera will make an address.

It was announced yesterday that Archbishop Mannix would receive the freedom of the city from Mayor Hylan at the City Hall.

MRS. CRUGER, NOVELIST JULIEN GORDON, DIES

Mrs. Julie Grinnell Storrow Cruger, who died yesterday, was the widow of Colonel S. Van Rensselaer Cruger of this city and the divorced wife of Wade Chance of this city and London. She was well known by her pen name of Julien Gordon, under which she wrote several successful novels of New York and Washingtotn Society.

Mrs. Cruger was the daughter of Thomas Wentworth Storrow of Boston and a grandniece of Washington Irving. Her first husband, who died in 1898, left her a large fortune, and in 1908 she was married in Washington to Wade Chance,a broker, ten years her junior. They lived together in London for thirteen months, and then separated. Both then sought the courts, Mr. Chance finally winning a decree in Los Angeles in 1915, the action not being opposed.

It was after the death of Colonel Cruger that Julien Gordon's novels began to attract attention, the most popular being "Mr. Clyde," "Vampires" and "A Diplomat's Diary," the characters of all being easily recognized. Mrs. Cruger's homes at that period, in New York and Oyster Bay, were said to approach the French salons as nearly as was possible under American conditions. She moved to Italy for a time, and then went to Washington, where her second marriage surprised her friends.

in close touch with the situation on the Polish-Bolshevik front as to the ultimate ability of the Poles to hold the armistice line, the tentative boundary of Poland fixed by the Supreme Council. Poland, in originally advancing her troops beyond this line, offered as justification the entire absence of strategic defenses on the border determined for the Polish State by the Allies.

Promise of substantial French and British support to Poland, conditioned upon withdrawal of her army to the armistice line, is discounted in the same quarters here by reason of what is said to be the inability of the Allies to give to Poland munitions and men in any quantity. British labor, it is recalled, has refused summarily to aid in the transportation of munitions destined for Poland and neither France nor Great Britain is believed to be in a position to offer men as reinforcements.

REDS STILL ADVANCING NORTH OF PRIPET

WARSAW, July 12 (Associated Press.)—The Bolsheviki, after occupying Smolewicze, to the east of Minsk, have reached the trenches bordering on Minsk, where fighting is in progress, according to the official communique from the War Office today.

Polish detachments have been forced to abandon the line along the river Vilja, the communiqué adds. The Bolsheviki have occupied Pantabyoze and Viazyn and are approaching Molodeolmo. They are pressing the attack despite enormous losses.

Victories for the Poles in the Pripet region and in Volhynia are reported in other advices received here today. The Bolshevist cavalry leader General Budenny has been defeated, the advices state, and he is fleeing to Rovno, upon which the Poles are marching.

The victory of the Poles in the Pripet region is described as "complete." Enormous supplies are declared to have been taken with the occupation of the town of Owruncz, where 200 prisoners also were picked up.

The troops operating against General Budenny, the advices report, captured Great and Little Zvoin, taking eight guns, while a Bolshevist cavalry brigade was annihilated.

Bolshevist attacks south and west of Rovno were repulsed, the message adds.

Americans and other foreigners in Warsaw are considering emergency plans in the event that the Bolsheviki menace Warsaw. The Red Cross and other welfare organization members today attended a meeting at the American Legation and discussed plans for the evacuation of the city and also for the care of American property.

Colonel Harry Gilchrist, chief of the expedition to combat typhus, has called a meeting to organize a chapter of the American Legion. At the meeting the question of offering the services of the Legion to the Polish Government will be discussed. The Legion members will guard American property and look after Americans who may remain in Warsaw if the Bolsheviki arrive here. It is estimated that there are 200 Americans, former service men, in Warsaw.

The American relief associations, the Red Cross, the Young Men's Christian Association and the typhus expedition have in warehouses in Warsaw various supplies valued at millions of dollars. They have completed their evacuation of Viena in the north and of Lemberg in the south.

The Russian residents of Warsaw have held a mass meeting and begun the organization of infantry and cavalry detachments to fight the advancing Bolsheviki.

LONDON, July 12.—Polish armies struggling to stem the advance of Russian Bolsheviki on the southern front have taken the offensive near Rovno, according to an official statement issued in Moscow and received here by wireless. Further south the Soviet forces are continuing their drive successfully north of the Dniester River, and have occupied Nova Ushitsa, northeast of Kamenetz-Podolsk, the statement declares.

Another Moscow wireless dispatch, recounting the successes scored by the Bolsheviki in their offensive, states that on July 4, on one front of seventy-three miles, "we captured more than 4,000 prisoners, 19 guns, one tank, many machine guns, a considerable amount of other munitions, and large stores of food, in addition to enormous damage inflicted on the enemy in killed and wounded, according to incomplete information." The statement adds:

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The following cablegram from Kovno was received today by the Lithuanian representative at Washington reporting the retirement of the Polish forces in the northern occupied regions:

"The Poles, pressed by the Bolsheviki, have evacuated Dvinsk and are retreating south. Lithuanian troops have occupied the Dvinsk-Vilna Railroad from Kalkuny south to Dukshty. Lithuanian forces are in contact with the Bolsheviki on an extensive front. The Letts crossed the river Dvina along a line Brugen-Skradolino-Kaplavo. A demarkation line is being established between the Lithuanians and the Letts.

"Yesterday the Poles began retreating from Lithuanian territories, withdrawing toward Vilna, which is being evacuated. Lithuanian forces have occupied Dukshty, Taurogen, Kukusishki, Skaduzishki, Pakalne, Alunta, Shirventy and other places."

COPENHAGEN, July 12.—A special dispatch to the National Tidende from Helsingfors says:

"According to telegraphic reports received here the offensive of General Wrangel is progressing exceedingly well, the troops of General Glastjens having taken Melitopol. General Kupetov has initiated a strong offensive in the rear of the Red army and forced it back in an easterly direction.

"Kuban Cossacks attacked the Bolsheviki, making 10,000 prisoners and taking fifty guns. The Bolsheviki surrendered without resistance.

CARDINALS DEFEAT GIANTS IN THE TENTH

ST. LOUIS GETS FINE START

Makes Three Runs in First Inning, Then Fails to Threaten Again Until the Ninth.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 12.—Fred Toney wild pitched the Cardinals into third place at Sportsman's Park this afternoon. The big New York right-hander bounced the ball from in front of the plate to the grand stand and Cliff Heathcote scored from second with two out in the tenth inning, making the score, 4 to 3. Toney's wildness abruptly ended a battle of the mound in which he was pitted against Jess Haines.

Toney donated the ball game after superbly turning back the Rickeymen following their rampage for three runs on four hits in the first inning. Foolish base running by Jack Fournier in the opener deprived the Cardinals of an opportunity to win in the regular number of innings and accorded the Giants a chance to equalize in the seventh after counting twice in the second stanza. Jack, having bounced a double to right off Doyle's shins to score Smith, lumbered to third on a futile mission, Young's throw being half the distance to the far corner when Fournier started from second. The blunder occurred prior to Lavan's triple to right. Thereafter until the fatal tenth Toney was a superior hurler to Haines, who continually jammed himself into dire depths through his own wildness.

The Cardinals bowed in succession in the second, third, fourth, fifth and seventh innings. The procession was interrupted in the sixth when Dave Bancroft wild heaved on Hornsby's grounder with two out. In one inning Toney allowed four bingles. In nine and two-thirds innings he allowed four more, none of the latter bunched. Heathcote made the eighth hit to open the tenth inning, was sacrificed to second and Toney did the rest.

Verne Clemens, scheduled to handle Haines all afternoon, was banished in the third inning for repeatedly voicing his disapproval of the manner in which Umpire Quigley was calling balls and strikes. Dilhoefer replaced him.

Cardinals Make Good Start.

Jack Smith started the Cardinals to three runs in the first by safely beating out a swinging bunt to Kelly. Fournier doubled off Doyle's shins, Smith scoring. The sun must have bothered Fournier, who waited on second until Young heaved for third. With the ball half the distance to Frisch Fournier decided to go the other way. He was so far behind the throw that he had time to attempt to retrace to second before Frisch put the ball on him. Stock walked and was out stealing second until Bancroft dropped Earl Smith's throw. Hornsby's elevation to Young sent him to third, from which position he strolled in on Lavan's triple to right. "Doc" made it three runs when Clemons looped a single to centre.

New York scooped two of the runs in the second. Frisch led with a single to centre, Kelly walked and Spencer shot a single off Haines's glove, which filled the bases. Doyle lifted to McHenry. Frisch scoring after the catch. After Smith paraded, again baffling the corners, Toney rolled out, Hornsby to Fournier, Kelly going over. Burns had a chance to help the cause, but his best was a tap to Haines.

While Toney mastered the Cardinals, Haines was having his troubles. In the second Young walked, stole second and continued to third on Hornsby's error, but a perfect throw by Hornsby to Dilhoefer, on Frisch's grounder, killed Young at the plate. In the third Spencer opened with an infield single, but was out stealing. Doyle walked and stole second. He was left when Earl Smith and Toney failed to hit behind him.

Giants Tie Score.

The score was tied in the seventh. Doyle began with a double off Hornsby's shoes and a wild pitch put him on third. Smith popped out, but Toney rolled to Hornsby and Doyle scored the tying run.

When Lavan singled in the ninth and dodged around Bancroft to pilfer the middle bag he was the first Cardinal to get that far after the initial period. That success gained nothing as Dilhoefer and McHenry went out.

Haines checked the Giants in the eighth, ninth and tenth, and then the Rickeyites won out. Heathcote opened the tenth with a clean single to centre and Haines sacrificed. Smith drove short to centre, Spencer, the Giants' most recent acquisition, making a grand catch after a long run. Toney, in trying to avoid the middle of the plate, shot low toward Earl Smith, the ball striking in front of the plate to bounce to the stand, and Heathcote scored.

Ferdie Schupp will pitch for the Cardinals in the second game of the series tomorrow, probably against Arthur Nehf.

CARDINALS GET KIRCHER.

Outbid Other Clubs for Star Pitcher of Virginia League.

ST. LOUIS, July 12.—Manager Branch Rickey tonight confirmed the report from Richmond, Va., to the effect that the Cardinals had obtained Mike Kircher, the leading pitcher of the Virginia League. To land the pitcher the St. Louis Club was forced to outbid the Giants, Cubs and Cleveland Indians.

Charles Kelchner, Eastern scout for the Cardinals, has been watching the youngster for some time and recommended him to Rickey. Agents of the three other major league clubs also reported favorably on Kircher and competitive bidding resulted. Kircher is a big left-hander. He is 6 feet tall, weighs 190 pounds and is 22 years old. Thus far this season he has won sixteen games, lost one and tied two. His lone defeat was a sixteen-inning affair, while one of the tie games went fourteen and the other twelve innings.

Kircher's pitching has Richmond in the thick of the pennant fight, and the club will not deliver him to the Cardinals before the end of the Virginia League season, Sept. 11, unless the team clinches the pennant or falls out of the race before that date.

ROBINS TAKE TWO GAMES FROM CUBS

CHICAGO, July 12.—After winning four out of five games at St. Louis, the Robins came to the Windy City today and made an encouraging start by grabbing both ends of a double header from the Cubs. The scores were 13 to 4 and 10 to 2. The second victory of the afternoon was the fifth in succession for Wilbert Robinson's pennant chasers, who took three in a row from the Cardinals before they hit the trail to Chicago. Incidentally, the Brooklyn clan gained a little more in the race for John Heydler's bunting, the Reds winning only one game during the day.

The change of scene to North Side Park seemed to make no difference to the batting orbs of the Flatbush troupe, who battered Martin and Hendrix for twenty-nine hits in the double bill. In the opening pastime Martin was slammed for sixteen bingles, two of which were doubles and two triples. Martin lasted out the battle, but he was a mere adornment after the fourth inning, when the Robins corralled five runs, making their total ten. After that debacle Martin lingered merely to furnish the proper contrast to Burleigh Grimes's elusive work on the hill. The Brooklyn hurler held the Cubs to four runs and eight hits and was never in danger of losing control of the game.

In both clashes the Cubs helped the cause by making disastrous bobbles at critical moments. Herzog, Paskert, Merkle and Hollocher were guilty of some bad playing, Herzog in particular drawing the jeers of the crowd by his erratic work. In the third frame of the opener the former Giant muffed Wheat's short fly and a few minutes later booted Koney's grounder. This was too much for the Cub fans to swallow and they kept right after Charlie for the rest of the afternoon. When he came to bat in the fourth, the fans booed so lustily that the third baseman was compelled to lift his cap in recognition.

Smith Twirls Effectively.

In the second game Sherrod Smith, aided by the same sort of ferocious hitting that the Robinson clan had shown in the initial battle, had little trouble in subduing the once-ambitious Cubs. Claude Hendrix, on the mound for the Mitchell men, was reached for a run in the first and second innings, but managed to breeze along until the sixth, when another uprising sent Chicago hopes aglimmering. Three more tallies in the ninth helped to convince the crowd that the path to the pennant is lined with many a bramble bush.

Olson scored the first run in the opening game by walking in the initial inning and making the circuit. Johnston's sacrifice and Zack Wheat's single. The latter hit was turned into a fluke home run when Paskert allowed the pellet to roll by him to the fence. In the second canto Kilduff made the round trip on his single, Miller's one-base hit and Grimes's sacrifice fly to Twombly.

The Robins kept breezing right along in the third, when they added two more. Herzog muffed Wheat's fly, and the latter tallied on Myers's triple to right. Herzog again erred on Koney's grounder, Myers scoring the second run. In the fourth Olson and Johnston singled with one down. A double by Griffith sent Olson over, and Johnston was safe at the plate when O'Farrell muffed Merkle's throw on Wheat's grounder. Griffith tallied on Myers's infield tap, and the bases were loaded when Koney popped out a hit to Hollocher. Kilduff was out on a grounder to Terry, but Wheat scored. A single by Taylor, batting for Miller, brought Myers across.

Wheat began the sixth by singling to centre. Merkle ran for the Brooklyn Captain, and Myers hit into a double play, Terry to Hollocher to Merkle. Koney singled, went to second on a wild pitch, and scored on Taylor's double to left centre. The latter blow also tallied Kilduff, who had walked. Griffith's single and McCabe's single in the eighth sent the last Brooklyn run across the pan.

Chicago's Four Runs.

The Cubs scored on in the first on Hollocher's single, two walks and Robertson's sacrifice fly. Twombly sauntered in the fifth, went to third when Kilduff fumbled Hollocher's grounder, and scored on Terry's sacrifice fly. Two singles and a sacrifice hit accounted for another marker in the seventh, and Robertson's homer in the eighth was the fourth and last Cub run.

In the second game Olson started with a double and was sent around by an infield out and a sacrifice fly. Koney tripled in the second and was helped along with a wild pitch by Hendrix. The Robins put the pastime on ice by tallying five runs in the sixth. Wheat and Koney singled and Kilduff doubled. Smith walked, filling the bases, and Kilduff scored when Merkle muffed Olson's pop fly. Smith and Olson weighed in at the plate when Hollocher threw into right field on Johnston's tap.

The ninth saw the Robins chalking up three markers. Johnston singled, Myers tripled, Koney walked and Kilduff doubled, this combination resulting in the trio of runs. The Cubs scored the first of their two tallies in the sixth, when Hendrix, Hollocher and Terry singled, Hendrix crossing the plate. In the seventh Paskert walked, went to second on Killifer's single and scored on Twombly's safety.

Scott to Play 600th Game For Red Sox Tomorrow

Everett Scott, shortstop of the Red Sox, is due to play his 600th consecutive game for Boston tomorrow unless rain intervenes. The Red Sox will play a double-header with the Tigers tomorrow and the first of the two games will round out Scott's sixth century. Scott closed last week with 597 games, 20 better than the former record made by Pinckney of Brooklyn between 1885 and 1890. Scott started his Marathon June 20, 1916, and has led his league four seasons in fielding. His mark of 976 in 1918 and 1919 was three points better than that ever averaged by any other shortstop. This season he is going as well as ever, with a fielding average of .975 at the end of last week.

BROWNS TAKE FINAL GAME FROM RED SOX

BOSTON, July 12.—St. Louis took the last game of the series from Boston, 3 to 2, today. Boston outhit the visitors and had 16 left on bases. Durwell relieved Vangilder in the second, and pitched well until the ninth, when he forced in a run by passing Walters. Sothoron then pitched to pinch hitter Pennock, with the bases full and two out, and retired the side.

SKEETERS LOSE ANOTHER.

Special to The New York Times.

AKRON, Ohio, July 12.—Lefty Hill set Bill Donovan's Skeeters down with four hits and Akron captured the second game of the series with Jersey City here today, 5 to 1. It was the Numatics' fifteenth straight victory on their own lot.

Donovan selected Ferguson to check the Rubber City crew, but the big fellow was hit hard. This, combined with ragged work in the Skeeters' infield, gave the home team a well-earned victory.

Hill allowed only one hit in the first seven innings. A shutout was within his grasp when McCann uncorked a single with one down in the ninth frame. He reached second on Denoville's out and Kane's single sent him over the plate.

Akron scored two runs in the third. Walker drove a single to centre which Zimmerman fumbled and the Numatics' catcher reached second. Purtell bunted and was safe, Walker going to third. He scored on Hill's out and Purtell counted when Zitman threw high to first on Walsh's roller.

A single by Jim Thorpe, Hoblitzel's out and Webb's single scored the Indian with a run in the fourth. Webb went to second on the throw to the plate, he tallied on Walker's single.

Shields was hit to start the fifth, Walsh sacrificed and Thorpe's double brought Akron's last run over.

SHAMROCK LEAVES DRY DOCK FOR HOOK

MEASUREMENTS COMPLETED

Special to The New York Times.

SANDY HOOK, N. J., July 12.—Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger for the America's Cup, Shamrock IV, and the other vessels of the Lipton fleet have returned to their anchorages in the Horseshoe. Measurement of the challenger was completed shortly before noon today at Morse's Drydock in South Brooklyn. She was lowered into the oil-covered water with a silken apron around her at the waterline to keep her clean.

That precaution proved to be much more effective than in the case of the Resolute, for it was possible to tack the apron to the challenger's wooden sides, which could not be done to the bronze underbody of the defender. Only a couple of patches of oil were visible and they could be cleaned off without difficulty. It is doubtful if the Shamrock will be hauled out of the water again before the big contest. It is understood that Resolute is to be hauled out tomorrow on some marine railway where there is clean water to be recleaned.

The procession down to the Hook was headed by the steam yacht Victoria with Sir Thomas Lipton aboard. The Victoria had in tow the challenger and 23-meter Shamrock, while the tug Governor Smith with the houseboat Killarney in tow followed slowly and ever further astern.

Resolute at Mooring.

The Resolute was at her mooring with mainsail up and jib in stops when the Lipton outfit arrived. The advance fleet of sight-seeing yachts began to arrive here today. It is expected that by tomorrow Sandy Hook Bay will be dotted all over with sail and power craft. The work of measuring the challenger ended while she was being towed from her drydock to the Hook when Harold W. Webb, measurer of the New York Yacht Club, was up at the challenger's truck taking the measurement of the mast, aided by his assistant, Henry Lee Norris. After the two Shamrocks and the Killarney were safe and sound at their anchorages, the Victoria steamed to Sea Gate with Sir Thomas and the afterguard aboard to attend a dinner given in his honor by the Atlantic Yacht Club.

Resolute had a brief trial spin this morning and another this afternoon, during which new sails were tried out. Shamrock's bowsprit extends fifteen inches further outboard than heretofore. Those actively identified with the racing sloop are greatly interested in knowing whether there is much betting on the outcome of the contest and if so how the odds stand. Shamrock will be given a thorough tryout tomorrow, during which new sails will be used for the first time.

Measurement Complete.

Charles E. Nicholson, the designer and builder of the Shamrock IV., was the only one of the Lipton party who was unable to attend the dinner at the Atlantic Yacht Club. His presence was demanded aboard the Resolute where Mr. Webb completed the final measurements on the defender tonight. While the Resolute was in drydock in South Brooklyn her topsails had been at Ratsey's in City Island being recut. Therefore, it had been impossible to measure them. This was done tonight.

This evening a fierce squall was seen approaching from the northwest and those aboard the two cup yachts, the houseboat Killarney and the 23-meter Shamrock, gave thanks that they had Government-planted buoys to hang to.

It blew so hard that everything aboard the two cup yachts had to be scuttled below for safe keeping. When Sir Thomas and his party aboard the Victoria proceeded to Sea Gate some anxiety was expressed for the safety of the two sloops that will struggle for supremacy beginning on Thursday. The wind was blowing a gale, but every precaution to protect the sloops had been taken and it was generally believed that they would weather the blow without suffering damage of any description.

Immediately after the Shamrock's trials tomorrow, Sir Thomas Lipton will proceed aboard the Victoria to the Columbia Yacht Club, off which he will be a guest of Commodore J. P. Morgan's on board the Corsair tomorrow night.

DOHENY HOST TO LIPTON.

Sir Thomas Lipton and the afterguard of the America's Cup challenger, Shamrock IV., were the guests of Commodore and Mrs. Edward L. Doheny at a dinner at the Atlantic Yacht Club last night. More than 300 attended the affair. Sir Thomas was presented with the America's Cup—done in sugar. He stated that, although it was "exceedingly sweet," he would rather win the original.

The principal table was in the form of a big circle, in the centre of which was a sunken "ocean," made of fern leaves. Directly in front of Sir Thomas was Ambrose Light Vessel and a miniature committee boat. It was supposed to represent the starting line of the big international race. Coming down on the line were models of the challenger and defender.

Speeches were made by Commodore Doheny, Sir Thomas and the Hon. Franklin K. Lane, former Secretary of the Interior.

TO VIEW RACES FROM AIR.

Yachting Enthusiasts Engage Passage on Seaplanes.

It is now certain that not a few persons will witness the cup races between Shamrock IV. and Resolute from seaplanes and airplanes. Passage is being booked at fabulous prices, and it appears now as if whole squadrons of aircraft will hover high above the rival sloops as they struggle for marine supremacy over the thirty-mile courses off Sandy Hook, beginning on Thursday.

This realization lends itself to an extremely novel situation. Aircraft are something which will have to be reckoned with during the cup races. This is a problem that will call for active surveillance by the air police while the actual races are in progress. It will be necessary to keep the aircraft high enough above the contending yachts to prevent their presence affecting the sailing conditions. It is expected that they will have to be compelled to remain more than 400 feet above the yachts. While recently discussing the proposition, Charles E. Nicholson, designer and builder of the Shamrock IV., stated that the presence of an airplane 400 feet above would have its effect on air currents.

Track and Swim Meet Scheduled.

An attractive program of swimming and track events will be conducted Saturday afternoon by the Tebo Yacht Basin Employes Association, on the occasion of the organization's annual athletic carnival. The track events will be held at Ulmer Park, Brooklyn, and include the following tests: 500-yard run, open handicap; one-mile run, open handicap; inter-yard tug-of-war and 1,000-yard run, for Todd Shipyards employes; 220-yard dash and half-mile inter-department relay for Tebo Yacht Basin employes, and a 75-yard dash for women. The swimming events include a variety high diving test for the Tebo Cup and a 150-yard open handicap swim.

CARLISLE, Pa., July 12.—Through arrangements just completed by Manager Ornstein, the West Point baseball team will play the new Army Field Service School nine of the Carlisle Barracks on Glenn Warner Field next Saturday in honor of Colonel F. R. Keefer, who will leave about July 20 for an important army post. West Point, which is trained by John (Hans) Lobert, has probably never played a formal event against a ball club containing enlisted men and hardly ever plays away from West Point. Many unsuccessful efforts were made by the Carlisle Indians to get the cadets to Carlisle, although the Redskins frequently played the Military Academy at West Point. Here the willingness of West Point to visit is looked upon as a graceful broadening of the scope of army athletics.

MIZPAH IS WINNER OF SEA GATE RACE

To entertain the yachtsmen who are at Sea Gate this week the Atlantic Yacht Club started a miniature "race week" yesterday. The first event was an open regatta for all classes for cups offered by Commodore Edgar F. Luckenback. Following the race there was a special contest for women skippers. The wind throughout was southwest and fairly strong, having about enough strength to give the smaller boats plenty of work.

The largest class to fill was the thirty-foot division of the New York Yacht Club. Although four are at Sea Gate, only two raced yesterday. They were sent over an outside course that gave them a stiff beat down the channel against both wind and tide to Old Orchard Shoal Light, a spinnaker run to Ambrose Channel Buoy 10 and a reach home. The winner was Dr. D. R. Richardson's Mizpah.

The other yachts went over the usual inside course of the Yacht Racing Association of Gravesend Bay. In the victory class Dr. Atkinson won in his Cantigny. Although Pingvin was the first home, Fantasie was the winner in the first division of the handicap class on corrected time. Mouse continued her winning way by coming home first in the knockabout class and Saturn was the first star yacht home. On both actual and corrected time Sea Cob won in the second division of the handicap class.

In the woman's race that followed the main regatta Mouse again won. This time she was sailed by Miss Harriet Fisher. Bug II., sailed by Mrs. May Jacobson, won in the handicap class. Today the series racing will start, the feature being the first race for the Lipton Cup for the victory class. The races yesterday were managed by Carlos de Zafra and I. L. Beebe, Jr., of the Regatta Committee of the club.

GARDENIA'S TIME BEST.

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., July 12.—Commodore H. M. Williams of the yachting department of the New York Athletic Club, who has been timing the yachts that took part in the 100-mile race of the organization from Huckleberry Island to West Harbor here, stated today that the best elapsed time made in the power boat division was by H. Anderson's Gardenia. This craft, which measured into Class A, had an allowance of 58 minutes 9 seconds. Her corrected time was 10 hours 45 minutes.

Owing to a heavy fog the yachts all had considerable trouble in reaching the finishing line. J. Haslinger's Kodak ran on the beach and had to be towed to the finish line by W. Bond's Champ. Uonda also ran on the beach, but managed to finish. Adelew put into New London and never reached here. The figures have not yet been computed in the sailing divisions. In the motor boat classes the yachts finished as follows on corrected time:

Class A—H. Anderson's Gardenia, first; T. Falmer, Jr.'s Turtle, second; W. Bond's Champ, third; Halsey & Van Amridge's Spendthrift, fourth; A. B. Duryea's Uonda, fifth; Bradley Randall's Undine did not finish.

Special to The New York Times.

LARCHMONT, N. Y., July 12.—A fifteen knot southwester gave the racing portion of the Eastern Yacht Club fleet a good twenty-five mile run up the Sound to this port today as a fitting climax of the cruise of 150 miles along the southern New England and eastern New York shores. The winners for the day were the schooner Queen Mab and the New York Yacht Club forty-footer Rowdy. Queen Mab finished the cruise with an unbroken record of six victories while Rowdy scored two firsts, two seconds and a third.

The run today up the Sound was made on the port tack. At times the wind hauled a bit ahead and made some of the outside boats pinch a bit for the finish. The start, with lifted sheets, was a lively one and Shawara, being a bit anxious, was across before the signal and had to turn back. This put the Wesson boat far astern, but before reaching Lloyd's Neck she had pushed up into fourth place, thanks to the able work of Edward Fish, the Larchmont amateur, who was at the wheel. By the time Oyster Bay had been reached, Rowdy, which had crossed first and had never been headed, had first place firmly clutched barring accidents, although Mistral, which was close astern at the start, pressed her hard at times. Harry Maxwell held Zilph well off shore in the hope of getting some assistance from the new flood tide, but could not overtake the leaders.

The best sailing of the day was by the schooner Shawna, which was blanketed at the start by Windward, and was compelled to tack out to get a freer breeze. Once clear, Captain Bliss drove his boat for all she could carry and passed Waterwitch in the first 10 miles, overtook Windward in the next 10, and was only 2 minutes astern of Queen Mab at the finish. Windward sagged off to leeward during the last 10 miles, and was obliged to take a hitch to reach the finish. All the other boats made the run on one tack, except Shawna's little one at the start.

Upon arriving off the Larchmont Yacht Club, the fleet found the signal mast flying all its code signals, so Commodore Sears ordered the Eastern fleet to dress ship, and the little yachting haven was gay with flashing colors until the sunset gun. Shortly after the fleet anchored, Commodore James B. Ford called on Commodore Sears and formally welcomed the fleet, and later in the day the call was returned.

This evening all the officers, captains and guests on the fleet were entertained by Commodore Ford at a banquet at the clubhouse, and many speeches were delivered, especially by the captains of the six-forty footers, who were loud in their praise of the management of the cruise. The fleet disbanded at sunset.

RICHARDS WINS EASILY.

Captures First Two Matches in Clay Court Tennis Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—With every notable entered on hand with the exception of Lindley Murray, the national clay court tennis championships being held at the South Side Tennis Club made their real start today. Roland Roberts, Walter Hays, Joe Armstrong, Howard Barteles, Kenneth Simmons and other stars all won their second round matches in good style and in several cases advanced to the third round.

Vincent Richards of New York had no trouble in his first match against Van Arsdale, but caught a tartar in the person of Harold Forster, a local player, who forced him to 7—5 in the first set of their match. Richards was playing better than in his exhibition doubles yesterday, and his forehand showed considerably more power than a year ago.

Roland Roberts of California, fresh from his victory in the Central States championships at St. Louis, where he defeated Hoerr in straight sets in the final round, won two matches. His first was easy, but he dropped the first set in his second match to Preston Boyden of Lake Forest, Ill. Roberts was playing well, but showed a tendency to find the net on his forehand and missed several easy kills. On the other hand, Boyden was on the top of his game. He was steady, accurate, and possessed of speed enough to keep Roberts from effectively reaching the net.

Boyden led throughout the first set, which was a service battle, Roberts bringing the score to five all by scoring an ace on his second service when the score stood 40—30. Boyden let up on his play a bit at the beginning of the second set, and Roberts walked away with three games before Boyden could get going again. The next six games were split, giving Roberts the set at 6—3. It was the same story in the third and decisive set. Roberts carried off the first three games, when Boyden braced enough to win half of the next six.

Burdick vs. Simmons and Bates against Richards are the feature matches for tomorrow, with the Roberts-Waldorf match close up. Ninety-seven matches were played during the day. The summary:

Hildreth Raises His Bid For Inchcape to $100,000

Doubling the amount of his original bid, Sam C. Hildreth has made an offer of $100,000 to J. H. Rossiter for Inchcape, winner of the Tremont Stakes last Saturday and generally regarded as the best two-year-old that has been seen this season. This was admitted yesterday by Fred Burlew, who trains the colt and who submitted the offer to his employer. The trainer, though having full authority, did not wish to decide a matter involving so much money, but was free to admit that he would not sell the colt if he had his way about it. Inchcape has already been referred to as a second Man o' War, and good judges think he will go through the season unbeaten.

CLOSE FINISHES IN RACING AT TOLEDO

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 12.—The opening of Grand Circuit racing on the Fort Miami track was featured today by spirited competition and fast racing. Close finishes were the rule.

Murphy, Valentine, Dodge and Vic Fleming had the honors of driving winning steeds. Murphy took the 2:15 trot behind Red Russell; Valentine captured the big end of the Fort Meigs $3,000 stake for 2:09 pacers behind Ned Lancelot; Dodge won with Great Britton the Sherwood 2:12 trotting stake, and Fleming, a Canadian driver, took three straight heats in the 2:12 pace for a purse of $1,200.

Favorites won in most instances, but a big upset come when Voltage, picked as the favorite in the colt stake, lost to Miss Em. The shift paid about 30 to 1. There was a spill in this event and the judges penalized Driver Ray for interference, distancing his horse when it went around the track trailing close to the winner.

BAD SPILL MARS AQUEDUCT RACING

Jockey Kummer Sustains Fracture of Shoulder, While Mount Is Probably Fatally Injured.

In a bad spill at Aqueduct yesterday, in which two horses went down, throwing their riders, while passing the stands about 100 feet from the finish line, Jockey Clarence Kummer sustained a broken shoulder, and his mount, Costly Colours, a filly owned by the Greentree Stable, was so badly injured that it will probably be necessary to destroy her. The other rider, Jockey Barrett, and his mount, Flying Cloud, which is owned by G. W. Loft, escaped without serious injury, though the boy was shaken up and the horse came out of the accident lame. The accident happened in the last race.

This was the climax to a day of upsets, but the others were upsets of form. Six favorites went down to defeat, to the dismay of the players. The two feature events of the day were captured by Harry Payne Whitney, whose Arethusa defeated Mad Hatter, among others, in the Domino Handicap at a mile, while his two-year-old filly Crocus took the measure of Walter J. Salmon's Careful in the Astoria Stakes at five furlongs.

The last race, in which the accident occurred, was a five-furlong dash for two-year-olds, in which seven horses went to the post. As they dashed for the wire in the final sixteenth the three leaders were quite closely bunched, with Oriole leading and Costly Colours second and on the inside.

Normal Wins in Stretch.

Suddenly Costly Colours was seen to go down. Kummer was hurled through the air, and both were lost sight of in the scramble of horses as the racers dashed by. At the same instant Flying Cloud went down, and his rider was thrown through the air. Oriole, which had been leading all the way, was caught in the last few strides—in fact, after the other horses had gone down—and was defeated by a head by Normal, with Sedgefield third.

When the scene cleared Costly Colours and Flying Cloud were entangled on the ground. From the jockeys it was learned that Costly Colours stumbled while running in close quarters and went down and that Flying Cloud, which was right back of her, bumped into the fallen horse and went down over her. Fortunately, both jockets were thrown clear of the other horses. Kummer went clear of his mount, but as he landed one of her heels struck him on the shoulder.

Kummer was able to walk back to the jockey's room, from where he was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica. There Dr. Joseph Musanti found that the boy's left shoulder was fractured and that he had also sustained some cuts on his left arm. He will not be able to ride again for some weeks. It was thought that Costly Colours had broken her back, as she could not regain her feet.

The surprise of the day came with the victory of Arethusa over S. C. Hildreth's Mad Hatter. The latter was a heavily backed choice, while Arethusia, because of her recent disappointing performances, was almost entirely neglected. There were seven starters and Mad Hatter cut up so at the post that there was considerable delay. When the barrier went up he was away none too well, but Fator rode him with bad judgment throughout. He had the horse in close quarters all through the back stretch and ran him into a pocket on the turn. Mad Hatter did not get clear until the other horses spread out a sixteenth into the stretch when he came through with a rush.

Mad Hatter's Strong Finish.

Meantime Arethusa had been close to the front, and when Cromwell decided he had enough of the pace she raced to the lead in the stretch and was a length and a half in front at one time. Mad Hatter finished with a great rush once he was clear and made up nearly four lengths in the short distance he had to go. He was wearing down the winner with every stride and would have been the winner with a few more feet to go. Lady Gertrude was third.

Mr. Whitney evidently has another good filly in Crocus, which had won her only other start. She was an easy winner of the Astoria Stakes, and, though having an advantage of fifteen pounds in the weights from Careful, she won with two lengths to spare. Careful had no accidents or mishaps, and was simply not able to get up to the winner.

Careful was away to a flying start as usual, and was in front turning into the head of the stretch from the chute. But the Whitney filly was never far back of her, and, once straightened out, she began to move up with a rush, soon caught Careful and finally drew away to a commanding lead. Prodigy was second for a part of the run through the final furlong, but could not keep up the pace and was beaten a length by Careful. Fright, the only other starter, was always last.

George Peterson's Younced had all the speed in the fifth event at a mile and led all the way, defeating Belgian Queen by two lengths. With War Plume third.

CITY-OWNED HOMES OPPOSED BY DOYLE

Advance in Rents Probable This Fall, in Opinion of Expert of New York University.

In a statement yesterday, Edward P. Doyle, Secretary of the Mayor's Housing Conference Committee, opposed the suggestion of Henry H. Curran, President of the Borough of Manhattan, that Governor Smith call a special session of the Legislature to take steps to amend the State Constitution so as to permit the city to use some of its own lands for building municipal apartment houses to be rented to the public.

"The experience of this country and Europe," Mr. Doyle said, "is absolutely against Government housing of any kind. President Curran knows a public official has no right to waste the money of all the people for a temporary benefit of a few of the people. City building would be absolutely uneconomic and wasteful and a few of the people would be accommodated at the expense of the rest."

Mr. Doyle said President Curran knew the two principal causes why adequate housing is not being provided in this city. These causes, he said, are:

"First—Senator Lockwood's rent legislation which takes from the owner the control of his property and puts it in the municipal court.

Continuing, Mr. Doyle's statement said:

Houses Cost $80 Per Room.

"The experience of all the builders in the city who have attended conferences of the housing committee is the same. Houses cannot be built in large units to rent for less than $20 per month per room. To decently house any family, however small, four rooms are absolutely necessary. Eighty dollars is a non-economic rent for men receiving from $1,500 to $3,000 a year, and these are the men who most need additional housing facilities.

"The recent example of the City and Suburban Homes Company is proof of this. Building on cheap land, with a splendid organization, abundant capital and thoroughly capable supervision, this company cannot rent the rooms just built for less than $72 per month for four rooms, and running from that to $87 a month. The original intention of the company was to rent the rooms for not more than $12 per month per room. The situation is entirely up to labor."

Building of garages and motion picture theatres in Brooklyn probably will be stopped in order that labor and material may be diverted to buildings for living quarters. Joseph A. Guider, Acting Borough President, and a leading Brooklyn builder, held a conference yesterday with the heads of the various bureaus of the borough to discuss the advisability of putting the suggestion into effect. He said the refusal of permits to build garages and motion picture theatres would help materially to solve the housing problem. Four or five motion picture theatres are under construction in Flatbush. It is said Borough President Riegelmann, who is expected back tomorrow from the Democratic National Convention at San Francisco, is in accord with Mr. Guider's plan.

Expects Advance in Rent.

Philip A. Benson, lecturer on real estate in the New York University, said yesterday that rent probably will advance this Fall. He says there is still a housing shortage and a great demand for improved property.

"I do not look for any decrease in the demand for improved property," Mr. Benson said. "There is still a deficiency of housing accommodations, both for dwelling and business purposes. The price of building material and the cost of labor have not come down, and a great deal of the material is difficult to obtain at any price. The result of this is that builders must get big prices for whatever they produce. The old houses at the present prices are still cheap and prices are likely to go higher. The new rent laws, while aimed at the prevention of profiteering, cannot but have an effect on building, as they make the ownership of real estate less attractive.

"Another condition that affects the real estate market is the lack of funds for mortgages. Repeated instances have come to my attention of individual investors withdrawing funds from mortgages for other investments.

Mrs. Cavanaugh Goes to Auburn.

In charge of Deputy Sheriff L. W. Atwater of Auburn, Mrs. Alice J. Cavanaugh left at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon for Auburn to begin her sentence of not more than ten and not less than five years in Auburn State Prison for the larceny of $2,197 in rent money. She formerly was a member of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering and was sentenced by Judge Louis D. Gibbs, in Bronx County, last week.

Mrs. Cavanaugh objected to traveling on Orange Day. "I have such an antipathy to traveling on Orange Day," she told the matron, "that I will gladly pay the expense of my keeper and the others at this jail if I can only stay here until tomorrow." Her appeal was of no avail, however.

Lockwood Issues Statement.

Lack of new apartments is due to high cost of labor and materials and the scarcity of material and transportation difficulties, according to Senator Charles D. Lockwood of Brooklyn, joint author of the Anti-Rent Profiteering bill, who issued a statement last night in reply to one given out Sunday by Richard O. Chittick, Executive Secretary of the Real Estate Board of New York. Senator Lockwood said that Mr. Chittick's statement was in "the same general and indefinite terms that characterized his utterances when he, in common with others, was asked for suggestions to remedy the housing situation last Winter."

"The fact that the increase in industrial construction exceeds residence construction," Senator Lockwood's statement continues, "is because industrial construction is now, and always has been, in a position to stand higher costs. Writers on the subject pointed out before the passage of the 'rent laws' that in time of scarcity and high cost the demands of industrial construction are always the first to be met. Mr. Chittick speaks of the rent bills including all property owners and landlords as rent profiteers. They do nothing of the sort. No one enters the class of rent profiteers unless he puts himself there. The only test applied by the rent laws is whether the rent is fair and reasonable. The landlord who meets that test has nothing to fear or complain of.

TWO LITTLE SISTERS HELD AS BURGLARS

Nellie and Louise Gasco, Aged 11 and 6, Caught in Brooklyn Home.

Justice Wilkin, sitting in the Children's Court, Brooklyn, yesterday, was astonished when two little girls were arraigned before him charged with breaking into and attempting to rob a house. The children, Nellie and Louise Gasco, sisters, aged 11 and 6 years, respectively, were caught in the home of Pincus Halle at 2,042 Eighty-first Street on Sunday night.

Mr. Halle and his wife, returning from a call, heard some one walking on the upper floor. He saw the screen of a rear window had been cut out. Mr. Halle went upstairs, armed with a heavy poker, while Mrs. Halle telephoned to the police of the Bath Beach Station. In the bathroom Mr. Halle found two little girls examining the contents of a medical case. The girls first said they lived in New Jersey, but later admitted their home was at 5,662 Eighteenth Avenue. In the Children's Court they were found guilty of juvenile delinquency and placed in the care of the Children's Society temporarily.

GRAND TRUNK NAMES TAFT.

Appoints Him on Board to Fix Price to be Paid by the Dominion.

MONTREAL, July 12.—Former President of the United States William H. Taft has been appointed to represent the Grand Trunk Railway system on the Board of Arbitration that is to determine the amount to be paid by the Dominion Government for the stock of the corporation.

The announcement was made officially tonight by Howard Kelley, President of the Grand Trunk, acting on behalf of the Board of Directors of the system. [It was published in THE TIMES several weeks ago.]

The Grand Trunk Railway is being taken over by the Canadian Government and will be made a part of the Canadian national system, which already includes the Intercolonial Railway, the National Transcontinental and the Canadian Northern system.

Under legislation passed last year at Ottawa the Government agreed to assume the bonded indebtedness of the Grand Trunk system and its outstanding debenture stock and to pay the shareholders, most of whom live in Great Britain, an arbitrated price for their common and preferred stock.

Recently the British shareholders assented to the plan, and the Board of Arbitration is now being named. It is to consist of three members, one representing the Canadian Government, one the Grand Trunk and the third to be named by these two. Mr. Taft is the railway's nominee.

The deal involves the entire Grand Trunk system, including lines in the United States as well as those in Canada.

The taking over of the railway was made necessary, according to the Government, through the failure of the Grand Trunk Company to carry out its obligations with regard to the bonds of the Grand Trunk Pacific, a line constructed from Winnipeg west to the Pacific under an agreement with the Government. The Grand Trunk had defaulted on the interest of Grand Trunk Pacific bonds which it had guaranteed and the Government was compelled to come to the rescue.

The consolidation of the railway with the present national system will give the latter a network of branches in Eastern Canada, lack of which has hampered it greatly in the past, as well as access to the ports of Montreal and Portland, Me.

The other members of the board, it is announced from Ottawa tonight, are Sir Walter Cassels, Chief Judge of the Exchequer Court, who will be Chairman, and Sir Thomas White, representing the Canadian Government.

The sittings of the Board of Arbitration will be held here beginning in September.

DUCAL RESIDENCE BURNED.

Destruction Follows Attacks on Spanish Duke in Italy.

MADRID, July 12.—The residence of the Duke of Bivona in this city was destroyed by fire today.

The valuable furniture and historic objects of art were saved. No one of the Duke's household was injured.

In February last Italian peasants sacked the residence of the Duke of Bivona at Ribera, south of Palermo, Italy, after having disarmed the soldiers and wounded a carabineer.

The Duke, who is a grandee of Spain, was compelled to sign a paper ceding his land to the peasants. Afterward the Duke was permitted to leave. A sensation was created in Spain by the attack on the ducal residence.

Sues to Recover Income Tax.

Henry R. Towne of the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company brought suit in the United States District Court yesterday against Richard J. McElligott, Acting Collector of Internal Revenue for the Third New York District, to recover $210,108 which he asserts was unlawfully assessed against him as income tax on his stock sales and holdings. He also contends that the act of Congress of Feb. 24, 1919, under which the assessment was levied, is invalid and void and in violation of Article I., Section 2, Clause 3, of the Constitution of the United States.

PLANNED A GUARD FOR FRIEDLAENDER

But He and Cantor Did Not Wait Till Poles Could Provide It.

Felix M. Warburg, chairman of the American Joint Distribution Committee, which has charge of the disbursement of the funds recently collected by the national drive for Jewish relief in Europe, received a cablegram from Warsaw yesterday confirming the Associated Press report of the murder of Dr. Israel Friedlaender and Dr. Bernard Cantor while they were distributing relief money in the Ukraine territory. The cable dispatch, which came from the Joint Distribution Committee in Warsaw, read as follows:

"WARSAW, July 12.—With deepest heartache informing you of tragic murder of Professor Friedlaender and Dr. Cantor on July 8. Dr. Cantor's chauffeur returned to Lemberg reporting Professor Friedlaender and Dr. Cantor killed on road near Yarmolince, between Crosskurau and Kamienic—Dolsk.

"Dr. Leff, assisted by Mr. Zybert, immediately proceeded to Yarmolince. We have this minute received a telegram signed 'Leff-Peyser-Kass-Zybert' confirming. Awaiting Leff's arrival today with details."

Members of the committee in this city are not yet sure of the character of the persons who committed the crime, or why it was committed. No positive information has yet reached them as to whether the murderers were Bolshevist soldiers, or merely bandits wearing uniforms. Nor is it known whether the Americans were killed because they were Jews or for purposes of robbery.

It had been intended to send a guard with Dr. Friedlaender and Dr. Cantor when they went into the dangerous region where they were killed, but they became impatient while waiting in Warsaw for this protection to be arranged, and finally set out with no companion but their chauffeur. Conditions in the Ukraine are such that financial aid can be distributed only in cash, and therefore both the murdered men carried large sums with them.

Mr. Warburg said yesterday of the tragedy:

"This sad event should bring closer to the minds of the American people the hardships our relief mission must encounter in its work in the Ukraine. Although the great war is over, such men as those who have just been killed are really soldiers. To administer aid they have to face trials and dangers as heroically as did our armies.

"By this terrible tragedy two splendid American Jews have been sacrificed as a result of their zeal in the cause of ministering to the sufferings of their race in a district where personal safety is not yet known. Their deaths should emphasize, not only to Jews but to all humanity, the appalling conditions still obtaining in the Ukraine, which is now being fought for by the Poles and Bolsheviki."

The dangerous nature of the mission essayed by Dr. Friedlaender and Dr. Cantor was referred to by Dr. Boris D. Bogen, Director General of Jewish Relief in Europe, who returned from Warsaw three weeks ago, after a year spent there and in visiting the territory where the recent crime occurred.

"It is virtually impossible," he said, "to bring home to people here the frightful conditions existing in the Ukraine. Still a frontier, still trampled by armies, it contains literally thousands of Jews who are starving and who can be saved only by direct personal aid."

CAPTURE ALLEGED BURGLAR.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW VERNON, N. Y., July 12.—An alleged burglar, armed with a revolver, was overpowered here last night by two former soldiers and a girl in the vestibule of the Mark D. Stiles home, 39 Primrose Avenue. The prisoner gave his name as Joseph Geier of the Mills Hotel, New York City.

Since July 1 the Stiles home has been occupied by the family of Leslie Ferguson of Chicago. Miss Adelia Ferguson of 19 Primrose Avenue, a relative of Leslie Ferguson, visited the Stiles house last night accompanied by Harold Fendler of Elm Avenue, a veteran of the 106th Machine Gun Battalion.

As they entered the vestibule a man poked a revolver into Fendler's face. Fendler grabbed the hand and as the two struggled, Miss Ferguson called her brother, Bradford Ferguson. Young Ferguson struck the man down. The two young men held their prisoner until the police arrived.

Geier has been remanded until Wednesday.

HOME FOR GIRLS OPENED.

Salvation Army House Will Accommodate Fifty Young Women.

The Young Women's Boarding Home of the Salvation Army at 333 West Twenty-second Street was formally opened yesterday afternoon by Colonel William Peart, Chief Secretary of the Salvation Army, in the absence of Commander Booth.

The home occupies the buildings formerly used by the Salvation Army Training College and has room for fifty girls. During the week the house has been operated twenty-nine girls have been enrolled. The opening of the house marks the first extension of this work to New York City. Similar houses have for some time been operated in Los Angeles, Chicago, St. Louis and Cleveland.

The institution is in no wise charitable except in so far as the Salvation Army expects to cover the deficit between the total sum paid by the occupants at the home and the aggregate of its maintenance expenses. The girls are all self-supporting. Mrs. Brigadier Hamond will act as Superintendent.

ROB BANK, SHOOT THREE.

Five Men Get $13,000 in Illinois, Then Fire on Citizens.

PLAINFIELD, Ill., July 12.—Five men entered the Plainfield State Bank shortly after noon today, locked officials in the cellar and robbed the institution of $13,000 in cash and Liberty bonds. The bandits escaped in an automobile after a rifle fight in the streets.

Firing down the main street with rifles as they drove out of town, the bandits shot John Hahn, a retired farmer, through both legs. Joseph Vincent, a merchant, was shot in the chest, and Harry Bayles, a grocer, was shot through the shoulder.

20 Years for Vassar Girl's Assailant.

POUGHKEEPSIE, July 12.—Frank Smith, 19 years old, who pleaded guilty to attacking a Vassar graduate on June 8 last, was today sentenced by County Judge Arnold to twenty years in Sing Sing prison. This is the maximum term under the law. Smith was in tears as the court pronounced sentence and told the youth there were no mitigating circumstances.

BLAKE A LIGHTNING VICTIM, POLICE THINK

Holes in Twice Recovered Dory Indicate That Banker Perished in Storm.

James R. Blake, the banker and broker missing since he set out on July 2 from Clason Point, the Bronx, is believed to have been struck by lightning during the severe electrical storm which swept over the Bronx and part of Long Island on the afternoon when Mr. Blake was last seen rowing the boat along the shore in search of a mechanic. His dory was found a week ago and moored at North Beach. It broke away in a storm but was recovered yesterday. Two holes in the dory are believed to be the marks of lightning.

James McDermott of 673 Second Avenue, found the boat adrift in Flushing Bay on July 3. McDermott told the police that he had removed the engine from the bottom of the dory and tied it to a nearby dock, from which it broke loose again the next day. Marine Inspector James Hallock found the boat yesterday in Jackson Creek, at North Beach, L. I.

Thomas Fleming Day of 412 Eighth Avenue, who built the dory for Mr. Blake, went to Randall's Island late in the afternoon and identified the boat as Mr. Blake's. It was Mr. Day who discovered the two holes in the boat. Mr. Day said that cases of small craft being struck by lightning were numerous and, he added, it was possible that the lightning either struck Mr. Blake, or threw him, helpless, into the water. This explanation would accord with the theory that Mr. Blake, although a good swimmer, had been drowned.

No news has been received of Mr. Blake's body. The search in the waters near the place where he was last seen was continued without result.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—That Gaston B. Means, agent for the German Government prior to the entrance of the United States in the war, was keenly alive to the possibility of strained relations between this country and Germany, and was prepared to flee for safety when war was declared, was brought out today at the hearing before Circuit Judge Baldwin relative to the alleged forged will of the late James C. King, that Mrs. Mary C. Melvin and Means are seeking to have pronounced valid in the courts.

On the day that Germany announced that unrestricted warfare would be pressed by that Government on the high seas Means called at the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank and drew out $34,638.22, the balance of his account in that institution.

Testimony as to his plans was given by Means in explanation of a check for this amount, bearing the date Feb. 1, 1917, signed by Means and made payable to himself. The check was handed to him by Attorney A. F. Reichmann, representing the Northern Trust Company, Trustee of the James C. King Home for Old Men. The trust company contends that the "second" King will is a forgery.

"That check," Means testified, "represents the amount drawn by me. I was the person at the withdrawal window of the bank that morning."

Flurries in the stock market and fears of a run on the bank had followed the announcement of the German policy in some quarters, said Means. He had been buying rubber and other war munitions for German agents in this country.

His testimony relative to the balance withdrawal made by him was brought out at the close of a succession of explanations relative to numerous $5,000 checks drawn by him in favor of his father-in-law, W. R. Patterson, who, he said, was interested with him and Mrs. King in a combination formed for the purpose of buying cotton on a margin.

The total of these checks was more than $60,000. Means said that he "cleaned up" between $10,000 and $12,000. The checks were dated shortly before the announcement of unrestricted submarine attack by Germany. The account, he said, was carried with King, Farnum & Co.

Means was asked if he had any evidence of his authority to disburse funds entrusted to him by Mrs. Robinson, amounting to $120,000. Means had testified this was advanced to him by Mrs. King to cover his loan of $85,000 to her.

Witness produced a paper which stated that Mrs. King and Mrs. Robinson "gave him the fund." Asked why he had not produced it before, Means replied that he did not have it until he "raided Assistant District Attorney Dooling's office in New York and found it sequestered in a file, so that Dooling and others could not get me," he said. He had not testified about his dealings with the Germans when he was being tried in North Carolina for the murder of Mrs. King because his attorneys at that time feared it might prejudice the jury against their client.

FREE; HEARS WIFE IS DEAD.

While He Was in Jail on Murder Charge She Took Poison.

Just after the discharge from the Long Island City Police Court yesterday, Wendell J. Pellisier of Thornwood, Westchester County, who had been held in connection with the murder of Adam Zittel, an Astoria delicatessen dealer, learned of his wife's death and the illness of his three children from taking rat poison. It was at first thought she had committed suicide and tried to kill the children, but the verdict of Coroner W. W. Mills of Chappaqua, was accidental death. Mrs. Othelia Klinger, a sister of the dead woman, said Mrs. Pellisier ran to her house, a few doors away, last Friday evening, screaming that she had taken poison, thinking it was physic powder. "We tried to get a doctor, but were unable to that evening," she said, "and my sister died at quarter of two the next morning. The three boys are all well again."

Mrs. Pellisier was buried yesterday, about the same time that her husband was discharged from court.

Gets Minimum of Six Months for Collecting Money Fraudulently.

Valentine Ravereto, 52 years old, of 97 Third Avenue, an ex-priest, who came here from Italy in 1910, was sentenced yesterday to from six months to three years in prison on the charge of collecting money unlawfully under the guise of the priesthood.

Ravereto was sentenced in Special Sessions after proof that, representing himself as a priest, he had called at the residence of Mrs. Virginia de Pierro, 321 Bleecker Street, where a child was ill, and obtained $9, in return for which he promised masses for the recovery of the child. Probation officers who investigated the alleged priest said that he had obtained suspension of sentence on a similar charge at Mount Vernon on his promise to return to Italy and that he had made a business of collecting small sums under false pretenses.

A Sheriff's jury awarded a judgment for $1,860 yesterday against George V. Hobart, playwright, in a suit of Herbert F. Rawll. Rawll set forth that Hobart represented that he had large royalties due from "Experience" and "Come On, Charley," and because of Hobart's assurances guaranteed the payment of loans the playwright obtained from a bank. Rawll, who discovered later that Hobart had assigned the royalties, had to make good the sum unpaid on the notes by Hobart.

Hobart did not defend the suit.

TEACHING ORPHANS TO BE HOUSEKEEPERS

Hebrew Orphan Asylum Maintains a House for That Purpose.

TWELVE GIRLS LIVE THERE

One Squad Cooks and Does Kitchen Work, the Other Attends to Other Household Duties.

Many girls today are growing into womanhood with little knowledge of housekeeping. They may possess many social and artistic accomplishments. They may be excellent dancers and entertainers, and yet know little about cooking or other homely household virtues. If they were asked to make a pie or a pudding many would probably plead ignorance, or answer that the bakery around the corner was quicker and cheaper.

The Hebrew Orphan Asylum, at 137th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, believes in giving its girls a thorough training in domestic science. This the asylum is doing in a unique way. In order to give its charges the best practical training possible as housekeepers and housewives, it has provided them with a model home at 545 West 159th Street. While they are taking the course the girls live in the home, which to all intents and purposes is their own home. In this manner the girls learn not only the A. B. C.s of domestic science but its higher branches as well. It is known as the Friendly Home of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, and is under the auspices of the Ladies' Sewing Society of the asylum. Miss Antoinette De Pinna is the matron, Mrs. I. N. Spiegelberg President, Mrs. Julius J. Frank Vice President, Mrs. Gustav M. Thurnauer Secretary and Mrs. Sara Joseph Treasurer.

Girls who are taking the course are between 15 and 17 years of age, and they are attending high school. A child-caring institution is not always the best place to raise an adolescent girl, unless there are a large number of them. There is a temptation sometimes for such a girl play the part of a lady, to the detriment of younger girls. Most older girls, on leaving an orphanage, go to the homes of surviving relatives or friends, or to a home for working girls, in which they reside, going outside to earn their living.

In this way they do not come into intimate contact with the kitchen and the problems of cookery, and they fail to learn the many inner secrets of domestic science which would make them efficient housewives. Being orphans, they have not the advantage of a mother to take them in hand after their education and then to train them in the old-fashioned housekeeping virtues. While in an institution, if they become helpers in the kitchen, they are accustomed to deal with food in quantities, and there is a great difference in preparing food for many persons and in preparing it for individuals. It is the desire of the asylum to give the orphaned and homeless girls the same training and advantages that more fortunate girls have. This it is accomplishing by placing them in a home in which they may live as individuals and at the same time receive the best of care and attention.

Though the asylum has maintained classes for cooking and other domestic sciences, the personal touch was missing. To overcome such difficulties the society, under the direction of Mrs. Frank, conceived the idea of renting a house where twelve girls could live and do all of the household work themselves. The society now has two classes with twelve in each class. One class takes up its work in the house in February and finishes in July, when the other class takes possession, remaining until September.

The members of the two classes are in the first or second year of high school, and they attend school regularly, doing their work in the home before and after school hours. A class is divided into two squads. One squad attends to the cooking and kitchen work; the other to the care of the household. Every two weeks the squads are changed. In this manner the girls receive a training in all branches of housework.

Besides a course in cookery, a girl learns sweeping, dusting, mopping, bedmaking, dishwashing, waiting, sewing and other important domestic duties. A girl also receives instruction in purchasing food supplies. Before she has completed her course she knows the food values that many different foods possess, and how to market to the best possible advantage.

In cooking, much attention is given to the relative values of food and balanced diets. She is instructed how to prepare food in order to get the most nourishment out of it and how to prepare a dinner for one or two individuals or for a large family. The question of leftovers is a problem which receives much attention. In her scientific training she learns how to utilize food with a minimum of waste. Bread crumbs are not thrown away, nor is food underdone or overdone, or spoiled by lack of proper attention. She is instructed how to make a dinner not only appear appetizing but be appetizing.

At the completion of the course, girls, if they wish, are placed in homes as mothers' helpers where in return for board and a nominal salary they take care of children. Such homes must be of a certain approved standard, and they are visited regularly by representatives of the asylum, who see that the girls are properly treated and guarded against exploitation. On Friday evenings the girls visit the asylum, where they receive advice and counsel respecting such problems as they may have. Three graduates of the home are at present attending Hunter's College. One is in Teachers College of Columbia University. Another graduate has a responsible position as a superintendent in an institution. Thirty who have completed high school courses are now employed.

While in the home due attention is paid to rest and recreation. The pupils receive lessons in dancing, voice culture and in other social accomplishments. They are taken from time to time on outings and to lectures and to the theatres where wholesome plays may be seen. The asylum aims to guide the girls away from cheap dance halls, and such unwholesome entertainment.

This domestic home for girls had its beginning five years ago in an apartment in Lawrence Street. It answered the purpose, but it was not what the asylum wanted. In 1918 the building in which the apartment was situated was wanted for other purposes, and the asylum was obliged to give it up. It later acquired the three-story building which today houses the home.

The girls are all delighted with it. They regard it as a home of their own, and those who have made their home in it are reluctant to leave it. It is furnished simply but comfortably, and everything in it is spick and span, wholesomely clean and sanitary. Those who have visited it have found it a model home. In truth, there are few homes on Washington Heights which are more cozy and homelike.

W. M. Wood Resigns from Jury Panel

Recovery of $10,000 worth of shoes stolen from a pier on the North River front, a thrilling chase by detectives in a motorboat after one of the men alleged to have participated in the theft, and the arrest of a woman and three men, led to what detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street Station hope will prove the solution of thefts of more than $250,000 worth of merchandise from the piers in that precinct within the last three months.

August LaRocco, 20 years old, who said he lived at 609 Eleventh Avenue, was captured in a motorboat by Detective Sergeant Charles Flaherty and George McGann, who pursued him in another motorboat for a mile and a half up the river from the foot of West Fifty-seventh Street. When the detectives overtook LaRocco, and when McGann was about to leap into LaRocco's boat, the detectives said LaRocco tried to push their boat away with an oar. He was captured when the two detectives threatened to ram his craft.

According to the detectives, they were walking through West Forty-seventh Street, near Tenth Avenue, when they saw Joseph Cunningham, an ash-cart driver, carry four cases of shoes into the tenement house at 524. They saw the man put the cases in the kitchen of the apartment of Mrs. Robert Beatty on the second floor.

Then they questioned Cunningham. He told them, they said, that a man hired him to remove the four cases from a motor boat at the foot of West Fifty-fifth Street to the West Forty-seventh Street address. The detectives accompanied him to the place and he pointed to La Rocco as the man who had hired him. La Rocco, the detectives allege, jumped into a motor boat and fled north.

The two detectives took another motor boat and went in pursuit of La Rocco. When they returned with their prisoner to West Fifty-fifth Street, the detectives placed Cunningham and La Rocco in the cart and returned to Mrs. Beatty's apartment. There, they say, Mrs. Beatty denied the shoes had been brought into her apartment. A search revealed the four cases in a bedroom. They were covered with sheets, quilts and old carpets. Mrs. Beatty was arrested and, with La Rocco, taken to the station.

Investigation then revealed that the four cases of shoes had been stolen from a pier at the foot of West Fifty-seventh Street, occupied by the Acme Steamship Company. Later the detectives arrested Frank Gleason, 30 years old, of 447 West Forty-sixth Street, and Joseph Clark, 29 years old, of 534 West Forty-sixth Street. They were charged with being accomplices in the theft. Mrs. Beatty was charged with acting in concert with the three men and with receiving stolen property. The prisoners will be arraigned in the West Side Court this morning.

Detectives Flaherty and McGann said they believed the numerous thefts of merchandise from vessels and piers on the North River front between West Forty-second Street and West Sixty-fifth Street, had been committed by criminals using motor boats. They declared they expected to make further arrests, and thus break up the band.

DEBATE ZONE PLAN FOR COAL SUPPLY

BARRED BY OLD CONTRACTS

APPOINT JOINT CONFEREES

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Establishment of a zone system which would limit the sales market of bituminous coal operators, with a view of shortening car movement, was proposed today when representatives of the bituminous coal industry of the United States began a two days' conference for the purpose of trying to find a way to solve the soft coal problem confronting the country. That the situation is critical and the coal shortage every bit as serious as it was declared to be by representatives of the various industries who testified last week before the Interstate Commerce Commission, was the opinion of the operators who took part in today's conference.

The zone proposal was made by a committee selected by the conference to canvass the coal and transportation situations. The committee also proposed that the West Virginia, Western Pennsylvania and Ohio mines should furnish 20,000,000 tons, and the Indiana and Illinois mines 7,000,000 tons, to relieve the situation in the northwest.

The two proposals, however, after informal debate, were rejected by the operators, who, it is understood, complained that establishment of a zone system restricting their sales territory would cause them to break contracts, while as to the other proposal, for a division among various fields of the coal supply for the Northwest, the meeting was informed that contracts have already been made for all of the Northwest's supply.

To Report on All Fields.

At this meeting, which was open only to operators, the only direct action of the opening session was the appointment of a committee composed of operators from every bituminous field, to canvass the situation as it exists in each field, and to summarize the survey for the later consideration of the hundred operators attending the conference. Operators said that the coal dumped at Lake ports for the Northwest amounted to 1,675 cars daily during the last several weeks.

Winter stores for the Northwest must be sent into that section before the close of navigation on the Great Lakes, and the operators estimated that 4,000 cars must be dumped at the lake ports daily until next November to insure that supply. They declared the present small deliveries were due entirely to lack of transportation.

Possibility of the re-establishment of a Federal Fuel Administration also was understood to have been mentioned in the conference, but none of the operators professed to have any information as to the Government's attitude on such a proposal. Informally, the operators opposed any such revival, asserting that a Fuel Administration could not be set up, and begin to function effectively in less than ninety days.

The coal men discussed at great length the Interstate Commerce Commission's priority order, which restricts the use of open-top cars to the transportation of coal in the emergency through which the country is now passing. While they were practically unanimous in approval of the priority order, a great many of them were of the opinion that the order has not been generally complied with by many of the railroads. It was reported by some of the delegates that there have been numerous violations of the order, one operator stating that to his knowledge more than 100 open-top cars have been sent to Texas from Ohio laden with oil piping materials since Order No. 7 became effective.

Says Railways Violate Orders.

"It developed during the conference," said a representative of the National Coal Association, under the auspices of which organization the conference is being held, "that there are a great many operators who are of the opinion that Order 7 has signally failed of its purpose, due to a failure on the part of the railroads to carry out instructions to the letter, as contemplated by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Operators from various bituminous fields reported that, owing to a continued shortage of cars, they are only operating their mines in some instances one or two days a week. No mines are running over five days a week."

Colonel D. W. Wentz of Philadelphia, President of the National Coal Association, presided at both sessions of the conference today, and will head the committee which will meet with a committee of railway executives in New York next Wednesday. At their joint conference, the operators and railroad men will try to work out a plan that will supply a maximum number of cars to the coal trade for some weeks to come, or until the present critical situation is relieved.

Members of the committee that will go to New York to represent the coal operators are, in addition to Colonel Wentz, J. T. Walsh of Pittsburgh, W. L. Andrews and J. G. Bradley of West Virginia, F. C. Honnold of Chicago, C. P. White of Cleveland and J. D. Morrow, Vice President of the National Coal Association.

No specific instructions, it was announced, were issued to the committee that will confer with the railroad executives, but several speakers urged that the committee place blame on the carriers for alleged failure to obey the commission's priority order for car assignment. Colonel Wentz said tonight that the joint conferences in New York are expected to begin early Wednesday morning.

Daniel Willard will head the committee representing the coal-carrying railroads. It is understood that the coal men will inform the railroad executives that they stand ready to load without delay every car that the railroads can provide.

Northwest Lacks 2,400 Cars Daily.

With regard to Mr. Willard's statement here a few days ago that 4,000 cars should arrive daily at the Great Lakes terminals, the coal men said today that up to the present time the daily allotment of cars supplied by the railroads had been 2,400 less than the number required.

"The Northwestern situation," explained one of the operators this afternoon, "is just as bad as painted. That situation formed a large part of today's discussions and we were all agreed that the problem is one necessitating immediate and drastic action. It is mostly a case of cars, and if the railroads will give us the equipment we will provide the coal.

"The local situation in other parts of the country, especially in New England, is also very serious, and here again it is a question of cars and transportation. It is up to the railroads to comply strictly with Order No. 7, and if they do that we believe we can solve the problems confronting us.

"At the conference in New York it is quite probable that we will advocate giving every just preference to the Northwest and the other sections of the country in which the coal shortage situation is acute."

At tomorrow's session of the local conference the final proposals of the coal operators, to be submitted to the railway executives in New York, will be decided upon. The committee representing the coal operators expects to leave for New York tomorrow night.

The decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the protest of the steel building materials and other trades against the priority order will probably be handed down the latter part of this week. The railroads, the coal operators and the public utility corporations favor continuing the order in force for another thirty days from July 21.

The building trades and other industries want the order modified so as to make available a certain proportion of the open top equipment for the transportation of materials needed by those industries.

Escaped from Prison Farm, Enlisted and Fought Abroad

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 12.—Arraigned in County Court here today for having escaped from Kingdale Prison Farm in the Fall of 1917, Roswell B. Thayer of Schenectady produced an honorable discharge from the U. S. Army to show that he had enlisted three days after his escape and had served over a year with the American forces in France.

He was recaptured after being mustered out of the service. Judge Arnold has referred his case to the State Prison Department for clemency.

Thayer also told the Court that his conviction for grand larceny for a jewel theft in Schenectady followed a false plea of guilty which he entered to save his wife, who, he said, committed the crime.

NIAGARA HIDES BODY OF BARREL VOYAGER

NIAGARA FALLS, July 12.—Down somewhere in the depths of the lower Niagara, up near the Horseshoe Falls, the body of Charles G. Stephens, the "daredevil" barber of Bristol, England, who was killed yesterday in attempting to ride over the falls in a barrel, is still swinging around on the currents of the undertow in the great, deep basin at the base of the cataract.

Today the right arm of a man was taken from the lower river on the Canadian side, having been discovered floating down stream by United States Immigration Officer Stein, and may prove to be that of Stephens. Coroner Thompson of Niagara Falls, Ontario, took charge of the arm and had it embalmed.

The forearm was tattooed with a wreath and clasped hands also the words "Forget Me Not. Annie." Nobody here seems to know whether or not Stephens bore such marks.

Stephens was the second Englishman to lose his life in a vain effort to shoot the Horseshoe Falls, the first having been Captain Webb, who died in the Whirlpool Rapids years ago.

Thousands today hovered along the river banks and on the islands searching the lower stream with their eyes for a possible glimpse of Stephens's body. Staves of the barrel in which he essayed his fatal trip bobbed up one by one through the spume and were picked up as "souvenirs" as they floated toward the shore. But those who know the river best say it may be many days before Stephens's body is released by the cross currents at the foot of the falls and is cast out into the open stream.

The head of the barrel with its seating device was found virtually intact. It was impossible to tell which part of the cask gave way first under the force of the 158-foot drop and the pounding of the water. Bobby Leach, whose experiences gave weight to his opinion, declared it was too light in all parts.

Leach, who successfully shot Niagara Falls in a barrel several years ago, warned Stephens before the start that he was doomed to failure, but the Englishman was confident his contraption was strong enough and refused to listen to Leach's advice. Leach saw the start, but appeared very nervous afterward and refused to go down into the Gorge where the barrel was expected to re-appear.

"A steel barrel is the only safe kind," said Leach. "If I can have one made by July 25, the anniversary of my last trip, I'll duplicate it."

TORONTO, July 12.—Charles G. Stephens was so sure yesterday that his plunge over Niagara Falls in a barrel would be successful that before undertaking the feat which cost his life he wrote the following cable to be sent his wife as soon as his safety was assured:

"Feat accomplished. Tell Dan." Dan was Stephens's manager, who did not appear for the trial. The message actually sent to the mother of Stephens's nine children in Bristol, England, was:

"Professor Stephens lost in attempt."

Attorney General Raney said today there might be prosecution in connection with the investigation of Stephens's death. Witnesses of the start over the cataract said a loose hoop was pointed out to Stephens, who said he thought it was all right.

DETAIN CRETIC FOR BATHS.

Crew Refuses to be Washed, and Boston Officials Are Firm.

BOSTON, July 12.—The White Star Liner Cretic has been held at quarantine since Friday, because the crew refused to be washed. The detention involves 1,543 steerage passengers, and is costing the company $20,000 a day. First class passengers were allowed to land without bathing.

The trouble grew out of the fact that port authorities at Naples recently have refused to allow American health officials to examine emigrants. As a result no clean bill of health could be given the Cretic here and it was ordered that the crew and steerage passengers be washed for disinfection. The passengers submitted but the crew refused, and health officials insist the ship shall not budge until all those aboard have been washed.

REVIVAL OF FUEL CONTROL PROPOSED

SLIGHT GAIN IN RECEIPTS

Situation Is Not Improved, However —Donnelly Promises Equitable Distribution.

The bituminous coal situation started the week yesterday with public utilities companies still facing danger of shutdowns, some managing to operate only through pooling arrangements. There was no improvement over last week. The situation is so precarious that there was talk yesterday of reviving the Fuel Administration, just as the Food Administration was revived under the Lever act when the emergency arose.

The Tidewater Coal Exchange reported that during the twenty-four hours that ended at 8 o'clock yesterday morning 685 cars of bituminous arrived at the tidewater terminals, making about 1,500 cars at the various coal piers and about 2,300 cars on the rails between tidewater and the mines. Two hundred and forty-five cars were dumped yesterday, an increase over the preceding twenty-four hours.

Deputy Public Service Commissioner Morgan T. Donnelly, who returned Sunday from the conference in Washington of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the National Coal Association, said yesterday that he had pledged the support of the Public Service Commission to see that coal was equitably distributed. Mr. Donnelly pointed out that New York must look to the future and build up a reserve for the Winter. The time to do that is now, he said, and stringent measures must be taken, principally through car distribution, so that a calamity will be avoided when ice and snow will have made transportation difficult.

"There has been talk o reviving the Fuel Administration," said Arthur F. Rice, Commissioner of the Coal Merchants Association, "but it has been indefinite. I do not think it wise to do so, for it would mean that a new man would have to learn the coal business and it would not help the situation. We must get back to competition, and when we do we will have lower prices.

"When the war was on we had a high class of men who, for patriotic reasons, gave their whole time to running the coal affairs of the country and thehy performed their task admirably. If we started to build up a Fuel Administration system again we would not have that class to draw upon. In their places would come the politician and the heeler.

The public utility corporations were yesterday just about where they were on Wednesday when the weekly coal report was made to the Public Service Commission. The Interborough Rapid Transit Company had on hand about 12,000 tons of soft coal, and this, it was said, was about enough to last five days. The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company reported no improvement in the situation. It had on hand about 4,000 tons, enough to last about two or three days.

At the two downtown plants of the New York Steam Company anthracite coal is being used, and at the plant at Fifty-ninth Street and East River the company has managed to keep from two to three days' supply ahead. With the New York Edison and the Consolidated Gas companies the coal on hand is about as was reported last week. At that time the Edison company, including the United Light and Power Company, had a reserve of 62,000 tons, enough for sixteen days, and the Consolidated Gas Company, 18,069 tons, or twenty days' reserve.

TEN THOUSAND JEWS THANK GREAT BRITAIN

LONDON, July 12 (Associated Press).—Ten thousand Jews, in a demonstration in Albert Hall on the occasion of Great Britain's acceptance of the mandate for Palestine, tonight unanimously adopted resolutions expressive of appreciation of "the illustrious services rendered the Jewish nation by the statesmen and peoples of the Allied and Associated Powers, particularly Great Britain."

The resolutions pledged the Jews "to spare no effort or sacrifice for the rebuilding of Palestine as a Jewish national home, in collaboration with the inhabitants of the country."

Arthur J. Balfour, Lord President of the Council; the Marquess of Crewe, Dr. Chaim Weizmann, head of the Jewish Administrative Commission, and Jewish leaders representing twenty-eight nations who are holding a Zionist conference here, addressed the meeting.

The Jews appealed for support of the High Commissioner in Palestine, Sir Herbert Samuel, and the Jewish leaders there.

Mr. Balfour, who was accorded an ovation lasting several minutes, said he hoped the Arabs in Palestine would remember that Great Britain freed them and make no trouble. He said he anticipated that the greatest difficulty would be the inability of the Jews to work together and obey their leaders.

Max Nordau, replying to Mr. Balfour, asserted that the Jews, as well as the English, were politicians and that the British statesmen could be assured that "we want to be Great Britain's sentry on the Asiatic frontier, and if you will permit us to grow as strong as we desire we will watch the Suez Canal for you and be a useful ally if necessary."

Dr. Weizmann, referring to the Palestine Arabs, turned to Mr. Balfour and said: "The Arab and the Jew will collaborate there on one condition only, that the Arabs respect the right of the Jews to Palestine. This done, we will prove a source of strength and pride to the mandatory power."

When Josiah C. Wedgwood, Labor member of Parliament, pledged the support of "the entire Labor Party of Great Britain to the Jews, not only to build up a Jewish State but to promote internationalism and bring nearer the brotherhood of man," Lord Rothschild, who presided, was unable to restrain the audience, who rose, cheered, waved flags and sang.

The demonstration ended with the singing of "Hatikva," the Jewish song of hope, to the air of "God Save the King."

The American delegates to the Zionist conference, who today obtained the Chairmanship of all the important committees, demanded that all the officers of the conference resign "so that the movement may be organized to meet the new constitution."

It is explained that the move was not intended as a criticism, but that it was considered necessary to carry out the new program.

The American women delegates declined to join the proposed international Women's organization, saying they desired to remain an integral part of Zionist America, "where they are accorded equal rights."

Britain and Japan Renew Alliance And Notify the League of Nations

LONDON, July 13.—Great Britain and Japan have notified the League of Nations that they have prolonged their treaty alliance for a year, according to The Daily Mail, at the same time pointing out that the terms of the treaty are in accord with the principles of the League.

The reason for the prolongation of the treaty, according to The Mail, is that Great Britain has not yet had an opportunity to consult with the dominions regarding a revision of the treaty, which is necessitated by the elimination of German influence in the Far East.

Negotiations for a prolongation of the alliance between Great Britain and Japan have been in progress for some time. Dispatches have asserted that it was planned by the two nations to revise the alliance in order to make it confirm with the provisions of the League of Nations. Considerable opposition to the continuation of the treaty has been expressed by the Australasian newspapers, and likewise in China feeling against it has been somewhat strong. The Chinese Government protested against a renewal of the compact without China being consulted.

The treaty was signed in London on July 13, 1911, by T. Kato, the Mikado's Ambassador, for Japan, and by Sir Edward (Lord) Grey, the British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. Under its terms Japan declared war on Germany, Aug. 23, 1914.

As Great Britain and the United States signed a Treaty of Arbitration Sept. 15, 1914, what is considered an important article in Washington is Article IV., which reads:

"Should either of the high contracting parties conclude a treaty of general arbitration with a third power, it is agreed that nothing in this agreement shall impose upon such contracting party an obligation to go to war with the power with whom such arbitration treaty is in force."

FREIGHTER RAMMED IN FOG; 32 SAVED

CONFLICTING STORIES TOLD

Captain of Vessel That Was Sunk Alleges Gross Negligence on Part of Liner's Men.

In the dense fog early yesterday morning along the Jersey Coast, the Southern Pacific Company's steamship Comus rammed and sank the United States Shipping Board freighter Lake Frampton. The thirty-two members of the Lake Frampton's crew were brought into New York yesterday afternoon by the Comus. At first it was reported that two of the crew had gone down in the boiler room after the collision, but according to the Captain, Frank Powers, there were only thirty-two men when the vessel left New York, Sunday night.

Five of the survivors were slightly injured. Many of the crew of the Lake Frampton had to be supplied with clothing by the crew of the Comus as they had jumped from their bunks when the alarm was sounded.

The Comus, commanded by Captain Middoc, one of the most experienced shipmasters in the Southern Pacific Company's fleet, was bound from New Orleans for this port with sixty-five passengers and a crew of sixty-seven.

At the time of the accident, according to the ship's officers, the two vessels were about eight miles off Atlantic City in a thick fog. No signals were exchanged. The officer on the bridge of the Comus saw the Lake Frampton just in time to order the engines full speed astern, but not in time to prevent her sharp stem from cutting a big hole into the starboard side of the freighter amidships. The forged steel stem of the Comus was bent inward n three places, but she dd not take water.

According to eyewitnesses, the Lake Frampton was afloat for ten to twelve minutes before she went down. Ten men got into one lifeboat. The others jumped into the sea and swam toward the side of the Comus.

The first message sent from the Comus by Captain Powers to the West India Steamship Company, 26 Beaver Street, read: "Lake Frampton rammed and sunk at 3:20 A. M. Oiler and fireman missing." A later message from the vessel when she was twenty-five miles off Atlantic Highlands stated that the missing men had been rescued.

When the Comus reached her pier at 2:15 P. M. yesterday a number of the relatives of the Lake Frampton's crew were at the gate, but were not allowed to go to the pier. Captain Powers asked his men to remain on the Comus until two of the company's lawyers could arrive and take their depositions concerning the accident, but they pushed past the watchman on the gangway and went to their homes. Officials who made a brief preliminary inquiry into the cause of the collision late yesterday said that apparently no one was to blame and the accident might have been due to the fog.

Captain Powers of the Lake Frampton said last night that saw no reason for the Comus striking his ship except through gross negligence or a misunderstanding of orders. The officer and the quartermaster on the bridge of the Lake Frampton reported to him that they saw the light on the Comus for more than ten minutes before the accident. The night was very dark, but the lookout on the Comus should have seen the lights on the freighter, which were burning brightly, Captain Powers said. She was steaming about ten knots at the time. The officers of the Comus and the officials of the Southern Pacific Company say that the collision was due to the fog.

The Lake Frampton was a steel steamship of 4,100 gross tons. The Comus was built for the Southern Pacific Company in 1900, and is 4,828 gross tons and 301 feet long. An investigation into the sinking of the Lake Frampton will be held in a few days by the United States Steamboat Inspection Board.

ANDERSON QUIZZES HAYES.

Asks if Catholic Church Intends to Support Liberal Liquor Men.

William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, yesterday sent an open letter to Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes asking whether the declaration of The Tablet, a Catholic paper published in Brooklyn, last Winter, relative to the Anti-Saloon League represents the attitude of the Roman Catholic Church in this vicinity as interpreted by the Archbishop.

Mr. Anderson quotes the following paragraph as appearing editorially in The Tablet: "We hereby serve notice on Republican and Democratic Parties of this State in general, and all politicians in particular, that we will strongly oppose any candidate for public office who is indorsed by the Anti-Saloon League or who indorses the League."

The declaration of The Tablet, he wrote Archbishop Hayes," amounts to a declaration that Catholics will oppose men who openly take a stand for enforcement of the 'supreme law of the land.'"

Mr. Anderson's letter continued: "We freely concede your right to do this, but in view of the right of the public in the impending primary and election campaigns to know that fact if you are doing it, I respectfully inquire whether this quoted declaration of The Tablet which purports to speak for the Catholic churches does in fact represent the attitude of the Roman Catholic Church in this vicinity as interpreted by you, its responsible head in this archdiocese?

"If so, does this include support of the wet United States Senator Wadsworth, whose wet Republican machine backers, open allies of Tammany on the liquor question, act as though they had full assurance of support to offset the loss of dry Republicans?"

FIGHTS NEAR PEKIN, BUT CITY IS QUIET

LONDON, July 12.—Minor skirmishes have occurred between the military factions near Peking, but Peking itself remains quiet, according to a Tientsin dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, filed on Sunday.

The Chinese Cabinet, the message says, has issued orders to the Chi-li party to cease immediately the moving of troops toward the capital. The diplomatic authorities do not regard the position of the foreigners in Peking as dangerous.

The veteran General Chiang Kuei-ti, the dispatch adds, has proceeded to Paoting-fu, in Chi-li, where he s attempting to reconcile the opposing factions, in which attempt the Tientsin vernacular newspaper says he may succeed.

Chiang Kuei-ti is an Anhui General, more than 70 years of age. During the Chino-Japanese war he was cashiered for the loss of Port Arthur, but subsequently his rank was restored with a title for bravery. On the outbreak of the revolution he was summoned to Peking to take charge of the defense of the capital, and his troops rendered valuable service in preserving order there, both during and after the revolution.

REJECTS CHINESE OFFER.

PEKING, June 27.—An unofficial tender of $45,000 reported to have been made by the Chinese Government as compensation for the murder of the Rev. W. A. Reimert, American missionary of the Yochow Reformed Church by retreating Government troops, has been refused by the American Legation. The Legation informed the Chinese Foreign Office that a money settlement was not sufficient and insisted that the Government hold General Chang Ching-yo, Military Governor of the Province of Hunan, personally responsible for failure to provide protection.

The Chinese Government, after charging Governor Chang with an official admission of incompetence and failing properly to discharge his duties and divesting him of titles and military honors after the loss of Changsha to revolutionary forces, pardoned him by Presidential mandate.

The Rev. W. T. Reimert was killed by Chinese Northern Government troops at the time of the looting of the Yochow Reformed Church Mission, June 16, in their retreat from Changsha, which was occupied June 14 by troops of the Southern Chinese Government. Strong representations were made by the American Legation to the Chinese Northern Government at Peking.

SPAIN'S COURT MOURNS DEATH OF EUGENIE

MADRID, July 12.—King Alfonso, who is in London, has sent a dispatch to the Prime Minister ordering a period of court mourning of twenty-one days in honor of former Empress Eugénie and also to pay the customary royal honors to the dead.

Most of the members of the aristocracy and of the diplomatic corps today filed past the body of Eugénie, which is lying in state in the Palacio de Lira, the home of her nephew, the Duke of Alba.

The former Empress of France, who died here Sunday morning, was ill only a few hours before her death. She was exceptionally well on Saturday, and at midday she had lunched heartily, eating chicken and some ham.

A short time later she became ill, experiencing severe abdominal pain. Dr. Grenda, physician to the King of Bonoco, was called, and, finding her condition serious, summoned Dr. Moreno Zancudo, a specialist, and two other physicians. They were, however, unable to relieve the patient.

Ex-Empress Eugénie seemed conscious that death was approaching, and those who stood by the bedside said later that she appeared glad she was to die in Spain, her native country.

In the course of Saturday afternoon, when her condition became worse, all her relatives still in Spain were notified. The Duchess Santona, with her husband, arrived, and then the Duke of Peherando, Dowager Duchess Tamames and the Count and Countess Mora.

During the night, the ex-Empress lost consciousness, but before doing so received the last sacraments of the Church from a clergymen. Eugénie died shortly before 8 o'clock Sunday morning, never having regained consciousness.

The body was to be embalmed today in preparation for its transportation to England, where Eugénie will be buried at Farnborough. The funeral party will probably depart from Spain on Wednesday.

WHITNEY ASSAILS GOVERNOR'S RECORD

CALLS SMITH "ALIBI AL"

Says Replies to Nine Questions He Puts Will Fix Accuracy of the Nickname.

As a prelude to the State campaign, a sharp attack on Governor Alfred E. Smith was launched last night by Travis H. Whitney, former Public Service Commissioner, at a meeting at the Republican Club of the Twelfth Assembly District. Mr. Whitney accused Governor Smith of "lying down" on his promises to complete the subways, of allowing Tammany Hall to take all the Public Service Commission jobs and of breaking other pre-election promises. "Alibi Al" was the nickname which Mr. Whitney applied to the Governor and, he asserted, its accuracy might be judged by whether Governor Smith answered directly or tried "rough stuff to avoid" nine questions which Mr. Whitney asked.

"Governor Smith is exceptional in that he is a city product, and he has been fortunate in many respects," said Mr. Whitney. "The story of his early life has been exploited many times as a platform upon which he has achieved success. He has now, however, reached the point where not his early biography but his official record should be the basis of his further political career.

Declaring that the last budget signed by Governor Smith was the largest in the history of the State by a great many millions, Mr. Whitney said: "His alibi is that reductions and economies are impossible until a budgetary system and a consolidation of State functions are adopted as Constitutional amendments. This plan is apparently to be a plank in his next campaign. As it will take at least three years for adoption he will have an alibi on the budget for the next two years unless a Governor is elected who will either control his appointees or have nerve enough to use a blue pencil, which is always an immediate method of reducing expenses.

"Because of the situation in New York City, he laid great emphasis on rapid transit and regulation of utilities and attacked severely the Public Service Commission. That commission was in conflict with the Board of Estimate over the completion of the new subways and relations with the operating companies. Smith was made Chairman of the Transit Committee of the Board of Estimate, the position long held by George McAneny, who as such Chairman had made a great record in helping to solve the problems of increased transit.

"Smith was therefore in an official position to ascertain the full facts and in a position of power to have forced prompt action that would have saved millions to the city. Instead, he got out from in between and went out on the stump to promise what he would do in a fight on some other day. But the promise was just to get elected on and away from the Board of Estimate and its problems.

Attacks Public Service Policy.

"In his first message to the Legislature Governor Smith recommended his reorganization of the Public Service Commission for the First District by the separation of Rapid Transit and Regulation and the placing of each under a single commission.

"He secured such reorganization from the Legislature. He appointed his two Commissioners. The separation of Regulation and Rapid Transit during the period of construction has not been the success promised. The 'single Commissioner for Regulation' has not resulted in an economy. On the contrary the State expense for regulation is now greater with one Commissioner than it was with a Board of five Commissioners. As to the promise that it would be 'productive of results' the public can judge whether it enjoys higher fares, charges for transfers, lessened service and higher gas rates.

"The separation of functions produced an overlapping of jurisdiction that would result in conflict between the two departments if both were performing their full official duties with no official means of settling conflicts. It likewise produced a duplication of functions and of expenses, a violation of the Governor's plan of reorganization of State government but produced more jobs for the organization. Faithful employes of the commission have been told that, although their ability and service were recognized, their resignations were desired because 'they,' 'the organization,' or Mr. Murphy,' wanted their places.

"The Governor's Reconstruction Commission has said that reorganization means a reduction in exempt places and in expense, but here with reorganization as the Governor asked for it there has been neither. On the contrary, the total exempt salaries and the total expenses of the two departments exceed those of the former commission. The former commission has said that the rapid transit expense would annually decrease with the completion of the subways, if its program could be followed. The Board of Estimate, with Mr. Smith as a member, disregarded the program of the commission and made appropriations for the former commission at the rate of about $1,600,000 for the first part of 1919, but, after the Smith appointees took office, the appropriations were increased to a rate of nearly $2,000,000 for the remainder of 1919 and the appropriations for 1920 are at the rate of over $2,200,000 for the year. Yet with these increases, there has been a decrease of subway work.

Calls Governor "Alibi Al."

"Bourke Cockran related at San Francisco with great effect the story he had heard somewhere of the early days when Smith was a peddler. I have been told, I think probably by one of the same people, that in those days Smith was so artful in avoiding the direct answer whether he had fresh fish that an exasperated old lady, who must have been from the North of Ireland, dubbed him 'Alibi Al.'

"He apparently used east side methods to suppress the name, but has been living fairly well up to it. He has jollied civic organizations and handled publicity skillfully, but the accuracy of the nickname, harsh as it may be, can be judged by whether he answers directly or trades or tries rough stuff to avoid such questions as these:

"Why did he lay down on his promises to complete the subways even if it meant executive interference with the Board of Estimate?

"Why did he promise Commissioners who would be 'representatives of the people and not creatures of the corporations they are organized to control' and then appoint a Commissioner who has done little for the people and much as he could, within or without the law, to aid the corporations?

"Why has he violated his own rule that a Governor must not be ambitious?

"Why has he allowed Tammany Hall to take all the Commission jobs if he thought political appointments should not be made?

"If a serious accident happened in the subways would he consider the Malbone advertisement as an accurate application to him and to his political commission?

"Why didn't he appoint his Committee of One Thousanad on fair methods in politics? Was he afraid of the accusing finger?

"Why did he throw in the waste basket his promise to put teeth in the Public Service Commission law by recommending the Foley amendments?

"Why did he promise to reduce the State budget if he knew that it was not possible without a constitutional budget system and reorganization of the State Department?

"Why didn't he force his Commissioners to reduce the expenses of regulation and rapid transit?"

Japanese Advocates Marriage With Americans in California

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—George Shima, President of the Japanese Association of America and so-called "Potato King of California," told the House Committee on Immigration and Nationalization here today that he is in favor of intermarriage between Japanese and Americans.

The committee is investigating the Japanese situation in California.

"There may be objections now, but a hundred years from now we will look back upon it as all right," he said. "When potato seed in this State is no longer good we cross it with Oregon seed, and the second year there is a fine crop of potatoes.

"To be sure, a good many Japanese do not make enough money to support Yankee girls. They are too expensive."

Shima said he had been a resident of California for thirty years, and on his only visit back to Japan he had been decorated by the Emperor.

ALIENS CAUTIONED AGAINST FALSE OATH

DEPORTATION THE PENALTY

Judge Giegerich Warns That Violence to Effect Change Is Not Justifiable.

Supreme Court Justice Giegerich, who has been assigned by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court to hear applications for naturalization during this month, warned those who appeared before him yesterday not to take oaths of allegiance if they do not believe thoroughly in the American form of government and intend to uphold all its laws. He told them that "there is no justification for a resort to violence or any other unlawful means to effect a change." Justice Giegerich said:

"If there be any among you who think otherwise and nevertheless take the prescribed oath of allegiance it will be a false oath. Therefore, let those who may harbor in their minds any thought inimical to our form of government step aside and not attempt to gain citizenship by means of a false oath, for sooner of later their disloyalty will be discovered and their certificates of naturalization will be revoked and they will be sent back to the land from whence they came.

"Seeds of sedition and disorder do not germinate in American soil. While we welcome foreigners to our shores and by the enactment of liberal naturalization laws encourage them to become citizens, we nevertheless do insist that the rights and privileges of citizenship shall only be conferred upon those who possess the necessary qualifications, and who, above all, are law abiding and loyal to our country and its institutions. I sincerely hope that the applicants who are admitted today will by their lives and actions prove to be worthy citizens of our land. As there will be no opportunity after their admission for me to say anything to them collectively, I now offer to them, in advance of the granting of their petitions, my congratulations and best wishes and extend to them a hearty welcome to the ranks of citizenship of our great republic. May our Heavenly Father ever preserve it."

RAINBOWS IN REUNION.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 12.—Thousands of veterans, wearing the insignia of the famed Rainbow Division, are thronging the streets of Birmingham tonight. Hundreds gathered in the Jefferson Theatre this afternoon for the formal opening of the first annual reunion of the veterans of the famous Forty-second.

When Colonel Benson W. Hough, National Commander of the Rainbow Veterans, accompanied by Colonel William P. Screws, former commander of the 167th Infantry, but now State Commander of the Rainbow Veterans, and Father Francis P. Duffy, the "Fighting Chaplain," mounted the stage to open the first convention, they were given an ovation that has seldom been equalled in Birmingham.

Colonel William P. Screws of Birmingham called the convention to order, introducing Lieutenant Governor Nathan L. Miller, who welcomed the visitors on behalf of the State. John R. Hornaday, Vice President of the City Commission, welcomed the veterans on behalf of the city.

National Commander Hough responded to the address of welcome. He declared he was much touched with the welcome extended by Birmingham and Alabama.

Following the addresses, the various committees were appointed and messages to the reunion from various sections of the country were read. Division Secretary A. G. Brown reported on the year's activities.

A memorial to the Jefferson County men of the Rainbow Division who died in the service was unveiled this afternoon. The reunion will continue through tomorrow and Wednesday.

Reaches Home in Time to Die There

ATHENS, Ga., July 12.—Stanhope Irwin, of San Francisco, brother of Mayor Andrew Irwin of Athens, reached here today in time to die in his home after a trip from San Francisco in a private car. Death was the result of a broken neck, caused by a fall at his California home. He asked that, if possible, he reach Athens before the end. Alex Irwin, a brother, also was killed by a fall a few years ago at the Irwin home here.

25,000 ORANGEMEN PARADE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELFAST, July 12.—Today's Orange celebrations passed without the disturbances that many had feared.

To an audience in the field at Finaghy, near Belfast, where Orangemen this afternoon were celebrating the "Twelfth," Sir Edward Carson made this declaration:

"We will tell the Government that if they are unable to protect us from the machinations of the Sinn Fein we will take the matter into our own hands. We will reorganize the Ulster Volunteers, and, at all costs, notwithstanding the consequences, under God we will defend ourselves."

This was the chief point in the speech delivered under rather depressing weather conditions. It may be said that recent examples of Sinn Fein organization and energy so filled the Orangemen with respect that they were ready to believe the wildest rumors, and there were even those who feared an attempt to kidnap Carson and send him to share the enforced leisure of General Lucas. At any rate, no risks were run, precautions being taken for guarding Sir Edward during his stay in Belfast. Messages from Derry and other centres show that up to a late hour all was quiet and the celebration passed off without incident.

Warns British Government.

BELFAST, Ireland, July 12 (Associated Press).—Addressing as "many of the 2,500 Orangemen celebrating today as could get within sound of his voice, Sir Edward Carson, their Grand Master and Ulster Unionist leader, charged the British Government with failure to govern Ireland. He declared that if the British could not handle the situation in South Ireland they should turn the task over to some one who could. He warned the Government that if it did not accept the help Ulster had offered, "We tell you we will take matters into our own hands."

Discussing conditions in Ireland, Sir Edward said:

"I read daily of the whole Government in some place being taken over by the Sinn Fein. I read of county councils swearing allegiance to the Irish Republic. Well, I want to ask what the Government is doing with the county councils taking that course. My opinion is that such councils ought to be dissolved. I read daily of the Sinn Fein police taking part in the government of various towns.

"I say if the British Government is unable to deal with these matters it ought to ask somebody else. It is an ignominious thing for loyal subjects of the Crown to be compelled to admit the authority of those professing to act in the name of the so-called Irish Republic. Yet, to my knowledge, there are men in South and West Ireland who, ostensibly at least, have been obliged to throw in their lot with these Sinn Feiners in order to save their persons and property from disaster.

"We know well that the real battlefield of Ireland in relation to a republic will be Ulster. We know well that their one ambition is to penetrate Ulster and take possession there as they have elsewhere. Do not let us close our eyes to the realities of the situation, whatever may be the consequences.

"Never will we enter into negotiations with Sinn Fein until of their own volition they have brought to the scaffold the men who are giving our country throughout the world the reputation of being a country of criminals and assassins."

Many wild rumors were afloat in Belfast this morning, one being that a trainload of Sinn Feiners was coming from Cork to attack the city. Investigation proved this, as well as many other reports of trouble, untrue.

The celebration of Orangemen's Day had as its great feature the customary parade, in addition to the notable speech by Sir Edward, whose pronouncement on the present situation in Ireland was looked forward to eagerly.

Every hamlet, village and town in Ulster had some kind of a celebration, and reports over a wide area tonight are that all passed quietly, even in Londonderry, where the two factions are represented as ready to renew the fighting should the military forces relax their vigilance.

Belfast was heavily guarded by soldiers, but the only troops allowed out of barracks were those actually on

Stocks receded yesterday in a fashion which disclosed an underlying nervousness in speculative sentiment, a tendency to convert paper profits into cash without taking undue risk. An 8 per cent. call loan rate, which prevailed for all loans and renewals, was hardly high enough to be called onerous, in contrast with going quotations for other forms of accommodation, but it seemed as if many of the market followers were disappointed. Then, in the afternoon Wall Street comment stressed the reports coming from various parts of the country on coal shortages and inadequate railroad transportation, with especial attention to a possible slackening of industry. For a time in the fore part of the session a strong tone among particular railroad shares helped to check realizing sales of the industrials, but later they all moved off together. Net declines of 1 to more than 3 points were quite widely distributed among steel, petroleum, automobile and allied issues and miscellaneous manufacturing shares at the end of the day. The rails were irregular.

While the situation of money and credit is a prime influence behind stock market operations, and promises so to be for a long time to come, it appeared doubtful whether consideration of these factors was of much immediate force yesterday. The day's call loan rate certainly was not out of line with the late rise of the quotation to 10 per cent. last Friday, and time money rates were quotably easier. Some four to six months' funds were reported in the market at 7½ per cent., which was a full 1 per cent. lower than at the end of last week, and the shorter maturities were a shade lower than on Friday. There evidently was not an appreciably increased supply of offerings at the changed levels, and the market as a whole was inactive. The rates mentioned were for loans secured by mixed railroad and industrial collateral, while all-industrial loans remained firm at the previous figures.

What disturbed speculators more than the cost of borrowed funds was the continued talk of idle steel mills and of closed factories in other lines in case the distribution of fuel were not speeded up in the near future. However, as last week's advance had been based on sentimental causes rather than new and concrete events of economic importance, the reaction, in part, could fairly be ascribed to a cooling of rosy thoughts of a continued rise of prices during July and August. On Wednesday railroad executives are to survey at a meeting here the result of a broad study of the transportation field, and from it may come figures tending to stabilize the confusing reports coming from many manufacturing centres. The conservative market following is devoting attention to actual events having application to quotations, and among them there is slight inclination to be moved by a single day's trend of the highly speculative stocks. It was noticeable yesterday that some of the issues which are known in the idiom of the Street as "personally conducted" were the most vulnerable to selling.

America continues to draw gold from London, $3,150,000 more of the auction market metal being received on Sunday, with more than $1,000,000 to come on an early steamer. These weekly acquisitions, if the movement should persist, and the exchanges at present fail to show why it should not, will amount to a sizable amount before long and are not to be overlooked in considering our gold reserves. Sterling exchange paused yesterday in the gradual advance recorded almost daily last week, receding a full cent to 3.93½ for checks. The Continental exchanges were slightly unsteady. The price of silver in the open market rose three-quarters of a cent per ounce to 92⅞ cents.

FINDS CORPORATE EFFICIENCY IN JAPAN

OPENINGS FOR INVESTMENTS

Better Relations Are Hampered by Bad Traveling Facilities, Banker Asserts.

Corporate management in Japan, according to Lewis L. Clarke, President of the American Exchange Bank, who has just returned after more than two months' travel in the Far East, is highly efficient and the steel plants, textile mills and shipyards are booming and, with the exception of the temporary depression, appear to be prospering. But Mr. Clarke believes there will never be the friendly and understanding relations between the United States and Japan which should prevail until Japan improves her facilities for entertaining travelers from this country.

The hotel and transit facilities, he said, are far below what they should be. Roads are poor and telegraphic and telephonic communications are very bad. Mail service, too, is not handled in an efficient and modern manner, Mr. Clarke said. When these things are improved and travelers from the United States are attracted to Japan in the same number that Japanese travelers are attracted to the United States, there will be a better understanding and a better international feeling.

Mr. Clarke said that in his opinion Thomas W. Lamont in his capacity as the representative of the American members of the Chinese consortium performed one of the most notable pieces of constructive work in the history of the relations between the West and the East. The full significance of what Mr. Lamont accomplished, Mr. Clarke believes, will never be fully appreciated except by those who understand the difficulties he overcame—but the results will in due course speak for themselves.

The co-operation of American bankers in undertakings would be welcomed by the Chinese bankers and business men and offer many attractions. The opportunities for investments, such as bottle factories, bag factories, oil mills and sugar refineries, Mr. Clarke believes, not only afford a field for the employment of American capital, with reasonable assurance of profit, but would also cement the good feeling already entertained for our country in China.

TRACTION CREDITORS UNITE.

A Bondholders' Protective Committee, composed of F. J. Fuller, Vice President of the Central Union Trust Company; A. R. Horr, Vice President of the Equitable Trust Company, and Reginald Foster, general counsel of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston, has been formed to look after the interests of the holders of the first mortgage 5 per cent. gold bonds of the Lexington Avenue & Pavonia Ferry Railroad Company, dated August 24, 1893, default having been made in the payment of interest falling due March 1, 1920.

The committee invites holders to deposit bonds, accompanied with coupons falling due March 1 and all subsequent coupons, on or before Sept. 3, 1920, with the Central Union Trust Company of New York, as depositary under a depositary agreement, which is now in course of preparation. Against such deposits the depositary will issue its certificates of deposit.

Government Loses on L. I. R. R.

The Long Island Railroad Company received $3,221,948 last year as rent from Government operation, the same sum as in 1918, while outside income of $719,276 was $204,000 larger than the year before. The annual statement yesterday showed that rents, taxes, etc., had absorbed $3,258,719. The final surplus was $682,075, an increase of $222,400 for the year. The Government lost $713,373 on operation of the road during the year, as the Federal income account showed revenue of only $2,508,572. The gross income was $24,381,973, an increase of $2,140,817.

ST. PAUL DEPOT BONDS SOLD

An issue of $1,500,000 three and one-half-year 7 per cent. notes of the St. Paul Union Depot Company has been disposed of privately by a banking syndicate composed of J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the First National Bank and the National City Company. The notes mature December 15, 1923, when the company's $8,000,000 five-year 5½ per cent. guaranteed gold notes also mature.

The St. Paul Union Depot Company's notes are guaranteed by the nine railroads which jointly own and use the company. These roads are the Northern Pacific; Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul; Great Northern Railway; Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha; Chicago, Great Western; Chicago, Burlington & Quincy; Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie; Minneapolis & St. Louis; and Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific.

OIL CO. EARNS £4,713,370.

The Shell Transport and Trading Company, Limited, which is one of the leading British oil companies, reports net profits of £4,713,370 in the year ended Dec. 31 last, an increase of £1,860,427 over the result in the preceding year. From this total of income, the report just received in this country states, excess profits taxes have to be deducted, the amount of which was not made public. Dividends aggregating £1,607,625 were paid, compared with £2,955,098 in 1918 and the profit and loss account at the end of 1919 amounted to £5,750,247.

The balance sheet shows property account valued at £12,036,904, investments carried at £8,112,507 and £660,923 cash. The capital stock at the end of the year consisted of 200,000 preferred shares of £10 par and 12,857,641 shares of ordinary stock of £1 par.

Lucey Corporation Seeks Funds.

A banking syndicate composed of Potter Brothers and Co., Dominick & Dominick and Hallgarten & Co. have purchased from the Lucey Manufacturing Corporation $1,500,000 of 8 per cent. convertible sinking fund ten year notes and 37,500 shares of Class A stock, which the syndicate is offering. The notes are being offered at 98 and interest and the stock at $45 a share. The notes are convertible at the rate of one share of stock for each $55 face value of notes.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Money Easier.

While call money stood at 8 per cent. throughout yesterday, an advance of 1 per cent. from Friday's renewal but a recession of 2 per cent. from Friday's closing, the time money market displayed notable signs of ease. Four, five and six months' loans on mixed collateral were quoted a full point down from last week at 7 per cent., and thirty and ninety day loans were off ½ at 8 per cent. It is possible that some of the "July reinvestment" demand is not being satisfied, so far as investment in securities is concerned, but is being kept reasonably liquid by investment in loans As a matter of fact there is quite a little money available for loans just now, but only the most optimistic expect this condition to obtain for any considerable length of time. What probably is going on is that instead of immediately reinvesting the July funds in securities some of those who benefited by the July disbursements are holding out for what they hope will be more profitable investment a little later on.

More Gold Coming.

As was announced last week, the Imperator brought in $3,150,000 new gold yesterday, and at the same time it was stated from London that the steamship New York was leaving Queenstown with £256,000 more. Both of these shipments, it is assumed, represent Transvaal gold purchased in the London open market, but, even so, there is general satisfaction over the way this South African metal is being diverted to the United States. If the present rate of purchase and import is maintained throughout the Fall we ought to gain upward of $60,000,000 before the end of the year, and with very little gold going out the situation this year should be vastly different and considerably more favorable than it was in 1919, when we lost very heavily on balance of gold movements.

Treasury Certificates.

There is a fairly good open market for Treasury certificates. It has taken some time to develop and one or two distributing houses are entitled to a considerable amount of credit for the work they have done. These firm are reaping their reward by seeing their transactions grow from a few thousands to many millions. Incidentally, the Treasury has gained by the development of this market, for it has been possible to arrest the advance in the rate of interest and at the same time place a greater amount of the notes than otherwise would have been possible. Within the last six weeks, it was said yesterday, somewhere between $130,000,000 and $150,000,000 of these certificates have been got out of the banks and into the hands of investors, and the securities are now selling on a lower yield basis than in some time. The short maturities may be sold around a 5½ per cent. basis, while the 6 per cents., which have nearly a full year to run, are going at about 1-32 under the face rate.

Chinese Banking.

A brief dispatch from London yesterday said that ten native banks at Tientsin had failed. It gave no reason and no details, but the dispatch served to recall to local bankers the old Third Reader story about banks and bankers in China. According to that classic, there had been no bank failure in China in 4,000 years because the Chinese Controller of the Currency, or whatever his title is, combined in his person the dignity of bank supervision and chief executioner, and when, in the capacity of regulator of banks, he discovered irregularities he at once performed the duties attaching to his other office.

Prices Decline Sharply.

The stock market was reactionary yesterday some sharp declines manifesting themselves as trading progressed. This was especially true with relation to the industrial shares, some of which were bid up rapidly during last week. As compared with the highs then recorded, yesterday's prices in certain instances represented declines running as heavy as 10 points. During the final days of last week the market was called upon to absorb heavy profit-taking sales, and succeeded in doing this fairly well, since a public participation had been brought into the trading, buying from this quarter helping to support prices. Yesterday, however, it appeared that the weight of selling was too heavy to be overcome easily, and prices went steadily lower, with quite a drive against many issues in the last hour. The decline was undoubtedly influenced to a considerable degree by short selling, the professionals having again assumed the bear side.

Rails Hold Up Well.

Trading in the rails was once more in heavy volume, and, considering the weakness in the industrial group, the prices of the rail stocks held up surprisingly well. Not a few were able to record gains as a result of the day's operations. The railroad situation presents many problems for solution before the carriers can be considered as re-established on anything like their pre-war plane. There is a disposition, however, to overlook the troubles of the immediate present and future, and as a result of this the rail issues are in demand. It is believed confidently that the railroads ultimately will be intrenched in a strong position, and buying in anticipation of this by those who can afford to take the stocks out of the Street is no mean factor in providing the strength of the rail group. Furthermore, there is a feeling that in the next big market advance, whenever that shall come, the rails will be in a position of leadership. This leads to speculative buying for the long pull.

Steel Tonnage Figures.

While the report of the United States Steel Corporation regarding unfilled tonnage on its books at the close of June was considered as favorable the action of steel common failed to reflect this view, for steel declined along with the other industrial shares. The figures, showing an increase as compared with May, did not make their appearance until after the close of the market last Saturday and hence yesterday presented the first opportunity for comment. It is understood that the corporation during June was shipping about 40,000 tons of steel daily, in which the gain is indicative of a highly favorable condition. Furthermore it would appear from this that the car shortage, while an untoward factor was still not serious enough to produce anything like a paralysis of the industry.

New Oil Wells.

Every endeavor is being made to increase petroleum production in this country in conjunction with the activity in drilling which is going on in Mexico. Statistics show that production in the United States is attaining new high records and the last available figures indicate that some progress is being made in overcoming the discrepancy that exists between the high line of consumption and the lower line of production. There is an active drilling campaign going on in all of the Mid-Continent field and many companies have recently been reporting the bringing in of new wells. Only yesterday the Texas-Pacific Coal and Oil Company announced the completion of a new well northwest of the Ranger Field, this being one of several that have been brought in recently. In the new drilling which is being undertaken the scope of old fields is being steadily extended.

Railroad Meetings.

The sub-committee of the Standing Committee of the Association of Railway Executives met yesterday to prepare its report to be submitted to the Standing Committee tomorrow on the express and Pullman Company leases. The Loaning Committee meets Thursday and the representatives of member roads meet on Friday.

1,000 STRIKE AGAINST 'OPEN SHOP' TRUCKS

CALLED INDIVIDUAL ACTION

Oriental Navigation Company Appeals to the Government for Its Support.

The threatened counter-offensive of the transportation workers against the campaign of the commercial forces for the uninterrupted transportation of merchandise, regardless of labor troubles, started yesterday with a walkout of 1,000 deep-sea longshoremen, following the insistence of the Oriental Navigation Company that they handle goods which had been brought to the piers on non-union trucks.

The longshoremen were loading three ships at Pier 86, North River, at West Forty-sixth Street. The steamers were the Shipping Board vessels Innoko, Chappaqua and Chester Valley, on which the longshoremen were loading cargoes for France and Italy. Non-union trucks, containing forty-five cases of cotton goods, arrived at the pier at about noon and presented the goods for shipment. The goods had been brought from the Savannah Line, where a strike of coastwise longshoremen has been in progress for several months.

A union delegate told the company's pier superintendent that the men would not handle the "non-union" goods. Furthermore, he said, if the company acepted the merchandise for shipment every man on the pier would be called out. The company officials said that the merchandise must be acepted and the company, as a common carrier, had no right to discriminate against any goods presented for shipment. The union leaders were reminded of their contract which binds them not to strike until Oct. 30.

As soon as the goods had been accepted, every longshoreman on the pier quit his job. Some of the men said that they would not come back until the company had agreed to bar all "scab" goods from the pier.

Appeals to Governments.

When Philip De Ronde, President of the Oriental Navigation Company, whose general offices are at 39 Broadway, learned of the walkout he sent a telegram to Admiral W. S. Benson, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, and Commissioner John A. Donald of the board, asking them to ratify the action taken by the company and to take steps to settle the whole port situation. The telegram said:

"This morning we were tendered by independent truck forty-five cases of merchandise emanating from the Savanah Line for oversea shipment from our Pier 66 North River. Union delegates informed our pier superintendent that acceptance of this cargo would result in his calling out every union man on our pier. We naturally declined to recognize such interference and have as a consequence seen all work stopped on said pier.

"The steamers working at this pier were the Shipping Board vessels Innoko, Chappaqua and Chester Valley, hence the Board is vitally interested. We ask your ratification of our action, which was taken on our own judgment and without reference to recent court proceedings compelling similar action by other common carriers. We furthermore believe that the Shipping Board should either publicly support the steamship companies or should of their own accord make a declaration of principles and undertake to settle the ridiculous though serious situation in the Port of New York."

Mr. De Ronde said late yesterday afternoon that the men who had walked out started to get back to work shortly after 3 o'clock. This was denied by Joseph P. Ryan, Vice President of the International Longshoremen's Association. "The men are not going back while they are asked to handle 'scab' freight," Mr. Ryan said. The longshore leader was asked if the action of the men was not a violation of their contract with the steamship company. "The men as individuals have the right to quit work," was his reply.

Individual Action Approved.

T. V. O'Connor, the longshoremen's international President, had said several weeks ago that the men would not violate their agreement. Subsequently, however, delegates from the fifty-six longshore locals in the city attended a meeting of the District Council at which it was decided to take certain steps to combat the Citizens' Transportation Committee, the organization formed by the business interests to fight the port tie-up. One of the steps decided upon was the refusal of deep sea longshoremen to handle goods hauled by independent trucks from the piers where strikes are in progress. The union leaders said that the men as individuals could act without violating the union's agreement or the shipping laws.

Operating officials of the Citizens' Transportation Committee declared yesterday that the merchandise which caused the strike yesterday had not been hauled by the committee's trucks. It was said that since the committee started its campaign it had opened the way for privately owned independent trucks to operate and that these trucks had been carrying twice as much merchandise as the committee's trucks.

Legal action by the law committee of the Citizens' Transportation Committee may result from the walkout of the longshoremen. Walter Gordon Merritt, Chairman of the law committee, has already instituted proceedings against two steamship companies, which, it is charged, refused to accept goods for shipment, and the committee's lawyers have indicated that they would proceed against the unions as well if any violations of laws covering transportation occurred.

Judge Fawcett in Brooklyn recently held that both labor unions and steamship companies who refused to carry goods because of labor disturbances were liable under the shipping laws, under which a civil suit might be brought, and under Section 5440 of the Revised Statutes, which makes interference with the transportation of merchandise a crime, punishable by a fine of $10,000 and two years in prison.

PINTO BEANS STANDARDIZED

Standardization of the New Mexican pinto beans is declared by the Federal Bureau of Markets to be one of the principal reasons for the growing popularity of that product throughout the United States. The growers assert that before long the New Mexican variety will be a regular article of food in every household in the country. Co-operative marketing was adopted by the growers, but before this could be made a success it was necessary to standardize the product, specialists of the Bureau assert.

"Up to a few years ago New Mexico pinto beans were grown in a variety of colors," says a statement from the bureau. "There were green spotted beans, green and white beans, salmon and white, black and white, and many others. Then the country agent sought to interest the growers in producing pinto beans of one variety—salmon and white. The members of the boys' and girls' clubs were instructed that, in selecting beans for seed, only the salmon and white variety should be chosen. The result has been almost total elimination of every variety except salmon and white.

"What has been done with pinto beans can be accomplished everywhere by the standardization of farm produce. It may require a little more time to select seed carefully and to use proper grading methods, but the time will be well spent, for higher and uniform quality of produce means higher prices."

NORMAL ONION CROP AGAIN.

That of Last Year Was 50 Per Cent. Lower.

A survey of the growing conditions of the onion crop just completed by the Federal Bureau of Markets indicate a normal production of onion sets this year. The acreage on the whole is estimated to be about the same as last year and present indications are that the yield will be much greater and the total production normal.

The bureau estimates a normal crop to be about 48,000,000 pounds. In 1917 and 1918 the production was 48,800,000 and 46,000,000 pounds, respectively, while last year it dropped to less than 50 per cent. of normal.

"Dealers report that sales for future delivery are much larger than last year," says a statement from the Bureau. "Delayed purchase of supplies in 1919 by jobbers and retailers, which, together with the short crop, resulted in their failure to obtain sufficient stocks to supply their 1920 Spring trade, is given as a reason for the early contracting this season.

"The area in which onion sets are grown in the Chicago district is being extended beyond its original boundaries. This is largely because growers have found that crop rotation is necessary in producing the best yield of sets and the land is sown to grain at least once in three or four years.

"The best information obtainable indicates that the acreage on the south side of Chicago has increased somewhat over last year, but that it has been reduced proportionately on the north side. Very little difference is noted between fields sown around April 15 and those sown after May 1. The stands are even and the plants thick enough in the rows to insure sets of the desired size. The plants wil lstart bulbing during the next week or ten days and rain and cool weather are essential if the present bright prospects for a crop continue.

"The contract acreage of onion sets in this district is reported to be reduced somewhat from that of last year. With the exception of a few fields the growing condition is good, but the crop is from ten days to two weeks late. The stand is even and the color excellent, but in some of the poorer fields there is some evidence of smut.

"The acreage devoted to onion sets in Oregon is reported to be much larger than that of 1919. On about 85 per cent. of the acreage the growing condition of the crop is fair and on the remainder it is reported very good."

MILK EXPORTS DECREASE.

Producers Should Be Awake to Opportunities, Says Market Bureau.

An uninterrupted stream of produce should flow to foreign markets to insure the prosperity of the American farmer and of the Nation, assert specialists of the Bureau of Markets of the United States Department of Agriculture. Every American farmer must have foreign produce, such as coffee, tea, sugar, cloth, and manufactured articles. To obtain them America must have something to give in exchange.

In emphasizing the importance of a foreign outlet for surplus products attention is called to a condition that has recently developed. During the war a large European demand for American condensed milk was created. But now that Europe can produce its own product there has been a serious falling off in the demand for American condensed milk. As a result many American condenseries have been closed in the last six months. Of course, the surplus of fluid milk is being manufactured into butter and cheese, but these commodities are worth only about two-thirds as much as Europe paid for the condensed milk.

With established machinery for the manufacture, another outlet for American condensed milk should be developed. The tropical countries that have been furnishing us sugar from this and other countries need condensed milk, and doubtless would be gla to neotiate with American proucers.

American producers of all products should keep thoroughly informed regarding foreign market conditions and opportunities, says the bureau. The Bureau of Markets maintains a foreign markets service, and is ready at all times to advise with producers' organizations interested.

MORE U. S. STEEL HELD BY INVESTORS

LESS PREFERRED FLOATING

Many Foreign Stockholders Have Liquidated Holdings Because of Exchange Situation.

A wider distribution of United States Steel shares in the hands of investors than ever before is indicated in the figures for June 30, which have just been announced. Brokerage holdings on that date amounted to only 1,631,408 of the common shares or 32.08 per cent. of the total common capitalization. The decrease in floating supply in recent years is indicated by the fact that on Dec. 31, 1916, brokerage holdings amounted to more than half of the outstanding stock or 58.04 per cent. Even in the last three months the supply of common stock in brokerage hands declined from 1,700,560 shares on March 31, to 1,631,406 on June 30.

The floating supply of the preferred stock is also diminishing. For a long time these shares have been largely in the hands of investors. On March 31, however, brokerage holdings amounted to 7.88 per cent. of the entire issue and on June 30 the percentage had fallen to 7.88.

Investors	3,451,619	3,382,465	2,132,589
Investors	67.91%	66.54%	41.95%

Foreign holdings decreased during the second quarter of this year. On June 30 only 342,567 of the common shares, or 6.74 per cent., were held abroad. On March 31 6.84 per cent. of the stock was held outside of the United States. The preferred stock held abroad on June 30 amounted to only 3.46 per cent., as compared with 3.54 per cent. at the close of the preceding quarter.

	Common.	Pref'd
England	165,560	34,092
Holland	111,258	21,819
Canada	31,615	33,908
West Indies	3,360	1,033
Austria	2,295	2,466
Belgium	2,205	24
Switzerland	1,880	2,810
Spain	455	1,209
Italy	240	2,113

Decline in foreign holdings is in part attributable to the exchange situation, holders abroad in some cases preferring to sell their American securities here in order to realize in dollars and thereby reap a profit in exchange.

DEMANDS OF SPANISH CITIES.

They Will Ask for Greater Independence of the Central Government

BARCELONA, July 11.—Demands for the improvement of the local Government system for cities will be presented to the Government as a result of the deliberations of the Congress of Municipalities of Spain, which has been in session here during the past week. The principal proposals comprise the suggestion that every town of more than 10,000 inhabitants shall be empowered to manage its own affairs independent of the Central Government, levying the necessary local taxation for the town's requirements and for the payment of a share of the expenses incurred by the State for local improvements.

A committee of Mayors of the chief cities was appointed to approach the Government with the resolutions passed by the congress, the acceptance of which, it was declared by leaders of the congress, would mean the rapid development of local life and the general improvement throughout Spain.

The total net assets behind the note issue described below are stated by the Company to be over $250,000,000 including the proceeds of the notes. This is more than five times these notes. These assets include, among others, oil-producing properties, pipe lines, refineries and distributing facilities, each of which has an independent earning power.

125,000 Class A Shares, no par value 375,000 Class B Shares, no par value

From the letter of D. W. Griffith, dated June 28, 1920, and on file in our office, we summarize as follows:

Purpose of Issue—The proceeds received by the Company from its sale of Class A Shares will be used as additional working capital required by its rapidly expanding business, under the direction of D. W. Griffith, who occupies a preeminent position in the industry, being known as the creator and producer of the world's greatest motion pictures, including "The Birth of a Nation;" "Hearts of the World;" "Broken Blossoms" and many others.

Tangible Assets—The assets acquired by the Company will comprise the studio headquarters and equipment at Mamaroneck, N. Y., ownership of a large number of completed productions, and those in process, rights to future productions and contracts with distributing companies and with the prominent members of the Griffith organization.

The Company acquires a one-fifth interest in the United Artists Corporation which releases star pictures including those by D. W. Griffith, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin, each owning a one-fifth interest.

As shown by the audit of Price, Waterhouse & Co. and the appraisal of the Coats & Burchard Company and after giving effect to the present financing, but without giving consideration to value of contracts, equities in films, etc., the Company's net tangible assets are $2,944,053.62 or equal to over $23.00 per share, and net current assets equal to over $14.00 per share of Class A Stock.

Earnings—The gross receipts from pictures produced by the Griffith organization during the past twenty-seven months and upon completion of their runs, are estimated to exceed $9,000,000 and net earnings will approximate $3,000,000. The management estimates net earnings for the next 12 months, after Federal taxes, will exceed $1,500,000, equal to over 8 times the Class A preferential dividend.

Dividends—It is the intention of the Company to pay dividends of at least $1.50 per share per annum on Class A Stock commencing with the first semi-annual dividend on or about January 1, 1921.

Protective Provisions—Class A Shares which are fully participating and are preferentially protected, shall in any fiscal year, first receive dividends up to $1.50 per share; then Class B Shares receive a like amount after which both classes of stock will participate, share and share alike, in any additional dividends.

In voluntary liquidation Class A Shares receive $25.00 per share and in involuntary liquidation $20.00 per share and after Class B Shares have received a like amount both classes of stock will participate, share and share alike in any additional assets. Consent of a majority of the Class A Shares is required for voluntary liquidation.

The Motion Picture Industry—Motion pictures are recognized as the most powerful single medium for reaching all classes. The industry is the fifth largest in the United States. Average daily attendance amounts to eleven million people. Motion picture theatres now total 18,000 and 1,200 additional houses are being built in 1920. Box office receipts during 1919, were $800,000,000 and estimated receipts for 1920 are $1,000,000,000. This reflects the accomplishment of a 20-year period.

Legality to be approved by Messrs. Cravath & Henderson, Attorneys, of New York City for the bankers, and Banzhaf & Pembleton for the Company. Accounts audited by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co. Properties appraised by Messrs. Coats & Burchard Company.

We offer the above Class A Shares for subscription, if, when and as issued and deliverable, and subject to allotment.

HALT PLAN FOR NEW CURB MARKET HOME

High Building Costs and Difficulty in Financing Cause Temporary Delay.

SITE ALREADY PURCHASED

Program Will Be Carried Out as Soon as Conditions Are Favorable, Association Says.

High building costs and difficulty in completing plans for financing have caused a temporary halt in the plans of the New York Curb Market Association to have a home of its own. The announcement to this effect was made yesterday to all members of the Curb Market Association. It is asserted positively, however, that plans for an office building and an exchange building on a site which was purchased some time ago have not been abandoned. The program will be carried out just as soon as conditions are more favorable.

The letter announcing the change in plans reads in part as follows:

"A building site has been acquired and an exchange building, with ample facilities, will be erected upon part of the plot, after reserving a desirable site for an office building. All the energy of your company and the Board of Directors will be devoted to the proposed exchange building. No contract has yet been made on account of the condition of the labor and material market, which makes it impossible to close any contract with builders, except on a cost-plus basis, and it is necessary that all financing shall be completed. The Board of Directors in normal times would have no difficulty in completing such financing, but after the most diligent efforts we find that at present the cost of funds is quite out of proportion and that there is little disposition on the part of bankers to look with favor upon building loans.

"Your Board of Directors is unanimously of the opinion that the few months' delay at this time should not be construed to mean any abandonment of the proposed exchange building, which, in the opinion of the board, will soon be carried to a successful conclusion."

This letter was signed by Herbert G. Einstein, Secretary of the New York Curb Market Realty Association, Incorporated, and was sent out to members of the New York Curb market by A. B. Sturges, Secretary of the latter association.

DOUBT THAT STEEL MILLS WILL CLOSE

Reports That Car Shortage Will Cause Suspension Are Exaggerated, Financiers Say.

NO BENEFIT IN SHUTDOWN

Finished Material Is Needed for Repair Work on Railroad Equipment, Says Steel Man.

Reports that the steel industry might have to close down for a period of ten to fifteen days because of the car shortage were taken with the proverbial grain of salt in the financial district yesterday. Several steel men, when questioned, considered that the news tended to exaggeration, and it was the opinion of the majority that no shutdown of the industry as a whole was being considered.

It was pointed out that in some centres the accumulation of manufactured goods was such as to seriously tax storage conveniences, and in such cases, with cars lacking to make shipments, the only recourse might be to temporarily suspend operations. It was denied, however, that any such condition existed throughout the industry as a whole.

Where there is storage space the steel companies will go on producing, and it is not expected that raw materials will be lacking to carry on operations. It was pointed out by one man that a shutdown of the steel industry would not be of benefit in relieving the transportation situation, for the steel needed in repair work on railroad equipment would be curtailed and new construction work would be halted.

Some steel companies report that the transportation situation shows improvement, and the figures of the United States Steel Corporation indicate that operations are on a higher scale than generally supposed. It is reported that during June this company's daily shipments of finished steel averaged about 40,000 tons. Steel men are far from pessimistic as to the outlook, even though it is agreed that the rail situation does not permit of quick betterment.

Dominion of Canada 5½% Victory Bonds

Having in view the splendid security, the marketability, the collateral value and the certainty of substantial appreciation over a reasonable period, there is no more attractive investment available than can be secured in the Victory Bonds of the Dominion of Canada.

Present exchange rates give the investor in the United States exceptional advantages due to the fact that the present premium of about 14% obtainable for United States funds in Canada is in his favor when investing in these securities.

On request we shall be glad to send circular A-35, describing this offering.

The Strongest Example of the Strongest Type of Security

A BOND backed by first mortgages on selected income-producing real estate is the strongest type of security there is, outside of a United States Government Bond. And Prudence-Bonds are the strongest examples of the type.

And backed finally by a guarantee which pledges every dollar of our resources for the protection of our bondholders, Prudence-Bonds are acknowledged by financial authorities to be unique in their impenetrable security.

ARE YOU PROTECTED AGAINST STRIKES?

IN these times strikes are very prevalent. They curtail production, disrupt business conditions and unsettle credits, making payments slow and uncertain.

Many of your accounts—good in normal times—are liable, under present conditions, to be questionable. Why gamble with them? Why not insure and get absolute protection in a "LONDON" Credit Insurance Policy?

We can write a policy to fit your specific requirements. With our policies to protect you, you know when you get your money on failed accounts. Asking for particulars does not obligate you.

COTTON PRICES UP ON FOREIGN DEMAND

OCTOBER GAINS 20 POINTS

July Dull, but Closes at Net Advance of 30 Points—Uncertainty as to Next Report.

The week started in cotton with a good demand, mostly foreign, which took prices up 20 to more than 30 points on the call and held them there for a short time. Trade reports from abroad, which had become better on Saturday, were again fairly good, and there was much talk about the possibility of England opening up trade relations with Russia. The South also bought with more freedom than usual early in the day and for a time the market was quite strong. The initial prices were improved about ten points during the first hour, but at the high level selling developed all around the ring and the advance was checked.

The selling after that was not important, nor was it impressive or significant. It looked more like ring scalping than anything else, but it served its purpose of ending the rise. Then the market fell into a dull period with little movement one way or the other. In the afternoon there was fresh selling which took from the list all it had gained in the forenoon, and at the close prices for the distant months were up only 3 to 9 points, with the exception of October, which was up 20 points. July, which was very dull, ended near the high for the day at a net gain of 30 points.

Several private crop condition reports were published over Sunday and made various showings. In the trade there is uncertainty as to what the next Government report will disclose, as, against the highly favorable weather, there have been ever-increasing reports of boll weevil damage. The fact that the Boston Federal Reserve Bank had improved its position, while some of the Southern banks were losing ground, was mildly disconcerting, for it was feared the New England improvement had been at the expense of the South. New England has been an important lender in the South and there was some apprehension over the possibility of the calling of some of these loans.

Buy Canadian Funds Before Going to Canada

THE CANADIAN DOLLAR is selling at a heavy discount in this country. Americans planning to visit Canada during the coming summer should provide themselves with Travelers' Checks or Letters of Credit, payable in Canadian Dollars, anywhere in Canada, before leaving the United States. They will thus effect a material reduction in their traveling expenses.

The New York Agency of the Union Bank of Canada has direct wires to Toronto and Montreal and is thus in a position to sell Canadian funds at the best possible rates.

GERMANS RIOT OVER FOOD.

Consumers Also Forcing Prices Down by Boycotting Dealers.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Consumers in Germany practically are boycotting dealers in many commodities and food riots have resulted in forcing down the prices of foodstuffs, according to a dispatch today to the State Department from the American Commissioner at Berlin.

Measures for the definite reduction of food prices are being considered by the Commonwealth Economic Council, the dispatch said.

Refloat Board Steamer Lake Elwin.

HALIFAX, July 12.—The United States Shipping Board steamer Lake Elwin, beached at Sandy Point last Monday, after striking a submerged rock near the Straits of Canso, was refloated today and will be able to resume its voyage to New York. About 30,000 bales of woodpulp were removed from the forward hold of the vessel to permit the salvagers to repair a hole in her hull.

"The Seal of Distinction"

UNIFORMITY

THE fur of animals is never free from irregularity. The back differs from the belly—the neck from the haunch—no two parts possessing identical characteristics.

They all wear differently. They are all graded and priced differently, according to the furrier's skill and judgment.

Shelton Looms Synthetic Furs are UNIFORM throughout—every yard wears alike. And yet they are practically indistinguishable from animal furs.

Summer Clothing Prospects.

Manufacturers and salesmen associated with the Summer clothing business have no fears to express concerning the outlook in this branch of trade. Mills which have opened their lines of lightweight goods report that quite a few orders are tendered and, so far, Summer clothing does not seem to have been affected the way the rest of the clothing business has. One of the largest producers of Summer cloths is understood to be slotting its goods. At the present time quantities of desirable merchandise are said to be scarce.

A Late Season Expected.

The mill agents for the woolen mills appear to be of one mind concerning Spring openings, and that is not to open until buyers are in a more receptive mood. For the clothiers to get into the mood which sellers want to see them in there will have to be a decided improvement, it is said, in Fall purchases by the retailers. If this buying movement does not start until next month or September the opening of woolens will be considerably delayed. This, in turn, may make the Spring opening of clothing lines very late unless the new offerings are shown without samples.

Collars Generally Reduced.

Cluett, Peabody & Co., makers of Arrow brand collars, now have in effect the price of $2.10 a dozen for all laundered collars. Accompanying the notice of this reduction to the trade, it was stated that prices are subject to change without notice. The reduction on collars was first made by Earl & Wilson, who reduced the price per dozen from $2.40 to $2.20. Following the mark-down on the Arrow brand, it is understood that other factors in the business have named a similar price of $2.10 a dozen.

Gray Goods Prices Easier.

Gray goods prices continued to ease off in this market yesterday, with business limited. In the sheetings there was again very little doing, while in the printcloths spot sales were confined largely to 39-inch 68-72s, which brought 19½ cents. Sellers were also asking 19½ cents for spot 38½-inch 64-60s, but buyers were unwilling to pay more than 19 cents for the goods, and business was lacking. July lots of the 64-60s, however, were let out at 19 cents, and the same construction also sold for August delivery at 18 cents. Further business in 39-inch 64-104, 4.20-yard sateens was done for July shipment at 26 cents.

Burlaps Open Week Stronger.

The local market for burlaps opened quietly yesterday, but with prices firmer, as a result of the fairly active business of last week. Standard lightweight forty-inch goods were quoted on the basis of 8.15 cents a yard, but few, if any, sales were made at that price. Heavy goods of the same width were held close to 11 cents. Reports from Calcutta are "bullish" enough, so far as prices are concerned, as goods for July-September shipment from that market are being quoted higher than spot burlaps are here. Out there the eight-ounce "40s" are held at 8½ cents for the shipments mentioned, with the 10½-ounce cloths quoted at 11½ cents.

Regarding High-Priced Woolens.

There is a commonly expressed opinion in the woolen market that the curtailment of production will have the effect of making the better qualities of material scarce should a demand arise later on. Subscribers to this idea admit that stocks of low grade fabrics will be plentiful even if there is no further manufacturing done for the time, but in regard to the predicted shortage of high-grade goods there are the usual doubters. To back up their contention that there will be plenty even of these materials they explain that the demand for the better qualities has been strong for some time and it is natural to suppose that, if there was overproduction, these goods would make up a good part of the surplus.

The Latest About Ostrich.

Just how Paris stands on the matter of ostrich trimmings for Fall chapeaux is contained in a cable received here yesterday by one of the prominent local importers of these feathers. It said: "Ostrich feathers are being used extensively. No high trimmings are seen, and hats are trimmed with flat effects lapping over the ear. They are mostly using bands, uncurled edging and quite some glycerine mixed with ostrich. Not through with glycerine by any means. As to colors, blacks and whites prevail. Light green is on the wane. Dark green and 'Rebaux' green, as well as red called 'Capusine,' are very good. Royal and brown are in excellent demand and better than tête de negre."

Must Drop Two Cents More.

A further decline of 2 cents a yard in printcloths for contract deliveries must come before any great amount of business is done in these goods in the gray. A statement to this effect was made yesterday by one of the most experienced of the local traders, who further said that until this occurs legitimate users of the goods would stay out of the market as active buyers. "While the mills are not anxious to cut prices any more rapidly than they have to," he went on, "they realize that prices are still too high for big trading, despite the sharp declines that have taken place. August 38½-inch 64-60s brought 18 cents yesterday, but the market must drop at least to a basis of 16 cents for these goods before real buying interest will be awakened. By that time, probably, the situation will have cleared and another rise may come."

Garment Makers Encouraged.

Even though the amount of business being placed by visiting buyers is not large, the manufacturers of women's garments are finding some encouragement in the promises made that future orders will be placed from time to time. This is regarded as a sign that the stores are not so heavily handicapped in the way of surplus stocks as it was thought at first, and also that operations will be on a basis close to normal. However, in the promise of buyers to make frequent purchases instead of placing bulk orders, the manufacturers realize the industry is in for a period of very keen competition as it will be necessary to sell a customer not once, but several times during the season. In other words, the price may be "right" on the first order, but the manufacturer will also have to see to it that the value is correct on the second and third purchases.

UNIQUE APARTMENT FOR WEST END AV.

INVESTMENT ABOUT $600,000

Apartments Will Contain Built-In and Disappearing Beds and Other Space-Saving Devices.

As a site for a California type of apartment house, with built-in and disappearing beds and other space-saving devices, a syndicate of New York City business men, headed by R. S. Monger, has purchased 584, 586 and 588 West End Avenue.

The property, which consists of three three-story and basement private dwellings, on a plot 60 by 100 feet, located between Eighty-eighth and Eighty-ninth Streets, was bought through the firm of Earle & Calhouns, for a consideration of $150,000.

The structure, which is estimated to cost about $450,000, will be erected under the direction of the Pandora Realty Corporation and will contain seven six-room apartments, with two baths each, and forty "California" type five-room apartments. The Western apartment house type of architecture makes every apartment an outside one, with a view of the thoroughfare.

Ground will be broken at once and it is expected that the structure will be ready for occupancy early in 1921. Plans have been prepared by Warren & Wetmore.

Associated with Mr. Monger in the syndicate is J. G. Stickley of the Stickley Associated Cabinet Makers and C. E. Wilson, Assistant General Manager of the Worthington Pump and Machinery Company.

ACTIVITY IN WESTCHESTER.

Buying Residences in Scarsdale and New Rochelle.

Frederick Brown has sold to S. A. Topakyan a four-acre estate at Scarsdale fronting on the old Mamoraneck Road, near Fenimore Road, with a two-story residence and garage. The brokers in the sale were George W. Levy and V. Z. M. Boyajian.

The dwelling at 30 St. Andrew's Place, Yonkers, has been sold by Mrs. John Macconnel to a client of Thomas S. Burke.

James D. McCann has sold for the New Rochelle Plumbing Supply Company a three-story brick building, on a plot 50 by 134 feet, on Railroad Avenue, New Rochelle, valued at $35,000, to S. B. Leonardi, Inc., and also sold the residence of Mary F. Galligan at 31 Hemlock Place, New Rochelle, held at $18,000, to the Misses Rose and Anna Matthews.

RULE ON RETURNED GOODS.

Acceptance Does Not Waive the Rights of the Sellers.

In order to free overcrowded warehouses from the large amount of goods that are refused by retailers, jobbers and garment manufacturers, and at the same time more suitably protect buyer and seller, the Bureau on Contracts of the Silk Association of America yesterday notified its subscribers that the shipper does not damage his case against the buyer if he accepts a return of merchandise refused by the latter. It is necessary for the shipper, however, to write to the customer stating that no rights are waived by accepting the goods returned.

The amount of merchandise being returned by many retailers, jobbers and manufacturers, who are seeking any pretext to get out of their contracts made at high prices, has made it necessary for the express companies to lease additional space in which to store the rejected merchandise. After the consignees refused goods the example was followed by the shippers, who imagined that by accepting the return they would be recognizing the right of the customer in refusing the merchandise. This is the point which Samuel L. Felber, General Manager of the Bureau on Contracts of the Silk Association, endeavors to clear up in his letter to subscribers. He writes:

"In my discussions with subscribers to the bureau I find that there is considerable confusion in the minds of some of the members as to the action which should be taken by the manufacturers when the goods are returned by the customer. Many manufacturers refuse to accept the goods from the carrier, and the result is that they are kept in the custody of either the express company or the railroad company, thus creating a congestion, and many times resulting in the sale of goods by express companies for only a small portion of their real value.

"I have asked the counsel of the bureau, Rose & Paskus, for an opinion as to the rights and duties of a manufacturer when merchandise is sought to be returned to him, and they advise me that in such cases the manufacturer in no way jeopardizes his case if he receives the merchandise from the carrier and holds the same for the account of the party making the return. In such case, however, the manufacturer should write the customer a letter stating that in taking the goods from the carrier he does not in any way waive his rights as against the customer and that the goods are received for the customer's account."

Mr. Felber explained that this ruling is in reality a help to the customer in case the manufacturer is upheld, because the sale of the merchandise through regular channels will bring more than if it were disposed of at auction, and consequently make the bill less for the cutomer. He stated that the number of cases now coming before the bureau is growing smaller and that they are now mostly from retailers and garment manufacturers. The bureau was established to take hold of the situation growing out of heavy cancellations of silks.

WRONG GIRL IS DETAINED.

Washington Frees Defective Alien, Forgets to Release Sister.

When Abelardo Arias, well to do Colombian merchant, arrived here on July 1, the immigration authorities detained at Ellis Island as being a mental deficient, Miss Felisa Arias, his youngest daughter and took Miss Soledad Arias, her sister, to Ellis Island to act as her companion. Notwithstanding that Mr. Arias explained that his daughter had come here for medical treatment, the authorities would not release her.

He took an apartment here and then, through the Colombian Minister in Washington, appealed to the State Department. The result was that Miss Felisa, was released in the custody of the Colombian Consul General here. Through a strange chance, the order of release did not mention the sister. In consequence the deranged sister has been permitted to land, but the one mentally sound is still held in Ellis Island.

Monkey Fur Back Again.

Latest importations of Fall millinery from Paris show not only a liberal use of monkey fur as trimmings, but with them have come this fur combined with brocades and made up into fetching collarettes, muffs and bags. The new hats also show a lavish use of jet ornaments, as well as decorations of silver and gold. Rich embroideries are also widely used. Ribbon bows are in high favor as trimmings, too, and some of the latest models have only bows of brocaded ribbon to garnish them.

Pabst Property in Long Island City for Printing Plant.

A transaction involving about $2,000,000, including land and building, has been closed in Long Island City in the purchase by a syndicate of the Pabst Brewing Company property on Jackson Avenue, near Harold Avenue. The plot is 375 by 80 feet in dimensions, with a railroad siding. The new owners are having plans prepared for a large printing plant.

Construction will begin very soon and the building will be completed about March 1, 1921. It will contain approximately 275,000 square feet of floor space and will be the second of its kind to be constructed in the immediate vicinity for the printing industry. Work recently began on the $1,000,000 printing plant being erected by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company on a large plot on Thompson Avenue and Court Street.

In the sale of the Pabst property M. & L. Hess represented the buyers as brokers and L'Ecluse, Washburn & Co. represented the owners.

Four Houses Purchased to Protect Upper East Side Corner.

Mrs. M. Morgenthau, Jr., who recently purchased 135 East Sixty-fourth Street and 844 and 846 Lexington Avenue, at the northwest corner of these thoroughfares, as a site for a permanent home, has increased her holdings by the purchase of the four adjoining dwellings at 848, 850, 852 and 854 Lexington Avenue, each on a lot 16.8 by 80 feet.

They were formerly a portion of the Beekman estate. Mrs. Morgenthau bought the houses to protect her property and to prevent stores from coming into the block. The M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company represented the purchaser.

The four-story dwelling at 54 West Ninety-second Street, 18 by 100, has been resold by Charles Wynne and Louis H. Low to a client of Slawson & Hobbs for occupancy. It is one of a row of five houses purchased by the sellers last week from the Davis estate, and negotiations are pending for the resale of the other houses.

Buyer to Remodel Buildings.

Henry Hof has sold for the Lawyers' Mortgage Company to Wm. J. Douglass Company, the two-three story and basement buildings at 247-249 East Thirty-fifth Street, between Second and Third Avenues. The purchaser will reconstruct the buildings for office purposes.

Brooklyn Activity.

The Bulkley & Horton Company sold the three-family flat at 955 Fourth Avenue, between Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh Streets, on a lot 20 by 100 feet, for a client to August Hirsch.

The four-story dwelling at 78 Columbia Heights has been sold by Cary, Harmon & Co. for Antonio Suba to a client; also the dwelling at 75 Columbia Heights for W. P. Slocovich, and 202 Dean Street, a three-story brick house, for the Swedish Lutheran Bethlehem Church.

Queens Borough Deals.

Herman Frankfort has sold for G. & I. Huttenlocher to Moses P. Epstein the private dwelling on the south side of Birdsall Avenue, between Sheridan Boulevard and Redfern Street, Far Rockaway.

Ira L. Terry has sold for John Westerbeke and others, three two-family houses at 74 to 78 Farrington Street, Flushing, to Harry N. and Samuel Jaffe. The houses cover a plot 75 by 100.

Staten Island.

SWANN HAS 'HOPES,' BUT NO ELWELL CLUE

Solution of Murder Mystery as Far Off as Ever, Says District Attorney.

Horses Run Into High Figures, Says Dooling—Porter to Answer Information Today.

District Attorney Swann yesterady said the month's investigation of the Elwell murder had produced nothing to indicate that the trail of the murderer had been found. The solution of the mystery was as far off as ever, so far as he could see. Saying he did not want to predict or speculate, Mr. Swann continued:

"I hope to see the murderer caught. The crime may be cleared up, but, on the other hand, it is entirely possible the mystery may never be solved."

Because the investigation of the bootlegging traffic, in which associates of Elwell had been engaged, had failed to produce any evidence of a quarrel or a conflict of interests which might have led to the murder, the District Attorney's office and the police directed their inquiries to other phases of the past life of the turfman, gambler and adventurer. Elwell's gambling and race track have been pretty well investigated, and the authorities have found no one among this type of his associates who had anything to gain by his death.

Assistant District Attorney Dooling talked with Algernon Daingerfield, an official of the Jockey Club, to learn more of the value of Elwell's stables and of Elwell's reputation on the turf.

Owned Valuable Horses.

"Elwell had sixteen horses," Mr. Dooling said, "several of which have been winning lately. They have had much better luck since his death than they had before it. Some of them are valuable animals. Mr. Daingerfield was not willing to guess at their value, but it runs into pretty high figures. Then we kno wof his trust fund, from which the incomes had been $7,000 a year and which was previously higher. The lawyers of the estate say that it comprised considerable other property. We have no means of making an estimate of the total, but it was a pretty good estate, and it certainly does not bear out the theory that he committed suicide because he was broke or that he was dabbling in petty bootlegging transactions.

"I have investigated his stock brokerage affairs. He dabbled in mining stocks a few years ago, but he had been out of that line entirely for two years or more. I have not found any evidence that he was ever implicated in anything crooked in his mining and stock transactions.

"He might have had some shady deals, but nothing has come to light which helps in the least in finding the motive for the murder or pointing in the direction of the individual who did it."

Dooling Has No Theory.

"What is your own theory of the case?"

"I have none," replied Mr. Dooling. "I have investigated too many possible explanations to give the preference to one over the other."

Mr. Dooling was asked about a rumor that Elwell had been attacked and beaten by two men at about 2 o'clock on the morning of the murder, just after Elwell had taken leave of Viola Kraus, and other members of the theatre party at the "Midnight Frolic."

"This is the first I have ever heard of it," he said. "They could not have hit him very hard, because the Medical Examiner found no marks of any kind of injuries, except the bullet wound. I am afraid there is not the slightest basis for that rumor. There could have hardly been a fight of that kind on the street without its coming to the attention of the police at an earlier date."

The story that marked cards and a crooked roulette wheel had been found in Elwell's house also was denied at the District Attorney's office.

At Police Headquarters, it was learned that the Homicide Squad was giving such help as Mr. Dooling asked for, but was turning no new clues over to the District Attorney's office.

Porter to Answer Information.

In the "bootlegging" end of the mystery, H. Hobart Porter, President of the American Water Works and Electrical Co., 60 Broad St., announced that he would appear this morning before Judge Howe in the Federal Court to answer an information filed by Assistant United States Attorney Rothwell, charging him with having had whisky in his possession in violation of the Volstead act.

Mr. Rothwell said the information was based on statements made by William E. Barnes, former secretary to the slain turfman, to the effect that he had sold Mr. Porter four cases of whisky received from bootleggers. Mr. Porter was questiond about the matter several days ago in the presence of his counsel, William M. K. Olcott. He admitted the purchase of the liquor from Barnes and said the four cases could be found in his home, 405 Park Ave. Agents Lord and Mangin seized the liquor.

Mr. Rothwell said Barnes also was expected to appear in the Federal Building this morning. Barnes was asked last Saturday if he would waive immunity and testify in the conspiracy inquiry. He refused, and it is understood that Mr. Rothwell will question Mr. Porter this morning with a view to obtaining confirmation of Barnes's story that he sold the four cases of whisky to Mr. Porter.

August Hasenflug, special counsel for James M. Shevlin, Supervising Prohibition enforcement agent, possessed information that Elwell was the leader of a band of bootleggers. At the Federal Building yesterday, howevre, it was said no evidence had been obtained connecting the murdered man with the conspiracy.

CONVICTED, CAN GO ABROAD.

Judge Harland B. Howe of the United States District Court, yesterday granted the request of Felix Gouled, army raincoat contractor, now under $25,000 bail pending decision of the United States Supreme Court in his appeal from conviction on Oct. 18, 1918, of defrauding the Government, to go to Poland, providing his friends will furnish an additional bond to insure his return within three months.

Through his lawyer, M. Michael Edelstein of 111 Broadway, Gouled, who is under sentence of seven years in the penitentiary and of payment of a $10,000 fine, represented that his journey to Poland is necessary to consummate sales of raw cotton to Poland from this country that will benefit both countries. In support of this contention several official letters were produced. One of them was dated July 2, 1920, bears the official seal of Poland, is signed by N. W. Lozinsky, and says:

"In accordance with negotiations between yourself and Mr. Arct, plenipotentiary of the Polish Government, we would suggest that it would be most essential for you to go to Poland as soon as possible in order to consummate negotiations between yourself and the manufacturers in Poland with whom we already have taken up such negotiations and which manufacturers will be ready to meet you in Poland."

CUSTOMS FIFTY YEARS AGO.

Who among us would say to-day, "I never use a Dentifrice, I never have to?"

Yet Fifty years ago, odd as it may seem, not one person in 1,000 used a Dentifrice—or even a tooth brush.

So to-day, after more than 30 years of persistent publicity of Allen's Foot-Ease, the Antiseptic Powder for the Feet, not many well-turned-out people care to confess, "You know I never have to use a Powder for the Feet!"

More than One Million five hundred thousand pounds of Powder for the Feet were used by our Army and Navy during the war.

The reason is this: Incasing and confining the feet in Leather or Canvas Shoes is bound to create friction, more or less. Allen's Foot-Ease removes the friction from the shoes, and freshens the feet. It is this friction which causes smarting, callouses, corns and bunions. You know what friction does to your motor-car axle. Why not remove it from your footwear by Shaking into your Shoes to-day, Allen's Foot-Ease, the cleanly, wholesome, healing, Antiseptic powder? Get the habit, as millions now have it, who inhabit our, as yet, imperfect world.
